BALTIMORE RAVENS 2012 SEASON REVIEW & INFORMATION

SUPER BOWL XLVII CHAMPIONS • 14-6 OVERALL RECORD • FIFTH-STRAIGHT PLAYOFF BERTH

SEASON OVERVIEW

Capturing the franchise's second World Championship with a victory in Super Bowl XLVII, the 2012 Baltimore Ravens finished with a 10-6 record (14-6 overall) en route to earning their fifth-straight playoff berth and second-consecutive AFC North title. Under head coach John Harbaugh, Baltimore is the only NFL team to make the playoffs in each of the past five seasons – with the Ravens also winning at least one playoff game in each. The Ravens, who have made the playoffs in six of the past seven seasons, seized the franchise's fourth-ever division title with a 4-2 mark in AFC North play and an 8-4 overall conference record. Under Harbaugh, Baltimore has registered at least 10 wins in four of five regular seasons, with the Ravens tying New England for NFL's most total victories (63, including playoffs) since his 2008 Baltimore arrival.

OFFENSE

• The Ravens set a single-season franchise record by scoring 398 points, averaging the NFL's 10th-most points per game (24.9). Baltimore scored a team-record 254 points at home, producing the NFL's fourth-best home scoring average of 31.8 ppg.

• Baltimore surrendered just 16 give-aways, setting a franchise single-season record low and tying (GB, NE and SF) for the NFL's second-fewest turnovers (Was. was first with 14).

• Baltimore produced 72 offensive plays of 20-or-more yards in 2012, setting a franchise record and ranking third in the NFL.

• QB Joe Flacco threw for a career-high 3,817 yards, 22 TDs (second most of his career) and just 10 INTs (tying a career low). With five 300-yard passing games, Flacco tied (Vinny Testaverde, 1996) for the most such single-season contests in team history. Flacco also completed 40 passes of 25-plus yards, tying Peyton Manning for second in the NFL.

• Earning his third Pro Bowl invite, RB Ray Rice totaled 1,621 yards from scrimmage (1,143 rushing and 478 receiving), the NFL's ninth most. It marked Rice's fourth-straight season with at least 1,600 yards from scrimmage, and he also added 10 total TDs. Rice ranked second in the NFL in catches (61) and fourth in receiving yards (478) by a RB.

DEFENSE

• Depleted by injuries most of the season, Baltimore's "D" allowed 350.9 yards per game, ranking 17th in the NFL. But as the year progressed, so too did the unit. Over the final six games (since Week 12), Baltimore allowed the NFL's fourth-fewest yards per game, yielding 299.0 ypg.

• Led by Pro Bowl selections S Ed Reed and DT Haloti Ngata, Baltimore permitted 21.5 points per game, tying (NYG) for the NFL's 12th-best mark. The Ravens' red zone defense was stout, surrendering a 43.4% TD mark inside the 20 – the NFL's second-best figure.

• Reed and CB Cary Williams led the team with 4 INTs each, while OLB Paul Kruger posted a team-best and career-high 9 sacks. Reed, who became the NFL's all-time leader in INT return yards (1,541), has 61 career picks, the most among active players and 10th best all time.

SPECIAL TEAMS

• These units were spectacular. In addition to posting a league-best (tied, Darius Reynaud) 3 kick return TDs (108- & 105-yard KORs and 63-yard PR), Pro Bowl RS Jacoby Jones led the NFL in KOR average (30.7).

• Rookie K Justin Tucker made 30 of 33 FGAs (90.9%), producing the second-best success rate in Ravens single-season history and also the second-best mark by a rookie kicker in NFL history.

• P Sam Koch set Ravens single-season punting records with a 41.7 gross average and a 40.8 net average, shattering previous career bests.

FIVE STRAIGHT

The Ravens are the only team to earn a playoff berth in each of the last five seasons (2008-12), also winning at least one game in each.

FIVE BERTHS, NINE WINS

The Ravens clinched their fifth-straight playoff berth in 2012. In doing so, head coach John Harbaugh became just the third coach in NFL history (since 1970 merger) to guide his team to the postseason in each of his first five seasons (2008-12), joining Bill Cowher and Chuck Knox. "Harbs" is the only head coach in NFL history to win a playoff game in each of his first four and five seasons.

SUPER BOWL HISTORY / PLAYOFF NOTES

SUPER BOWL XXXV RECAP

Raymond James Stadium • Tampa, FL • Jan. 28, 2001

The Ravens won Super Bowl XXXV with a 34-7 victory over the New York Giants. The Ravens allowed the Giants just 152 total net yards (third fewest in Super Bowl history), and NY crossed midfield just twice. Baltimore's "D" tied a Super Bowl record with 4 INTs. The Ravens also became just the third Super Bowl team in NFL history to not commit a turnover. Baltimore opened the scoring with a QB Trent Dilfer-to-WR Brandon Stokley 38-yard TD. Ravens K Matt Stover kicked a 47-yard FG with 1:48 left in the second quarter. CB Duane Starks put Baltimore ahead 17-0 in the third quarter when he raced 49 yards after an INT. On the kickoff, Giants RS Ronnie Dixon raced 97 yards to put the Giants on the board, 17-7. Not to be outdone, Baltimore's WR/RS Jermaine Lewis took the Giants' ensuing kickoff and tight-roped down the Ravens' sideline for an 84-yard TD. The 3 scores in 3 consecutive plays set a Super Bowl record, and the back-to-back KOR-TDs were also a record. RB Jamal Lewis (27 carries for 102 yards) scored from 3 yards out on a play that was reviewed and upheld to give the Ravens a 31-7 lead. Stover kicked his second FG to complete the scoring with 5:27 on the clock. LB Ray Lewis was named the game's MVP, capping an accolade-filled season in which he was also named the NFL's Defensive Player of the Year.

SUPER BOWL XLVII RECAP

Mercedes-Benz Superdome • New Orleans, LA • Feb. 3, 2013

After taking an early 28-6 lead, the Ravens needed a goal-line stand to clinch their second World Championship, defeating the San Francisco 49ers, 34-31, in Super Bowl XLVII. The Ravens' defense delivered the critical stand late in the fourth quarter, overcoming a second-half comeback and a 34-minute power outage. For the first time in any of the four major pro sports, two head-coaching brothers faced each other in a championship game. QB Joe Flacco threw 3 TD passes and was named the game's MVP. Following a San Francisco three-and-out, Flacco hit WR Anquan Boldin with a 13-yard TD pass on Baltimore's first drive. Then, on the 49ers' second possession, the Ravens sacked QB Colin Kaepernick on third down, forcing a K David Akers' 36-yard field goal. Flacco's second TD came on a 1-yard toss to TE Dennis Pitta, making the score 14-3. Then, late in the second quarter, Flacco connected with WR Jacoby Jones, who secured a long pass, then jumped up and dove into the end zone after eluding two defenders for a 56-yard TD. Akers kicked a second field goal (27 yards) just before the half, making the score 21-6. The second half started with a Jones 108-yard KOR-TD that gave the Ravens a 28-6 lead. Shortly thereafter, the stadium lost power, and the delay ensued. When play resumed, the 49ers stole the momentum, starting with a 31-yard TD from Kaepernick to WR Michael Crabtree. After a Ravens' three-and-out and a 32-yard PR by WR Ted Ginn, RB Frank Gore capitalized with a six-yard TD run, making the score 28-20. Following a RB Ray Rice fumble, Akers kicked his third FG (34 yards), but the Ravens answered right back early in the fourth with a K Justin Tucker 19-yard FG, making the score 31-23. The 49ers then drove quickly down the field and scored on a Kaepernick 15-yard run, closing the gap to 31-29 after a failed two-point attempt. Tucker added a 38-yard FG on Baltimore's next possession, making the score 34-29. The Ravens then took a safety after the pivotal goal-line stand and tackled Ginn after a free kick, sealing the victory.

2012 PLAYOFF GAME NOTES

RAVENS "O" SETS PLAYOFF TEAM RECORD

• The Ravens racked up a then-franchise-record 439 yards of total offense (170 rushing and 269 passing). (The mark was then bested the following week in the Divisional win at Denver: 479).

• Baltimore registered 8 plays of 20-or-more yards (7 passing and 1 rushing). The Ravens averaged an impressive 7.9 yards per play.

DEFENSE STINGY WITH PLAYOFF POINTS

• Limiting the Colts to only 9 points, it marked the ninth playoff game Baltimore has allowed 10-or-fewer points since 2000. Amazingly, no other NFL team has more than four such games during this span.

RED ZONE "D" STRONG AGAIN

• Finishing the regular season with the NFL's No. 2 red zone defense, Baltimore's unit remained stout again inside "the red," not allowing the Colts to score a TD on three trips inside the 20.

BOLDIN IS A BEAST

• WR Anquan Boldin produced a Ravens' playoff-record 145 receiving yards on 5 catches (29.0 avg.). There have been four 100-yard receiving days in Ravens postseason history – three of which have come via Boldin (he also had 101 on 1/22/12 at NE – AFC Championship and 104 in Super Bowl XLVII on 2/3/13). (TE Todd Heap held the previous record of 108 yards on 1/9/11 vs. KC in a Wild Card game.)

• Boldin's 145 yards are the most in a second half of an NFL playoff game since Jerry Rice posted 157 in Super Bowl XXIII (1/22/89).

FLACCO STANDS TALL

• QB Joe Flacco was 12-of-23 for 282 yards and 2 TDs, producing a postseason franchise-record 125.6 QB rating. Flacco owns the Top 3 single-game QB ratings in Ravens playoff history.

• Flacco averaged 23.5 yards per completion, the second-best mark in NFL playoff history (Tim Tebow: 31.6 on 1/8/12) Of Flacco's 12 completions, 7 gained at least 20 yards (long of 50).

KRUGER'S CAREER DAY

• OLB Paul Kruger registered 2.5 sacks, ranking as the second most in Ravens single-game playoff history. He added a game-high 5 QB hits, 1 FF, 1 PD and 4 total tackles on the day.

RAY RETURNS

• LB Ray Lewis, who had not played since tearing his triceps on Oct. 14, posted a game-high 13 total tackles (9 solo). Lewis added 1 TFL and 1 PD.

RICE & PIERCE A STRONG TANDEM

• Rookie RB Bernard Pierce rushed for 103 yards on 13 carries, averaging 7.9 yards per attempt. Pierce produced the fifth 100-yard rushing game in Ravens playoff history.

• RB Ray Rice totaled 109 yards from scrimmage (68 rushing and 41 receiving), producing his third-career playoff game with at least 100 yards from scrimmage.

PLAYOFF PICKS

• CB Cary Williams recorded an INT, returning it 41 yards. It marked his 5th-overall pick of the season and Williams' first of his postseason career (finished with 6/2 after the Super Bowl).

DIVISIONAL NOTES AT BRONCOS

RAVENS "O" SETS PLAYOFF TEAM RECORD ... AGAIN

• The Ravens totaled a franchise-record 479 yards of offense (155 rushing and 331 passing), besting their previous mark of 439 set in the previous week's Wild Card win vs. Indianapolis.

• The Ravens also posted a franchise-record 38 points and 324 net passing yards. Baltimore scored 3 passing TDs, 1 rushing TD and 1 INT-TD.

FINE OUTING FOR FLACCO

• QB Joe Flacco set Ravens playoff records in passing yards (331) and passing TDs (3). Completing 18 of 34 passes, Flacco earned his 7th-career postseason victory. (Following the Super Bowl, Flacco now has 9 career playoff wins.)

• With 31 seconds remaining in regulation, Flacco found WR Jacoby Jones on a 70-yard TD bomb to send the contest to overtime, where the Ravens would eventually kick a 47-yard FG in 2OT to win the game. It marked Flacco's 15th-career game-winning drive in the fourth quarter/OT (his second in the playoffs).

LONG BOMBS GALORE

• On the game-tying TD with 31 seconds remaining that forced overtime, QB Joe Flacco and WR Jacoby Jones connected on the second-longest pass play in Ravens playoff history (70). The longest (96 yards) was from Trent Dilfer to Shannon Sharpe in the 2000 AFC Championship at Oakland.

• Flacco also hit WR Torrey Smith for 59-yard and 32-yard TD passes, marking the first game in NFL playoff history where a QB threw 2 TDs of 59-plus yards (the other being Jones' 70-yarder).

BOLDIN KEEPS BEASTIN'

• WR Anquan Boldin became the Ravens' all-time playoff leader in receiving yards, pulling in a team-high 6 balls for 71 yards. Five of his grabs earned first downs.

RICE HITS 100

• RB Ray Rice scored his 5th-career playoff TD (now owns 6 for his career), the most in team history. Rice finished the day with a game-high 131 rushing yards and 1 TD on 31 carries, posting the sixth 100-yard ground outing in Ravens playoff history. It also marked his fourth-career playoff game with at least 100 yards from scrimmage (and his second this postseason – 109 vs. Indy in the Wild Card round).

GRAHAM GOES THE DISTANCE

• CB Corey Graham produced the 6th defensive TD in Ravens playoff history on a 39-yard INT-TD he stole from QB Peyton Manning after a CB Chykie Brown PD.

• Graham finished with 2 INTs, including a pick of Manning in OT that set up the deciding 47-yard game-winning FG by K Justin Tucker.

TUCKER CLUTCH ... AGAIN

• Rookie K Justin Tucker kicked his 3rd game-winning FG of the season, booting the Ravens to victory with a 47-yarder in 2OT. The kick tied (NYG's Lawrence Tynes, 1/20/08 vs. GB) for the second-longest OT game-winner since 1991.

SUPER BOWL NOTES AT 49ERS

FLACCO EARNS MVP HONORS

• With a 3-TD performance vs. the 49ers, QB Joe Flacco threw 11 TD passes in the postseason, tying the NFL single-postseason record shared by Joe Montana (1989) and Kurt Warner (2008). Flacco and Montana did not throw an interception during those respective postseasons. Flacco finished the game 22-of-33 for 287 yards to produce a 124.2 rating (eighth-best mark in SB history).

HARBAUGH SETS "FIRST FIVE" MARK

• John Harbaugh set the NFL record for the most playoff wins (9) in a head coach's first five seasons (since 1970 merger). Tom Flores (Oak./LA, 1979-83) had 8 victories in his initial five seasons.

REED TIES NFL INT MARK

• S Ed Reed made the 9th INT of his postseason career, tying the NFL record shared by Charlie Waters, Bill Simpson and Ronnie Lott.

30-PLUS POINTS

• Super Bowl XLVII was only the second league championship game in NFL history (including the pre-Super Bowl era) in which each team scored 30-or-more points. Pittsburgh defeated Dallas, 35-31, in Super Bowl XIII in January 1979.

• The Ravens' 34 points tied (Super Bowl XXXV vs. NYG) for the second most in franchise playoff history (38 at Den. in the 2012 Divisional is the team record).

JACOBY DOES IT AGAIN

• WR/RS Jacoby Jones posted a 108-yard KOR-TD to open the second half, tying the NFL record that he also set on 10/14/12 vs. Dal. (two other players have also had 108-yarders in NFL history). Jones' KOR-TD marked his third of 2012 and his fourth-overall return TD (63-yard PR at Pit. on 11/18) on the season.

• Jones added a 56-yard TD catch during Super Bowl XLVII, his 2nd 50-plus-yard receiving score of the 2012 postseason (70-yarder at Den. in the Divisional Round).

• Here are the Super Bowl single-game records Jones set:
*Most Combined Yards, Game – 290 (206 KOR, 28 PR & 56 rec.)
*Longest Kickoff Return – 108 yards

BOLDIN CONTINUES CLUTCH WAYS

• WR Anquan Boldin posted 104 yards and 1 TD on 6 receptions to lead the Ravens, averaging 17.3 yards per catch. It marked Boldin's third-career 100-yard playoff game, all of which have come during his Ravens career.

KRUGER IS SCARY

• OLB Paul Kruger posted 2 sacks, totaling 4.5 during the 2012 playoffs and ranking third in Ravens postseason history. Kruger became the 21st player in Super Bowl history to tally multiple sacks.

LEWIS GOES OUT ON TOP

• LB Ray Lewis finished the game with 7 total tackles (4 solo) to post 51 total stops during the postseason. That mark ranks as an NFL single-season playoff record.

SEASON PENALTY LOW

• Baltimore committed a 2012 season-low 2 penalties for 20 yards.

COORDINATORS NOTES

CALDWELL ELEVATED

Jim Caldwell, a 35-year coaching veteran, joined the Ravens as the team's QBs coach in February 2012 and was elevated to offensive coordinator on Dec. 10, replacing Cam Cameron. Caldwell arrived in Baltimore after coaching the last 10 seasons with the Indianapolis Colts, including the previous three as head coach. In his first year at the helm (2009), he led the Colts to the AFC Championship and a berth in Super Bowl XLIV. Caldwell, who earned a Super Bowl ring (2006) with Indy, spent six seasons tutoring one of the NFL's all-time greats in QB Peyton Manning. During the course of Caldwell's time in Indianapolis, the Colts achieved much success, tying an NFL record with nine-straight playoff appearances and winning six AFC South division titles.

CALDWELL FIRES UP "O"

Under the direction of Jim Caldwell, who was elevated to offensive coordinator prior to the Ravens' Dec. 16 game vs. Denver, Baltimore averaged 400.6 yards of offense per contest (146.4 rushing and 254.1 passing) and 27.3 points per game.

Dean Pees, a nine-year NFL-coaching veteran, was promoted to defensive coordinator on Jan. 27, 2012, after guiding the Ravens' LBs for two seasons. He is the sixth "D" coordinator in franchise history. Pees, who was New England's "D" coordinator from 2006-09, leads a Baltimore unit that finished as the NFL's third-best scoring defense four-consecutive years (2008-11) and tied (NYG) for 12th in 2012, allowing 21.5 points per game.

NFL'S TOP 100

It can be argued that the 100 best NFL players of 2012, as voted by the players late in 2011, doesn't really represent the best. Maybe coaches or scouts have a different list. Certainly, there are reporters who compiled rankings of their own. Still, it's special for the Ravens to boast seven players overall (tied with Phi. and SF for the NFL's most) – including five standouts in the Top 25.

WINNING WAYS

The Ravens are the only NFL team to win a playoff game in each of the past four and five seasons – and the only NFL club to secure a postseason berth in each of the last five seasons (2008-12). Baltimore has also earned three berths in the conference title game, ranking as the NFL's most such appearances since 2008.

MOST NFL PLAYOFF BERTHS / PAST FIVE SEASONS

Berths	Team
5	Baltimore Ravens
4	Atlanta, Green Bay, Indianapolis, New England

• The Ravens' nine playoff wins over the past five seasons (2008-12) rank as the NFL's most. Six of the Ravens' victories have come on the road, also ranking as the NFL's most.

• All four of the Ravens' playoff losses from 2008-11 came at the hands of the team that represented the AFC in the Super Bowl. One of those teams (2010 Steelers) captured the Super Bowl Championship.

• The Ravens have played an NFL-high 14 road playoff games since 2000. Baltimore's nine postseason road wins during this span are the most in the league.

20/20 CLUB

The Ravens' "20/20 Club" includes members of the team's personnel staff who started with the Ravens as young assistants and grew into evaluators with more input. The term "20/20" refers to hiring 20-year-olds for $20,000. According to Ozzie Newsome: "The guys actually started when they were a little older than 20 and for more than $20,000, but that's what we call them."

• Pittsburgh's win in Week 13 snapped another streak: The Ravens had won 12-straight AFC North games, tying Indianapolis for the longest division winning streak since the NFL's 2002 division realignment.

• With Week 15's loss to Denver, the Ravens dropped back-to-back home games for the first time under John Harbaugh. The last time Baltimore lost consecutive home games was in 2007 (12/3 and 12/9), a stretch that spanned 39 homes games leading into Week 15's defeat.

Consecutive games played by the Ravens without having a losing record, the NFL's longest such active streak. Baltimore has not been below .500 since starting 2-3 in 2008. Houston & San Francisco own the next best active streak at 32 games of being at .500 or above.

KRUGER A SCARY FORCE

OLB Paul Kruger, a second-round draft pick in 2009, led the Ravens with 9 sacks in 2012. From games 9-13, he recorded a sack in five-straight contests (totaling 6.5 sacks) to tie a Ravens' franchise record for most consecutive games with a sack. (Former OLB Adalius Thomas twice had five-game streaks with at least 1 sack in each outing.) Here's how each streak stacks up:

CONSECUTIVE GAMES WITH A SACK (Ravens Franchise History)

Player	Games	Sacks	Yards	Year (Games)

Kruger Quick Hit:

• Dating back to 11/11 (the regular season's final eight weeks), Kruger's 7.5 sacks tie (Chris Long) for fifth in the NFL.

PITTA A PRIME TE TARGET

In 2012's Week 15 vs. Denver, TE Dennis Pitta set career highs in receiving yards (125) and TD catches (2), pulling in 7 receptions. Pitta scored his second TD of the game on a 61-yard catch and run – breaking three tackles along the way – a play that stands as the Ravens' second-longest from scrimmage in 2012. Pitta had 7 receiving TDs in 16 games, a mark that ties Todd Heap for the most scores by a TE in Ravens single-season history. Pitta's 61 catches in 2012 tied (RB Ray Rice) for second on the team, while his 7 receiving scores were also second (WR Torrey Smith had 8).

It marked the Ravens' lowest standing since 2007.

THE DOMINANT DT

One of the NFL's most disruptive forces, DT Haloti Ngata was named to his fourth Pro Bowl in 2012. Perhaps the NFL's most athletic DT, Ngata stops the run (444 career tackles), rushes the passer (22 career sacks) and even drops into coverage (3 career INTs). In Week 11's win at Pittsburgh, he had 5 tackles and 1 sack (-10 yards), helping hold the Steelers to 10 points. Baltimore has a history of strong run defense, and with Ngata's help the past several seasons, has been consistently sturdy on the ground.

STRONG SPECIAL TEAMS PLAY

Much of Baltimore's success in 2012 could be attributed to the strong performances of the special teams units. In addition to posting a league-best 3 kick return TDs (108- & 105-yard KORs and 63-yard PR by WR/RS Jacoby Jones), scoring a TD off a fake FG (7-yard run by P Sam Koch) and being consistently accurate on FG attempts (K Justin Tucker was 30-of-33), Baltimore's return blocking and coverage teams excelled. The Ravens ranked second (tied, Min.) in the NFL in average starting position after a KO (24.6-yard line) and stood fifth in opponent average starting field position following a kickoff (20.6-yard line).

PRO BOWL SPECIAL TEAMERS

During the 2012 offseason, the Ravens signed CB Corey Graham, who earned special teams Pro Bowl honors with Chicago during the 2011 campaign. In addition to Graham, the Ravens also boast another Pro Bowl special teamer in LB Brendon Ayanbadejo, who has made three trips to the NFL's All-Star game. Ayanbadejo (187) and Graham (110) have combined to post 297 special teams tackles during their careers.

In 2012, Ayanbadejo posted 14 special teams stops (most on the team), Graham, who started the final eight games at CB, totaled 6, while second-year special teams standout RB Anthony Allen had 12 ST tackles (second behind Ayanbadejo).

2012 COMMUNITY RECAP

During the 2012 season, Baltimore Ravens players, coaches, cheerleaders, mascot Poe and staff served the Baltimore community through a variety of outreach events and programs. By partnering with local schools, military groups and non-profits, the Ravens were able to affect the lives of many.

PLAY 60

The Ravens hosted four different Play 60 assemblies at local elementary and middle schools. Several players, including FB Vonta Leach, encouraged students to take part in 60 minutes of physical activity per day to maintain a healthy lifestyle.

By hosting football clinics, Ravens players were able to interact with and teach children the fundamentals of football. LB Josh Bynes took part in the annual Hispanic Heritage Clinic with 150 predominantly Hispanic youth.

MILITARY

During training camp, the Ravens hosted wounded warriors from Walter Reed Military Medical Center. After several practices, the service members had the opportunity to meet players and coaches.

Ravens players, including LS Morgan Cox, visited veterans at the Baltimore VA Medical Center to show their support for those who have served our country. Players distributed Ravens military t-shirts to patients.

Throughout the season, the Ravens continued their support for the military. In addition to providing complimentary game tickets to service members, they also sent care packages and skyped with troops overseas.

SUPER BOWL CHAMPIONS

"This is the Ravens' way. They find hidden talents, giving them the key to any Super Bowl champion: depth. They have created a culture where even stars do grunt work. And [John] Harbaugh and his coaches are as good at game preparation as any other staff in the league."

- SI.com's Michael Rosenberg on the Ravens winning Super Bowl XLVII

"No one can doubt the Baltimore Ravens anymore. The Ravens claimed their place in NFL history with one of the most magical and improbable runs in recent memory. … This was more than a team of destiny. This was a team bent on completing a mission. For three weeks, the Ravens were underdogs. And for three weeks, they proved their doubters wrong."

ESPN.com*'s Jeff Chadiha on the 2012 Ravens:
"The Ravens are champions because they were a complete team, not merely a cast of characters lucky enough to be led by one of the greatest players in NFL history. [Ray] Lewis certainly gave them ample inspiration by announcing his retirement before the playoffs began. What his teammates gave him in return was the kind of effort that will linger in the minds of Ravens fans forever."

NFL Network analyst Kimberly Jones on the 2012 Ravens:
"These Ravens never arrived – or left – quietly. They were loud, bold, brash and, in the end, ultimate winners."

OLB Terrell Suggs on winning the Super Bowl:

RB Ray Rice on winning Super Bowl XLVII:
"One thing about winning the Super Bowl is that you finally realize everything was worth it. No team is going to be the same [afterward]. After the season is over, and we do all our stuff, next year the locker room is going to be different. This is the one thing that's not going to separate us for life. We'll forever be champions because we won the Super Bowl."

Ravens WR Torrey Smith on the Ravens' resiliency throughout the 2012 campaign:
"It's who we are. That's what our city is, a tough city. You get knocked down, you've got to get back up. That's how life is. You just can't lay down and roll over. You've got to continue to fight."

LB Ray Lewis on the team's perseverance through the season:
"I think the thing that [Ray Rice] is speaking about, when you do hear him speak about it, is how we kept fighting, how we kept keeping each other up. And no matter who got hurt, next man up, next man up. And that's kind of the staple that we've had around here for a very, very long time. It's always next man up, and for us to fight through all the bumps in the roads that we have went through all year, I just think that's an awesome, awesome credit to our team."

The Baltimore Sun*'s Matt Vensel on the Ravens' journey to being Super Bowl XLVII Champions:
"These Ravens are a special group of special players with a special bond, and it didn't take another miracle for them to get where they are today. They flat-out earned it. The Ravens were the better team when they schooled Andrew Luck and the Indianapolis Colts. They were the better team when they wore down Peyton Manning and made a mockery of the Denver Broncos' defense. And they were the better team when they took all that Tom Brady and the New England Patriots could give them and then attacked back, dominating the second half in the 28-13 win in the AFC championship game to get to the Super Bowl for the first time since 2000. Even after a difficult December tested them, the Ravens knew they would be there all along, that the last ride of Ray Lewis would end in New Orleans, even though an ice-cold reality suggested otherwise. They heard their doubters talk. ... They heard it all. They filed it away. And then they unleashed a fury on the football field."

"The game was a display of our entire year. It started great, got ugly and ended great – with 53 tickets to paradise."

"For us to stand up like that, it is just a testament of what we've been through and how much trust we had all year with each other. To me, that was one of the most amazing goal-line stands I've ever been a part of in my career. What better way to do it than on the Super Bowl stage?"

President Barack Obama on the Ravens' Super Bowl win:
"I just want to say congratulations. I know it was a bumpy season up and down. For you guys to stay steady the way you did is really a great feat."

Offensive coordinator Jim Caldwell on head coach John Harbaugh:
"He's believed in this team. He's built it. He's constructed it with men that have the same belief that he has. And they work. This is a hard-working, passionate group, and these guys love him and believe in what he's doing. John Harbaugh is a master in communication. He has the pulse of his team, which I think is very important in terms of leadership. This is a tough game and a very difficult arena to work in, and he does it as well as anyone."

CBSSports.com*'s Clark Judge on John Harbaugh becoming a head coach five years ago:
"The Ravens didn't see [John] Harbaugh as a special teams coach. They saw him as someone who had the discipline, confidence and imagination to take them to the next level, and they were right."

QUOTH THE RAVENS: SUPER BOWL

The Baltimore Sun*'s Kevin Cowherd on John Harbaugh:
"If you follow the Ravens at all, you know this was the season John Harbaugh pushed all the right buttons — and pushed himself into the top tier of NFL head coaches, too."

QB Joe Flacco on LB Ray Lewis:
"Ray's a great person, and everyone knows he's an unbelievable football player. But he's the best teammate. It's unbelievable to send him out like this. The reason for that is, he just wanted us all to feel what it feels like to win this thing. He's felt it, and of course he wanted to feel it again. He really wanted us to feel that, and we all made it happen today.''

Offensive coordinator Jim Caldwell on WR Anquan Boldin:
"He's just a huge playmaker. He's one of those guys that, without question, you have to find ways to get him the ball. He's going to make some things happen. In extremely tough situations, he plays big."

John Harbaugh on QB Joe Flacco's play in Super Bowl XLVII:
"Joe is phenomenal. We are sitting at third-and-six inches. Joe has three play options, and Joe decides to throw the fade to Anquan [Boldin]. He throws it right on the money, and Anquan goes up and makes the play. To me, that shows you he has got guts. He has got the guts of a burglar. He was doing it all night, making plays."

SI.com*'s Don Banks on QB Joe Flacco's Super Bowl XLVII performance and MVP honors:
"[Joe] Flacco has arrived. And he won't be unappreciated or put in the position of defending his own elite status after this remarkable playoff run. … Pick your own word[s]: elite, premier or top-notch. Flacco and the Ravens are champions."

CBSSports.com*'s Pete Prisco on QB Joe Flacco's Super Bowl XLVII performance and playmaking ways:
"You have to love his big-game style. He might not be Broadway Joe. But Baltimore Joe – or Bourbon Street Joe if you like – showed the world that on the game's biggest stage, he could shine as bright as any quarterback who was there before him – even through the darkness."

Senior advisor to player development O.J. Brigance on the 2012 Baltimore Ravens:
"The truth of the matter is those men inspire me. They have helped give me a reason to get up out of the bed every morning. There is a biblical proverb that says, as iron sharpens iron, so does one man sharpen another. We are making each other better men."

Ravens S Ed Reed on senior advisor to player development O.J. Brigance's impact during the Ravens' playoff run:
"O.J.'s been our strength. O.J. took me under his wing when I first got here, and everything he's been through and is going through, to still be the same O.J. and being a light to you and being a light for our team [is amazing]. He's been like an uncle to me and like a brother. I love 'Juice.'"

WR Torrey Smith on now wanting to win multiple Super Bowls:
"I can't experience [the Super Bowl] just one time. We need to bring multiple championships back to Baltimore. People are saying this isn't normal. Well, why not? That's the way I'm approaching it. To make it to the top and see the look on the faces of our city, all those kids out there, it's amazing. We are a reflection of our city."

John Harbaugh on what it feels like to win the Super Bowl and turning attention to the 2013 season:
"It's really amazing. It's a wonderful thing. I'm proud of our guys beyond belief, our organization – from top to bottom and sideways – and everybody involved. Every face you see, you know, you want to give them a big hug and thank them. That's really what it boils down to. And guys go back to work. We talk to our team about, 'We've got to improve.' We have to get better next year as a football team, just like we always do. That's going to be our goal."

Owner Steve Bisciotti on head coach John Harbaugh's strengths:
"What I commend John for is that he spends a lot of time one-on-one with these guys. The 52nd guy on the roster is just as likely to be in a one-on-one meeting with John as Ray Lewis is. From an organizational standpoint, John understands that those guys on the bottom 15 – if you will – could be in [the game] at any given moment, so he spends an inordinate amount of time with the guys – the second half of the roster – so that he understands them. He has a real one-on-one relationship with them, and when it comes time to put them in, he knows what their strengths and weaknesses are. You can't run a business by talking in front of a group. John spends the majority of his time in one-on-one meetings, and I think it's the right way to run a business."

Ravens president Dick Cass on the Ravens' Super Bowl parade and celebration in Baltimore:
"The good was just the energy of the crowd, the size of the crowds. I've never seen anything like that. I don't think any of us had seen anything like that. I don't think any NFL team had had a celebration quite like that, with that type of crowd, as large as it was, both on the streets and in the stadium. So, it was amazing, and I know our players were moved by it, deeply moved by it."

GM/executive vice president Ozzie Newsome on if he became concerned during the Ravens' 2012 three-game losing streak:
"I engage in conversation with John [Harbaugh] two, three times a day. I think that is the strength of our relationship. So during that time, he and I were in constant conversation. And John knows, I am out at practice, I watch every practice tape. He tells me what the game plan is, and I have an understanding of that. So he and I were able to sit there and talk through it, but we never lost sight of what the goal was. The goal was to win the division, and even though we were struggling, we were still one game ahead, two games ahead. We needed to win one game to win the division. So, we never lost focus on what our first goal was. We never lost focus on that, but we also were able to sit there through all of that time, watching practice, and watching the practice tape, and interacting with each other and the players, and to realize that this thing could turn around and turn around very huge. It happened that way."

REGULAR SEASON

"That intangible, I don't know how you measure that. It's hard to quantify it, but I know it when I see it. These guys love one another, and they love football, and that's a real good combination to have. It's the shared experiences we've had, the success, the adversity. Everything you go through, it can divide a group. Instead, it's pushed us together."

- John Harbaugh on the bond the Ravens share and their ability to persevere

TEAM QUOTES

RB Ray Rice on the Ravens' playoff expectations:
"Getting [to the playoffs] is not good enough anymore. I've played in two AFC Championship games since I've been here and been in the playoffs every year. The playoffs are the norm now. It's not just about the feeling of making the playoffs anymore. It's about taking care of business again, and this time, actually getting the job done. Do we have the pieces? Yes, but it's going to take every man on board."

Head coach John Harbaugh on his original "vision" for the Ravens and his 2012 team:
"Somehow, last year, and now, this year, more so than ever, I feel in my element as the head coach. It looks the way I always wanted it to look. I remember I told the team in some of the tough moments back [in my first season of 2008], 'I know what it's going to look like, the picture is as clear as can be in my mind, and we're not even close to being there yet. But we will be, no matter how long it takes, we will get there, I promise you that.' And right now, it looks as close as it's ever looked."

WR Torrey Smith on the bond of his Ravens teammates:
"It's a true family. That's the greatest thing about this game. It brings a lot of men together that come from a lot of different circumstances, and they create a brotherhood. That's the Ravens' culture. The only thing that separates us is blood."

ESPN.com*'s Bill Williamson on the Ravens organization:
"The Ravens get it. They have one of the best front offices in the NFL and prove it year after year. There is no reason to think this will change any time soon."

John Harbaugh on the Ravens' 2012 team and leadership:
"You love every team you coach, but this team is different. I love the way they love each other, the way they treat each other. They compete, they have trust and faith in one another, and they're not afraid to get after one another. I love being around them. I can't wait to be in the meeting room to laugh and talk ball with them. It's a great group, with great coaches and great leadership. It's the best staff I've been around and the best leadership I've seen."

C Matt Birk on the 2012 Ravens:
"We get after it in practices and games. We try to bring a physicality and toughness to everything we do. We have a willingness to work hard, and we do, and that comes from coach 'Harbs.' We're a team that likes to go to work. If you don't like to work hard, you're not going to be here. It's a great approach to have. Always work hard, because it pays off. Look at our record every season."

QB Joe Flacco on overcoming adversity and frustration:
"It's how well you can deal with the frustration and go back out there and pick yourself back up, and I think we've got a tough football team. I always say we are tough physically, but being tough mentally is just as important, or more important, and I think we are good in both of those areas."

Head coach John Harbaugh on the Ravens' rankings and statistics compared to team goals:
"The rankings don't mean one thing to us. Everybody talks about that all they want. The prognosticators make their prognostications, and that's good; that's what should be done when you base it on stats and all that other stuff. But the game gets played. We need to become better. We still need to become a better football team. We can play a lot better than we've played. We're going to have to play a lot better than what we've played in all three phases. That will be our task going forward, to become a better football team."

JOHN HARBAUGH QUOTES

CBSSports.com*'s Clark Judge on Ravens head coach John Harbaugh being one the of the NFL's best coaches:
"All I know is that there are fewer coaches in this league more predictable than Harbaugh. Every year you can count on him in the playoffs. Moreover, every year he wins at least one playoff game, and tell me who else can say that the last five seasons? Someone? Anyone? At some point, we must recognize Harbaugh for what he is: One of the game's sharpest, shrewdest and best head coaches."

NFL analyst and former GM Charley Casserly on John Harbaugh:
"One of the things that you've seen with [Harbaugh] is the consistency every year, not the ups and downs. He's a guy that puts the team first, puts his ego aside, and he's a smart guy. His personality is such where he's not going to get the publicity that some other coaches get, but the success that he's had is outstanding."

NFL Network and FOX analyst Brian Billick on John Harbaugh:
"John has been brilliant. Part of it is because he came into a team that was – I don't want to sound self-serving – but was pretty good, and a good, sound organization. It's the same reason whether it be a Bill Belichick or now Tom Coughlin, a Mike McCarthy ... Once you have a certain level of success, it's kind of assumed, so you don't give them credit for continuing to have that success. But John's been brilliant in what he has done in Baltimore and has them on the cusp. They're going to be there again [this] year."

QUOTH THE RAVENS

ESPN.com*'s Jamison Hensley on John Harbaugh:
"Harbaugh's greatest strengths as a coach are his attention to detail, motivation and focus, all of which are vital after an offseason like this [past] one. Walk the halls of Ravens headquarters, and you'll see one of Harbaugh's favorite slogans throughout the building: W.I.N. (What's Important Now). 'You try to take care of business today, what's important right now,' Harbaugh said. 'Today, let's do our job, and then the future takes care of itself. That's how it applies.'"

RB Ray Rice on John Harbaugh's vision and toughness:
"Coach brought a winning mentality here. He built a physical team, and him being a tough coach makes us a tough team. That's one thing that's great about him, because he's got his beliefs and his ways, but we all believe in him. He's our head coach, and if you believe in your head coach, you believe in his vision and chase what he sees. It eventually becomes the whole team's vision. Now we've just got to turn this team's vision into a reality."

OZZIE NEWSOME/PERSONNEL QUOTES

Longtime NFL GM Bill Polian on Ravens GM Ozzie Newsome:
"Oz understands more than anything else how to put a team together, not just a group of 53 guys, but a team that works and functions together. There's a difference between judging talent and putting together a team, and Ozzie is as good as there is at that. He's a great judge of talent. He's able to use a great scouting staff to uncover terrific gems down in the lower part of the draft. And, he recognizes how talent fits into the schemes they use."

NFL.com*'s Ian Rapoport on Ozzie Newsome and what the Ravens look for when they scout college prospects:
"The Ravens scout passion. As Newsome told me, while watching tape, they take their eye off the ball and watch how players move when they are not involved in a play, and they learn whether a guy is going through the motions or just lives it. For those with supreme passion, they can compromise on height-weight-speed standards."

ESPN.com*'s John Clayton on the Ravens' winning formula:
"One of the reasons Ozzie Newsome is one of the game's best general managers is his ability to solve problems. For years, it seemed the Ravens lacked speed at receiver. He found faster receivers. Two years ago, the Ravens were precariously thin at cornerback. Now they are deep. It also helps to have a great staff of coaches headed by John Harbaugh. Harbaugh and his staff know how to develop young talent, while locker room leaders such as Ray Lewis and Ed Reed keep players accountable."

Ravens assistant GM Eric DeCosta on the importance of the draft:
"It's improvement [for the team], but it's also for the fans. It's also the brand, it's selling, it's everything. It's the lifeblood of this organization, and we take it very seriously. We try to make it a science, we really do. But in the end, it's probably more of an art than a science. There's a lot of nuance involved. It's a big-picture thing. It's a lot of bits and pieces of information. It's gut instinct. It's experience, which I think is really, really important. It's past things that have happened. It's memories. And it's also a little bit of science involved. It all works together like a mosaic, and you just end up doing the best you can."

NFL.com*'s Gregg Rosenthal on the success of the Ravens' draft:
"If the NFL was a fantasy football league, the Baltimore Ravens are that guy who always makes the rest of the room say, 'Nice pick.' The Ravens take value. Year after year, they see a blue-chip talent fall for some bogus reason or another. And then they snap them up, coach them up and make them into Pro Bowlers."

NFL.com*'s Ian Rapoport on how GM Ozzie Newsome has built the Ravens:
"The Ravens' general manager has built a perennial playoff participant through the draft, and he's done so by spotlighting the kinds of players the organization is now known for – those who play like they'd do it for free. Gritty, tough and with a love of the game. Hard-nosed, nasty and with a certain violence. If you were choosing sides for a street fight, think about how many Ravens you'd want on your team."

DEFENSE QUOTES

Defensive coordinator Dean Pees on his unit's leadership:
"We have the best guys in the league if you want to know how to be a pro. If you're a young guy walking into one of our defensive meetings, there's Ray [Lewis], there's Ed [Reed] and Haloti [Ngata]. These players are the best of the best, not only as players, but at showing by example how to be a pro – how to take notes, how to prepare, how to eat and lift and all the other things that separate you from others. Our young players are accelerated by these influences. As coaches, we say: 'Do as they do, and you'll be fine.'"

Chiefs G/C Ryan Lilja on the Ravens' defense, led by DT Haloti Ngata, LB Ray Lewis and S Ed Reed:
"[Ngata] is a load. He's an All-Pro for a reason, year-in and year-out. He's one of the better, if not the best, [defensive] tackles in the game. He's a big, strong, powerful guy, but he can play quick and athletically, which makes him two-dimensional. There are a lot of big, strong, powerful guys, but they can't move like he does. So he's a guy you've got to address. Ray Lewis is a guy you've got to address. Ed Reed is a guy you've got to address. Talk about turnovers ... This team, this defense has always had a knack for creating turnovers and making you pay when you turn the ball over."

Patriots head coach Bill Belichick on S Ed Reed and LB Ray Lewis:
"Since I've been in the league, I think Ed has really defined the weak safety position in the National Football League. I don't think anybody has done it any better than he has in all phases of it. He has great hands, range, ball skills, cover ability, anticipation. He quarterbacks the defense in the secondary. He is a huge playmaker. He is a tremendous player, a sure Hall of Fame player – he and [Ray] Lewis both. Those guys have anchored that defense for a long time and are a very good defense. I don't know how you could go much higher than what those two players have done in their careers for that football team, both playing together for a long time, very, very well. I have tremendous respect for Ed, but Ray as well [is] part of that conversation."

NFL Network analyst Steve Mariucci on LB Ray Lewis' impact on the Ravens and his leadership:
"The intangibles are what are keeping him so great. You talk about leadership, you talk about motivating his team, you talk about example to the young guys. He holds this entire team and coaching staff accountable. That's his value; it's a coach thing, it's a leader thing and a captain thing."

QUOTH THE RAVENS

S Ed Reed on defensive coordinator Dean Pees:
"We've been fortunate to have very good coordinators here. Rex [Ryan] was aggressive in his calls. Chuck [Pagano], believe it or not, was even more aggressive. He'd put us in Cover 1 six, seven, eight times in a row. Coach Pees, he's very aggressive, too, and he keeps guys like Ray [Lewis] and me included in the planning. He has more of an open door. We like the way he wants input from us."

LB Ray Lewis on fourth-year LB Dannell Ellerbe:
"Once you get into the league and understand that your role is starting to increase, then you understand that you've got to take the business way more serious than he probably did in his younger days. And what you're seeing now is his study habits [have improved] and the way he approaches the game. Now you know that he's really turning into a real veteran to understand the business side of it."

Bengals T Andrew Whitworth on OLB Terrell Suggs:
"If you could get the Madden game and design your own player, it would be hard to say that you would design anyone that wouldn't look like 'T-Suggs.' He's got it all: He's ripped-up, he's big, he's fast, he's strong, he is intimidating-looking, and he plays the same way. I think I'd create him about 11 times over for my defense. He's the guy that you wouldn't want to have to square off in a small area with, that's for sure. That's why he's special, why he's a Pro Bowler year-in and year-out, because he's one of those ultimate talents."

Ravens GM Ozzie Newsome on S Bernard Pollard:
"Bernard showed last year that he is a Raven. He's smart, tough and brings a passion to the games, our practices and in the weight room. His physical presence on the back end is very important to the way we play defense."

BaltimoreRavens.com* columnist John Eisenberg on S Ed Reed:
"Reed is one of the Ravens' greatest stars ever, an iconic defensive playmaker almost surely headed to the Pro Football Hall of Fame. He has anchored the back of the defense for a decade, won games singlehandedly. His contributions to the franchise are greater than almost anyone's."

LB Ray Lewis on playing in his 17th NFL season:
"Something I've learned about the game – I really appreciate it. I love playing the game; I love competition. That's why I come back every year, every year, every year. … The brotherhood in the locker room, that's what makes the game beautiful. For me, being back here 17 years? Honestly, it feels like Year One again. You don't cheat the game. Appreciate the journey."

RB Ray Rice on LB Ray Lewis working to return to the active roster after tearing his triceps in Week 6:
"The guy, to me, is my modern day Superman. … Why is he coming back? People ask that question all the time. He's coming back because he firmly believes that this is a team that can go ahead and [make a playoff run]. He does it for us. He's not doing it for the stats. He's not doing it for the fame. He's doing it solely because he loves the Ravens, he loves his teammates, and he loves this organization."

S Bernard Pollard on OLB Paul Kruger, who leads the Ravens in sacks:
"White lightning, man. He's able to shake you. He can use the bull-rush. It's kind of rare you see an athlete like that. ... I told him he reminds me of Jared Allen. Jared is a bigger body than Kruger, but he's very similar with his hands, with his feet. He's a smart player. 'Krug' is capable of going out there and doing big things."

OFFENSE QUOTES

ESPN's Ron Jaworski on QB Joe Flacco's arm strength and ability to attack opposing defenses:
"Arm strength – that's Flacco's No. 1 attribute. I get so tired of hearing how arm strength is overrated. It's far more important than people think. … He has the strongest arm in the NFL. And he has an aggressive, confident throwing mentality. ... The element always overlooked by those who minimize arm strength is the willingness of quarterbacks like Flacco to pull the trigger. Few recognize that because there is no quantifiable means by which to evaluate throws that are not made by quarterbacks with lesser arm strength. It's all about dimensions. Flacco gives you the ability to attack all areas of the field at any point in the game."

Ravens S Ed Reed on how QB Joe Flacco has grown and matured:
"He has a lot more on his plate off the field. That makes you grow as a man. So, it makes you deal with things differently. It makes you lead in the locker room a lot differently. If you sit around and talk with Joe, you know a lot more about him. You know he is a lot calmer and a lot cooler. We all get shaken at some times, that's football, but Joe is going to always come back. He is a fighter. He is a guy that you want taking that snap at the end of the game leading your team to go into that final drive to win the game."

ESPN analyst Trent Dilfer on QB Joe Flacco:
"To get to the Brady status, the Brees status, the Rodgers status, it takes a lot of improvement, and Joe Flacco is a guy that's doing it. He has ice water in his veins. He's had some of the heroic end-of-the-game moments ... where he just doesn't flinch. I think there are so many layers to quarterback play, and we can talk all night about what's the most important. Maybe the most important is self-belief and having that no-flinch mentality, so no matter what the stage is, you believe you are the best player on the field. Flacco has that."

NFL Network analyst Mike Mayock on QB Joe Flacco:
"We've spent time with Joe [Flacco], and I perceive a change in him. He's won since Day One with the Ravens, but he's more confident now. They're confident in him, too, and the improved offense reflects all of that. He can make every throw. He can bring his team from behind. The question becomes, 'Can they win a Super Bowl with Joe?' And the answer is an emphatic, 'Yes!'"

Patriots NT Vince Wilfork on QB Joe Flacco:
"He took over that team. Offensively, he just stepped right in and just moved forward. And with the no-huddle now, he is looking very, very good. [I'm] not saying he was bad in the past, because like I said, every time facing these guys, he's tough, mentally and physically. He's tough to bring down, he stands in the pocket, he takes a hit, he gets up. He's a tough football player. A lot of times you can say that about a running back or a receiver, but when you speak like that about a quarterback, when you have a quarterback like that, that's special."

Cowboys DB Brandon Carr on WR Anquan Boldin:
"I mean that guy, he's pretty strong. You see it on film – just his demeanor. He's a nasty receiver, doesn't mind mixing it up with the DB, beginning of the route, top of the route. Once he gets the ball, he's a physical run-after-the-catch receiver. Whoever is on him will just have to buckle down and be prepared to fight a real dogfight with a real dog, D-A-W-G."

QUOTH THE RAVENS

Head coach John Harbaugh on elevating Jim Caldwell to offensive coordinator on Dec. 10:
"My charge – our responsibility as a coaching staff – is to maximize the opportunities for our team to win, and we can still reach all of our goals for this season. We have a motto we follow on this team: W.I.N. – What's Important Now – and what's important now is to find ways to get better, win the AFC North and advance to the playoffs. With our coaches and players, the solution is in the building. We are going to make the most of our opportunities going forward, and this change gives us a better possibility to achieve our goals."

Offensive coordinator Jim Caldwell on the Baltimore offense:
"We have a real fine unit and certainly great coaches – a great system. The thing about this position is we have a number of guys on the staff that have a lot of experience, a lot of background, and we certainly plan to utilize them. ... It's not a system change. Obviously, the Ravens' offense is the Ravens' offense. It is not a philosophical change. John [Harbaugh] sets the philosophy here of this team, and we follow suit. And, we have a bunch of willing young men that are certainly going to do a tremendous job of trying to push us forward."

The Sporting News*' Vinnie Iyer on Ravens G Marshal Yanda:
"He plays right guard like a tackle, a position he also has experience playing. Smooth and smart, Yanda brings good fundamentals in using his feet and hands to technically get the better of his defensive assignments. At 6-3, 315 pounds, he doesn't necessarily blow away opponents with his size, but he knows how to consistently outwork them."

John Harbaugh on WR Torrey Smith and what makes him special:
"We talk a lot about the cauldron of competition and the fire that refines us, that forges us. We talk about whether you're the type of person that will sharpen the next guy or dull the next guy, because that's how teams are made. To me, no championship team will ever be divided. And to me, Torrey is the perfect example of how the right kind of person is made of the right kind of stuff. ... He's one of those rare players where there is no agenda. He just wants to know what's expected of him, so he can do the best he possibly can. He's not trying to fool you, he's not trying to impress you, he's just trying to be himself."

NFL Network analyst Mike Mayock on Ravens RB Ray Rice:
"Every time I put on the Ravens tape, and I look at Ray Rice, I think Marshall Faulk. The running styles are eerily similar."

ESPN.com*'s Jamison Hensley on RB Ray Rice:
"There's been a feeling in the organization for the past couple of years that Ray Lewis has been grooming Rice to take over as team leader. Rice has certainly earned that role. So, even when Lewis decides to retire, the Ravens will still be Ray's team. It'll just be 'Little Ray,' who has repeatedly stood tall when the Ravens have needed him the most."

T Michael Oher on Vonta Leach being the NFL's best fullback:
"Patrick Willis, my college teammate, is a monster and a real beast at linebacker for the 49ers. He's usually the one running over people. But Vonta ran up to that man and just leveled him [in 2011's Ravens-49ers game]. After we watched the film the next day, I had to give Patrick a call. I think Patrick and I both agreed that Vonta is definitely the best fullback in the league, without a doubt."

CBS analyst Ian Eagle on TEs Dennis Pitta and Ed Dickson:
"From what I've seen of Dennis Pitta, he has a chance to be a star. And with the way the NFL is headed, the combination of Pitta and Dickson could be lethal."

SPECIAL TEAMS QUOTES

Former Ravens K Matt Stover on rookie K Justin Tucker:
"I've been impressed by him. Justin kicks a clean ball. My initial thought on Justin is that he has a great attitude about him, the, 'Why-not-me?' attitude. He carries a confidence about him. You can tell by the way he attacks the ball. There's no hesitancy, and there's a lot of confidence behind his kicks. … The other thing I really like is he's got a commanding presence. I've talked with both Sam [Koch] and Morgan [Cox], and they speak very highly of him. He's a very capable guy. He seems to be a good pro. This is a very good team with hopes for the playoffs. You want to see a kid like him grow up quick, but Justin has a great support staff around him to help him and manage him."

CBSSports.com*'s Clark Judge on the Ravens signing free agent and 2012 Pro Bowler WR/RS Jacoby Jones in the offseason:
"Talk about one of the year's most underrated moves. Getting Jones gave the Baltimore Ravens another weapon, with Jones producing his third touchdown off a return Sunday night. At some point, people are just going to stop kicking to the guy."

Assistant head coach/special teams coordinator Jerry Rosburg on P Sam Koch's strong 2012 season:
"Sam has done a remarkable job this year adjusting his style to the game plan. We've played some explosive returners this season, and we went into each game with a plan of how to neutralize, or at least, to some effect, slow down the returners that we're facing. It seems like each week he really modified his game in order to do that. I think it speaks to his technique, and it speaks to his professionalism that whatever it takes to win a game, he wants to do it. Whether it means punting it high or punting it wide, he does it. He has had a great year, and I think the numbers tell that picture as well."

M&T BANK STADIUM QUOTES

Current ESPN Analyst & Former Patriots LB Tedy Bruschi on the Ravens' homefield advantage:
"It was five years ago [in 2007], and I can remember everything – it made that much of an impression. Sometimes when you play in certain venues, you feel the audience. The electricity they have, the energy they're giving the team – you feel that in Baltimore. It's like the fans and the defense are in perfect sync together."

Raiders QB Carson Palmer on playing the Ravens in Baltimore:
"As far as playing against Baltimore, it's always an uphill battle. ... They're still very good at home; their crowd is phenomenal, and they make it a very hostile environment to come in and to try to communicate and play. You have to play great; you can't play OK and go in there and win. You have to go in there and play great for four quarters and put together a complete game if you want to get out of there with a win. It's difficult to do there."

After taking an early 28-6 lead, the Baltimore Ravens needed a goal-line stand to clinch their second World Championship title, defeating the San Francisco 49ers, 34-31, in Super Bowl XLVII. The Ravens' defense delivered the critical stand late in the fourth quarter, overcoming a furious second-half comeback and a 34-minute power outage. For the first time in any of the four major pro sports, two head-coaching brothers (John and Jim Harbaugh) faced each other in a championship game. QB Joe Flacco threw 3 TD passes and was named the game's MVP. Following a San Francisco three-and-out, Flacco hit WR Anquan Boldin with a 13-yard TD pass on Baltimore's first drive. Then, on the 49ers' second possession, the Ravens sacked QB Colin Kaepernick on third down, forcing a K David Akers' 36-yard field goal. Flacco's second TD came on a 1-yard toss to TE Dennis Pitta, making the score 14-3. Then, late in the second quarter, Flacco connected for a 56-yard score with WR Jacoby Jones, who secured a long pass, then jumped up and dove into the end zone after eluding two defenders on the way. Akers kicked a second field goal (27 yards) just before the half, making the score 21-6. The second half started with a Jones 108-yard kickoff return for a TD that gave the Ravens a 28-6 lead. Shortly thereafter, half of the stadium lost power, and a 34-minute delay ensued. When play resumed, the 49ers stole the momentum, starting with a 31-yard TD from Kaepernick to WR Michael Crabtree. After a Ravens' three-and-out and a strong punt return by WR Ted Ginn, RB Frank Gore capitalized with a six-yard TD run, making the score 28-20. Following a RB Ray Rice fumble, Akers kicked his third FG (34 yards), but the Ravens answered right back early in the fourth quarter with a K Justin Tucker 19-yard FG, making the score 31-23. The 49ers then drove quickly down the field and scored on a Kaepernick 15-yard run, closing the gap to 31-29 after a failed two-point attempt. Tucker added a 38-yard FG on Baltimore's next possession, making the score 34-29. The Ravens then took a safety following the pivotal goal-line stand and tackled Ginn after a free kick, sealing the victory.

The Baltimore Ravens earned a trip to their second Super Bowl in franchise history, defeating the No. 2 seed Patriots, 28-13, in the AFC Championship. The Ravens' defense shut out the NFL's No. 1-ranked and highest-scoring offense in the second half, and QB Joe Flacco, who has 8 TDs and zero INTs in the playoffs, threw three TDs in leading Baltimore to victory. The Ravens held New England to a K Stephen Gostkowski 31-yard field goal on four first-quarter possessions. Then, Flacco led the team on a 13-play, 90-yard scoring drive to open the second quarter, capped by a RB Ray Rice 2-yard TD run. New England struck back with a QB Tom Brady-to-WR Wes Welker 1-yard TD, making the score 10-7. After another Gostkowski field goal (25 yards), the Patriots took a 13-7 lead at halftime. Early in the third period, Flacco hit TE Dennis Pitta with a 5-yard TD pass, giving Baltimore a 14-13 lead. Flacco was 6 for 9 for 64 yards on the 72-yard scoring drive. The Ravens' defense was stout, forcing the Patriots to punt on both third-quarter possessions, while the offense continued to put points on the board, including Flacco's second TD, a three-yard pass to a leaping WR Anquan Boldin in the back of the end zone early in the fourth quarter. After the Ravens forced a RB Stevan Ridley fumble, Flacco hit Boldin again on an 11-yard toss, giving the Ravens a 28-13 lead and the final margin. Baltimore's defense sealed the game with 2 INTs on New England's final two possessions. The Ravens held Brady to a 62.3 QB rating, his fourth-worst in 24 career postseason games. The Brady-led Pats had been 67-0 at home when leading at halftime.

Before a sellout M&T Bank Stadium crowd that celebrated and saluted LB Ray Lewis in his final home game, the Ravens held the Colts without a touchdown, winning 24-9. Lewis, in his 1seventh and final season after being a first-round pick of the Ravens in 1996, finished with 13 tackles and a pass defensed in his first game since tearing his triceps on Oct. 14. After a scoreless first quarter, Baltimore scored first on a 23-yard K Justin Tucker field goal. The Colts' Adam Vinatieri matched that with a 47-yarder before Ravens FB Vonta Leach made it 10-3 on a 2-yard touchdown power play. Vinatieri's 52-yarder with 50 seconds left in the second quarter made the score 10-6 at the half. QB Joe Flacco, who averaged 23.5 yards per completion in the game, hit TE Dennis Pitta with a 20-yard TD to extend the Ravens' lead to 17-6. Vinatieri's 26-yard FG at the end of the third quarter made it 17-9. The Ravens put the game away when Flacco hit WR Anquan Boldin with an 18-yard TD throw to create the final margin of 24-9. Boldin set a Ravens' playoff record with 145 receiving yards (5 catches). Rookie RB Bernard Pierce, whose 43-yard run set up Baltimore's final TD, rushed for 103 yards on 13 carries (7.9 avg.) RB Ray Rice added 70 yards on 15 carries, helping the Ravens to 172 rushing yards. Rice also had a 47-yard catch and run to set up the game's first TD. Colts rookie QB Andrew Luck threw 54 times, completing 28 for 288 yards with an interception, but could not lead his team to the end zone. WR Reggie Wayne caught 9 for 114, and WR T.Y. Hilton grabbed 8 for 66 more. The Colts did dominate time of possession, holding the ball 37:32 of the game.

The Ravens' Super Bowl hopes came to a devastating end in New England with a 23-20 loss at New England. It came down to Baltimore's final drive in the fourth quarter, when the Ravens had a chance to win or tie the game. But, a Joe Flacco-to-Lee Evans pass fell incomplete, and K Billy Cundiff's last-second 32-yard FG attempt sailed wide left, sealing the victory for New England. The Patriots opened the scoring with a 29-yard K Stephen Gostkowski FG on their second drive of the first quarter. On NE's next possession, CB Lardarius Webb intercepted QB Tom Brady, and the Ravens tied the game early in the second quarter with a 20-yard FG. The Pats answered with a 7-yard RB BenJarvus Green-Ellis TD run, but on their next possession, the Ravens tied the game again with a 6-yard Flacco-to-TE Dennis Pitta TD. The Patriots led 13-10 at the half after the Ravens held them to another FG (35). The Patriots settled again for a 24-yard FG on New England's opening drive of the third quarter, making the score 16-10. Baltimore took the lead (17-16) for the first time in the game when WR Torrey Smith caught a Flacco pass and raced 29 yards down the sideline and dove for the pylon. Baltimore forced a fumble on the ensuing kickoff and capitalized with a 39-yard FG, making the score 20-16. But, Brady, who was intercepted twice, dove on a fourth-and-inches play at the goal-line in the fourth quarter making the score 23-20, which ended up being the final margin. Baltimore, the AFC North champion, turned 2 first-quarter Houston turnovers into TDs on its way to topping the AFC South champions. The Ravens had their playoff run stopped in Pittsburgh with a 31-24 loss to the division rival Steelers. Three third-quarter turnovers proved too costly, and Baltimore couldn't convert a crucial fourth-down pass late in the fourth quarter, sealing the victory for Pittsburgh. After a RB Rashard Mendenhall 1-yard TD run on the Steelers' opening possession, the Ravens scored 21 unanswered points for a 21-7 halftime lead. RB Ray Rice opened the scoring for Baltimore with a 14-yard rushing TD, the third-longest run against Pittsburgh all year. Two plays later, QB Ben Roethlisberger was dropped by OLB Terrell Suggs, who had 3 sacks, and fumbled. The ball was thought to be an incomplete pass, but no whistle blew, and DE Cory Redding picked up the football and ran untouched into the end zone. The Ravens capitalized on another fumble in the second quarter, when LB Dannell Ellerbe popped Mendenhall on Pittsburgh's 16-yard line, and S Ed Reed recovered. That led to a 4-yard pass from QB Joe Flacco to TE Todd Heap for a score. The Ravens nearly took a fourth-quarter lead when CB/RS Lardarius Webb returned a punt 55 yards for a TD, but it was called back by a holding penalty on WR Marcus Smith. Baltimore had to settle for a 24-yard Billy Cundiff FG to knot the score again. Pittsburgh connected for a 58-yard pass play on third-and-19 late in the fourth, which led to the game-winning Mendenhall TD.

K Billy Cundiff added 2 more FGs (29 and 29 yards), and Flacco threw a 4-yard TD toss to WR Anquan Boldin for a 23-7, third-quarter advantage. RB Willis McGahee added a 25-yard TD run in the fourth quarter for the Ravens' final TD. TE Todd Heap was spectacular, catching a career-high 10 passes (108 yards). Boldin and Rice each caught 5 passes, helping Flacco complete 25 of 34 for 265 yards, 2 TDs and a 115.4 QB rating. The Ravens became the NFL's only team to advance to the Divisional round and win a playoff game each of the last three seasons. Baltimore allowed the third-fewest total yards (161) in franchise postseason history, while the 53 net passing yards allowed set a Ravens' record (1fourth fewest in NFL postseason history). The Ravens' 5 take-aways also tied a team playoff record. Baltimore held the ball for 41:44 in the victory.

The Ravens' playoff run came to a halt at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis with a 20-3 defeat to the Colts. Baltimore turned the ball over 4 times, including 2 INTs by Joe Flacco and 2 costly fumbles. The game was tied at 3 until late in the second quarter, but future Hall of Fame QB Peyton Manning drove the Colts and scored on a 10-yard TD pass to rookie WR Austin Collie just before the 2-minute warning. The Ravens went 3-and-out in the next series, which gave Manning enough time to maneuver 64 yards on 8 plays for another 7 points. That score came on a second TD toss, this time to WR Reggie Wayne (3 yards) with 3 seconds remaining, giving the Colts a 17-3 halftime lead. After the Colts opened the game on an opening-drive FG by former Ravens K Matt Stover (44 yards), current Ravens K Billy Cundiff connected on his only FGA (25 yards) on Baltimore's first possession of the game, tying the contest at 3. Neither team could score on their next few drives, until the Manning-to-Collie TD near the end of the second quarter. In the second half, the Ravens were unable to move the ball well against a formidable Colts' defense. A fourth-quarter RB Ray Rice fumble and 2 Flacco INTs in Baltimore's final 2 possessions sealed the Ravens' fate. The Ravens' fifth-ranked rush defense held the Colts to 42 rushing yards in the loss. S Ed Reed recorded his seventh INT in 7 career postseason games when he picked off Manning in the third quarter.

RB Ray Rice ran 83 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage, and the Ravens never looked back in the 33-14 Wild Card victory at New England. And that wasn't all that Baltimore did in the first quarter of its one-sided thumping of the Patriots. Three QB Tom Brady turnovers helped the Ravens push to a 24-0, first-period lead. Brady's first miscue came when OLB Terrell Suggs stripped the Pats' QB of the ball and recovered the fumble, which led to a FB Le'Ron McClain 1-yard TD. CB Chris Carr then intercepted Brady, setting up Rice's second TD (1-yard rush). S Ed Reed intercepted another Brady pass that was followed by a 27-yard Billy Cundiff field goal. A misplayed punt in the second quarter gave the Patriots the start of their lone first-half TD (Brady to WR Julian Edelman, 6 yards). Another Brady INT set up a third-quarter Cundiff FG (23 yards). A second Brady-to-Edelman TD (1 yard) made the score 27-14 after 3 quarters. RB Willis McGahee finished the scoring with a 3-yard TD in the final period. The Ravens rushed 52 times for 234 yards, including 159 (22 carries) by Rice. QB Joe Flacco threw just 10 passes, completing 4. Brady, who was sacked 3 times, was 23-of-42 for 154 yards with a lost fumble and 3 INTs. The Ravens' victory over New England was the Pats' first postseason loss at home since 1978, snaping a streak of 11 consecutive playoff wins at home.

It was a battle of the NFL's top 2 defenses, and Baltimore fought through multiple injuries. S Daren Stone suffered a concussion on the opening kickoff, but returned in the second half. CBs Frank Walker (dislocated shoulder) and Corey Ivy both left briefly before returning. However, RB Willis McGahee was carted off in the fourth quarter because of a helmet-to-helmet shot from S Ryan Clark. After not committing a TO in his first 2 playoff games, QB Joe Flacco threw 3 INTs and lost a fumble. Pittsburgh took a 13-0 lead on 2 Jeff Reed FGs and a 65-yard TD pass from QB Ben Roethlisberger to WR Santonio Holmes. S Jim Leonhard returned a punt 45 yards to the Steelers' 17, which – along with a pass interference call in the end zone – set up McGahee's 3-yard TD run in the second quarter. After another Reed FG, McGahee pulled the Ravens within 2 (16-14 in the fourth quarter) with his second TD. A botched punt from Pittsburgh's P Mitch Berger gave Baltimore the ball at midfield, and another end zone pass interference call led to McGahee's 1-yard TD run. On their ensuing series, the Ravens drove for a go-ahead score, but S Troy Polamalu jumped in front of WR Derrick Mason with 4:24 left and raced 40 yards to paydirt with Flacco's second INT. His last INT – on an attempt over the middle to RB Ray Rice – sealed the outcome with 1:11 remaining.

Two fierce defenses were featured in this hard-fought battle. It wasn't until K Matt Stover's 43-yard FG with :53 left that the outcome was decided. To get there, QB Joe Flacco, who became the NFL's first rookie QB to win 2 playoff games, led a 9-play, 51-yard drive to set up the clinching kick. On their first drive, Titans Pro Bowl RB Chris Johnson took a short pass from Kerry Collins in the left flat for a 28-yard gain. Johnson then scored on an 8-yard TD run. On the ensuing series, Flacco hit WR Derrick Mason for a 48-yard TD bomb. Just before the first half ended, Tennessee marched to the Ravens' 22-yard line, but RB LenDale White was stripped by LB Jarret Johnson, and the Ravens recovered. The Titans tried a 51-yard FG on fourth down instead of punting in the third, and K Rob Bironas pushed it WL. In the fourth, Stover hit a 21-yard FG to make it 10-7. Later, Titans TE Alge Crumpler fumbled on the Ravens' 6-yard line. Tennessee tied the game again after stopping the Ravens and then scored on Bironas' 27-yard FG. The Ravens made the most of their last possession. Flacco completed a 23-yard pass to TE Todd Heap on a critical third-and-2. RB Willis McGahee then made an 11-yard run, and Flacco found WR Mark Clayton for 8 yards to pull within Stover's range. With less than 1:00 remaining, Collins completed 1 pass, but his last 3 attempts fell to the turf.

The Ravens forced 5 turnovers from the Dolphins, who had tied an NFL record with only 13 giveaways in 2008. S Ed Reed snared 2 INTs from QB Chad Pennington, who only threw 7 INTs in the regular season. Reed took his first 64 yards for a TD, the 12th score of his career. Both teams traded FGs before the INTs began accumulating. At 8:56 in the second quarter, S Jim Leonhard returned the first theft of the day 20 yards to Miami's 45-yard line, but the Ravens punted after a 3-and-out. On the following series, Reed ran under a rainbow from Pennington and weaved 64 yards for the TD. Baltimore added another K Matt Stover FG (31 yards) before the first half ended. CB Fabian Washington posted the third INT just after halftime, which resulted in another Ravens 3-and-out. But DT Marques Douglas stripped RB Patrick Cobbs to end the Dolphins' ensuing drive, and LB Terrell Suggs recovered on Miami's 19-yard line. Four plays later, FB Le'Ron McClain, scored from 8 yards out. Reed continued to terrorize Pennington, who drove to Baltimore's 15-yard line when Reed grabbed his second INT at the 8-yard line in the third. The Dolphins closed the margin with a 5-play drive culminating in a TD pass to RB Ronnie Brown, but it wasn't enough to overcome the deficit. The Ravens' offense put the margin out of reach when a 71-yard drive ended with a 5-yard scoring run from QB Joe Flacco.

Despite holding the high-powered Colts' passing attack to only 161 yards, intercepting Peyton Manning twice, and keeping the AFC's top-ranked offense out of the end zone, the Ravens were kicked out of the race to Super Bowl XLI, 15-6. K Adam Vinatieri booted 5 FGs, while Baltimore could only muster 2 in the difficult loss. Steve McNair finished 18-of-29 (173 yards) with a 62.1 completion percentage, the highest in team single-game postseason history. Even though McNair out-dueled Manning, who went 15-of-30 for 170 yards (39.6 rating), the Ravens couldn't bounce back from McNair's 2 INTs. Coming off a 40-yard FG from K Matt Stover that opened the second period, S Ed Reed got his hands on a Manning pass less than a minute later. Down 6-3, McNair drove to the Colts' 4, but was picked off in the end zone. The Baltimore defense came up big, as usual. Each time Manning would march into Ravens territory, the unit clamped down, forcing 5 FGs. The Ravens pressured Manning all game but only managed 1 sack. On another day, this defensive effort might have been enough to defeat the Colts, but this January evening proved to be a different story for the Ravens.

The AFC North Division champion Baltimore Ravens, the youngest team in the 2003 playoffs, lost a hard-fought 20-17 decision to Tennessee in the Wild Card matchup. The game was decided on K Gary Anderson's 46-yard FG with 29 seconds left in the game. The kick came only minutes after the Ravens rallied to tie the contest, thanks to a 9-play, 71-yard journey that ended with a 35-yard TD pass from QB Anthony Wright to TE Todd Heap. On the Titans' ensuing possession, CB Chris McAlister picked off Titans QB Steve McNair, and the Ravens were poised to forge ahead. However, Tennessee held Baltimore's offense to a 3-and-out, and McNair moved the Titans into FG range. Anderson, who also kicked a 45-yarder earlier in the fourth quarter, did the rest. The Ravens intercepted McNair 3 times, including a S Will Demps pick which he returned a postseason franchise-record 56 yards for a TD. K Matt Stover's 43-yard FG in the second quarter put Baltimore ahead 10-7 at halftime, but the Ravens came up just short.

The Ravens' string of consecutive playoff wins was stopped at 5, as the top-seeded Pittsburgh Steelers defeated the defending Super Bowl champs, 27-10. Baltimore's lone TD came in the third quarter when WR/RS Jermaine Lewis raced for an NFL postseason-record 88-yard punt return for a TD to make the score 20-10. But, the Steelers iced the game by driving 83 yards on 12 plays that took almost 6 minutes off the clock, scoring the game's final TD on a Kordell Stewart-to-Plaxico Burress 32-yard pass. The Steelers' defense limited the Ravens to just 7 first downs, 150 total net yards (including only 22 rushing yards) and forced 4 turnovers (including 3 INTs of QB Elvis Grbac). LB Chad Scott picked off Grbac on his first pass attempt and returned the ball 19 yards to the Ravens' 43. Early on, the Steelers managed only a FG by K Kris Brown for a quick 3-0 lead. After forcing a Ravens' punt that gave Pittsburgh possession at the 49-yard line, Stewart led his troops on a 7-play, 51-yard drive that was capped by a 1-yard run from RB Amos Zereoue for a 10-0 Steelers lead. The Steelers scored 10 points in the second quarter on another Zereoue 1-yard run and a 46-yard boot by Brown to extend their lead to 20-0.

The Ravens dominated the Miami Dolphins, 20-3, and became the only team in NFL history to win their first 5 postseason games. Miami's only points came on an Olindo Mare 33-yard FG after the Ravens' WR/RS Jermaine Lewis fumbled the opening kickoff. After Miami jumped to the quick 3-0 lead, the Ravens started a 90-yard drive with 4 passes in 5 plays, and then 11 runs on the next 12 plays, ending with a Terry Allen 4-yard TD burst. Neither team scored again in the first half. Miami P Matt Turk placed a punt at the Ravens' 1-yard line midway through the third quarter, but QB Elvis Grbac hit WR Travis Taylor on a 4-yard TD to cap a 99-yard drive. Taylor helped set up his own TD with a 45-yard grab from Grbac on third-and-1, and a 15-yard reverse on a second-and-6. LB Peter Boulware forced a Jay Fiedler fumble that was recovered by DT Sam Adams early in the fourth quarter, which led to a Matt Stover 35-yard FG for a 17-3 lead. On Miami's next possession, CB Duane Starks intercepted Fiedler's pass that bounced off the shoulder of WR James McKnight to thwart a Dolphins' scoring threat and set up Stover's second FG.

The Ravens won Super Bowl XXXV with a 34-7 victory over the New York Giants. The Ravens allowed the Giants just 152 total net yards (third-fewest in Super Bowl history), and NY crossed midfield just twice. Baltimore's "D" tied a Super Bowl record with 4 INTs. The Ravens also became just the third Super Bowl team in NFL history to not commit a turnover. Baltimore opened the scoring with a Trent Dilfer-to-Brandon Stokley 38-yard TD. Ravens K Matt Stover kicked a 47-yard FG with 1:48 left in the second quarter. CB Duane Starks put Baltimore ahead 17-0 in the third quarter when he raced 49 yards after an INT. On the kickoff, Giants RS Ronnie Dixon raced 97 yards to put the Giants on the board, 17-7. Not to be outdone, Baltimore's WR/RS Jermaine Lewis took the Giants' ensuing kickoff and tight-roped down the Ravens' sideline for an 84-yard TD. The 3 scores in 3 consecutive plays set a Super Bowl record, and the back-to-back KOR-TDs were also a record. RB Jamal Lewis (27 carries for 102 yards) scored from 3 yards out on a play that was reviewed and upheld by instant replay to give the Ravens a 31-7 lead. Stover kicked his second FG to complete the scoring with 5:27 on the clock.

The Ravens advanced to the AFC Championship game with a gutsy 24-10 win at Tennessee. The Titans lost only 2 games in 2 years on their home turf – both to the Ravens in 2000. The opportunistic Ravens scored 2 fourth-quarter TDs on returns to break a 10-10 tie. S Anthony Mitchell raced 90 yards for a score after DT Keith Washington blocked a 37-yard FG attempt by K Al Del Greco, his second blocked FG of the game. LB Ray Lewis then intercepted a pass by QB Steve McNair and raced 50 yards for a TD to seal the 24-10 win. The Titans opened the game with an 11-play, 68-yard drive that ended with a 2-yard Eddie George rushing TD. The Ravens tied the game, 7-7, when RB Jamal Lewis scored on a 1-yard TD that was set up by TE Shannon Sharpe's 56-yard reception from QB Trent Dilfer. Titans WR Chris Coleman blocked a Kyle Richardson punt, giving Tennessee the ball on the Ravens' 25 with 1:44 left in the half, but Del Greco's 31-yard FGA hit the left upright.

The Ravens advanced to the AFC Divisional Round with a dominating 21-3 win over the Broncos. Denver entered the game with the NFL's second-ranked offense and a 7-game postseason winning streak, but the Ravens' defense permitted just 1 TD, 177 total net yards and 9 first downs. The Broncos' 3 points scored were the fewest they've scored since 1992. The Baltimore defense recorded 5 sacks and the Broncos crossed midfield just once during the game. Ravens RB Jamal Lewis scored 2 TDs. Lewis' first TD came on a 1-yard dive to complete a 10-play, 75-yard drive. His second score came in the third quarter on a 27-yard burst where he broke 3 tackles. QB Trent Dilfer completed 9 of 14 passes for 130 yards, with 1 TD and no INTs. In the second, Dilfer flipped a swing pass to Lewis, but the ball glanced off him and into the hands of TE Shannon Sharpe, who raced 58 yards down the sideline to give Baltimore a 14-3 halftime lead.

RAVENS SEASON REVIEW PRESS CONFERENCE

Owner Steve Bisciotti, President Dick Cass,
General Manager/Executive Vice President Ozzie Newsome & Head Coach John Harbaugh

Last offseason was filled with talk of getting a contract deal done with Joe Flacco. How much talk was there during the season, and how close are you to a deal with Joe? (Joe Platania)
(OZZIE NEWSOME) "We did, prior to the start of the season, get very close to a deal, but we did not come to an agreement. It was a decision by [Flacco's agent] Joe Linta, [vice president of football administration] Pat [Moriarty], Joe Flacco and I that we would stop negotiating once the season started. Everybody was on board with that, and we would allow the season to play itself out. Joe had the opportunity to sit down and talk with Steve [Bisciotti] during the season, early in the season, about it a little bit. But, basically, the way we left it with the four of us is, 'OK, we didn't get a deal done. Let's play through the season, and once the season is over, we'll start back negotiating.'"

(STEVE BISCIOTTI) "I will add that when I spoke with Joe, it was August, I think we might have been in the preseason already, because they had shut down the negotiations, and all I wanted to do was to make sure that he was comfortable with that and that it wouldn't be a distraction. He assured me that it wouldn't. Obviously, they had an impasse, so I said: 'We will leave it to your agent and Ozzie, and as long as you don't think it will be a distraction, then I'm good to go.'"

With the Super Bowl behind you, the calendar moves forward, and it's time to focus on the offseason and next season. How important is it to create organizational priorities quickly moving forward? (Gerry Sandusky)
(NEWSOME) "It's very important. You could say we are five weeks behind the league. But, I will take being five weeks behind the league every year. (laughter) But, we've started already. We had a great personnel meeting yesterday. The coaches were very candid. We must have talked [about] between 70 and 75 players yesterday. So, that laid the foundation. Pat [Moriarty] and I have been meeting all morning. We'll meet this afternoon, and we are preparing ourselves to go down to Florida this weekend where we will sit down – Dick, John, Pat, [assistant general manager] Eric [DeCosta], Steve and I – and we will talk through all the scenarios, just as we have done in the past two to three years. And then we fast forward. As soon as I get back, we are right in the draft meetings. So, it is full speed ahead, but I think with the people that we have in place who are in charge of different areas, we will be able to move through it very smoothly."

(BISCIOTTI) "By the way, thank you for letting me have off for the parade on Tuesday. (laughter) That was very kind of you. After yesterday, we went right back into those meetings – about eight hours' worth – and I drove home last night thinking, 'He is a tough boss, man. He didn't give me one day to enjoy this.'" (laughter)

Do you feel from a salary cap standpoint, regardless of whether Joe Flacco is signed or franchised, you will be able to retain some of your players, or are you prepared to lose a lot of free agents because of the realities of the salary cap? (Aaron Wilson)
(NEWSOME) "First of all, we will discuss all of that this weekend, and we will come up with our priorities as to how we are going to go about building the roster for 2013. But, we do realize that, starting with Joe, because at some point in the middle of February we've got to make a decision whether it's the franchise tag or not. But, we will put our priorities together once we all get together, get down there in Jupiter [Florida] and have a chance to vent a little bit between us. But, we'll come up with a plan."

Have you decided about the size of the Super Bowl ring and how many people in the building will receive them? (Jerry Coleman)
(BISCIOTTI) "All the reporters. (laughter) [Players and coaches] wanted white gold instead of gold. We talked in the locker room while we were preparing for the parade, and that was the only question I asked. I said we are going to start working on the design. [Senior vice president of public and community relations] Kevin [Byrne] said to get your ring size, send it in, go to any jeweler. And I said to the guys, 'Do you want yellow gold or white gold?' I heard a lot of white gold. That was my preference, too, so we have no idea what the design will be."

(DICK CASS) "Steve has assured me that he is going to design a ring that I will never wear." (laughter)

Did the Art Modell Hall of Fame snub come up in any way on Saturday night? Did you talk with any of the players before the game about it and did it galvanize the team in any way? (Drew Forrester)
(JOHN HARBAUGH) "No, in conversation here and there it did, but not as a team. It wasn't something [we talked about]. We were focused on the game. It was all about football. There was really nothing that came up besides football. [Senior advisor to player development] O.J.

[Brigance] actually talked to our team Sunday at 11 a.m. We had a team meeting, and he spoke briefly, just had a quick message, and it was all about football. And, it was all about football."

Knowing you will not have the same team back next season, are you confident that the young players will be a big help in moving the team forward? (David Ginsburg)
(HARBAUGH) "That's a great point. The fact that so many guys got so much experience and played well, they've gotten a taste of it. They understand what it's like to play in big games. That's got to help us going forward."

After the 2000 Super Bowl win, you tried to keep the team together and it became a tough salary cap situation. Will that experience play into what you might do this year, even though the salary cap seems like it will go up in 2014? (Stan White)
(NEWSOME) "Yes. We will not repeat what we did in 2001, because we are trying to build where we can win Super Bowls more than just one more time. But, I think our team is structured differently this time also. We do have some veterans that will probably be retiring, but we have a great nucleus of young players. [We have] players who are just hitting into their prime that we are going to build this team around. But, we are not going to be restructuring contracts and do all of those different things to be able just to maintain this team to make another run. We're not doing that. But, all that being said, John and I have talked about it, and we have talked to the coaches, [and] that doesn't mean that we don't want to try to go and repeat."

(CASS) "By the way, the cap is not expected to go up dramatically in 2014. The cap this year is going to be roughly $121 million. It should not be much more than $122 million in 2014."

Is there a big benefit of signing Joe Flacco in the next two weeks so you don't have to franchise tag him, keep the salary cap number manageable and possibly saving a couple guys' jobs with the reality of the cap? (Albert Breer)
(NEWSOME) "We're looking to get a fair deal with Joe. And yes, the franchise number does consume a lot of cap room. But, we are looking for a fair deal, Joe Linta is looking for a fair deal, and if we are able to get a deal done, it will allow us to participate more in the market, if we so choose. But, we understand what the priority is."

John, you are very hesitant to answer reflective-type questions during the season. Now that you've won the Super Bowl, have you had a chance to reflect on things, and what are your thoughts on what you've accomplished? (Mark Zinno)
(HARBAUGH) "No, I haven't. It's like Steve said: The parade was amazing, and then Ozzie had us in there for 10 hours yesterday grinding. In all seriousness, it's really amazing. It's a wonderful thing. I'm proud of our guys beyond belief, our organization – from top to bottom and sideways – and everybody involved. Every face you see, you know, you want to give them a big hug and thank them. That's really what it boils down to. And guys go back to work. We talk to our team about, 'We've got to improve.' We have to get better next year as a football team, just like we always do. That's going to be our goal. And Jah Reid is in the weight room lifting right now as we speak. So, that's what we will be all about going forward."

John, going into next season, you guys are defending World Champions and are going to have a target on your back. But, you're also going to be missing an amazing player in Ray Lewis. How much more difficult will your job be next year without Ray Lewis being able to help coach on the field? (Kris Jones)
(HARBAUGH) "I don't think it's in terms of difficult. Every season is different. I don't really believe in the defending champ thing. It's not boxing. They don't give you a belt, and you fight for the title. We were the champions. The 2012 NFL champions were the Baltimore Ravens. Next year's champion depends on who plays the best, who handles adversity the best, who comes out on top. We'll fight for that championship just like we fought for the last one and everyone we'll fight for thereafter. Every season is different. Every season poses different challenges. This was different than the one before that. With Ray being gone, that'll be different, but our guys are up to the task. Our guys are just the men for the job, and I can't wait to get started."

Steve, when the franchise passed from Art Modell to you, you've been charged with all the changes, and it's your organization. Can you break down the three to five top decisions you made or didn't make that led to the Lombardi Trophy? (Nestor Aparicio)
(BISCIOTTI) "Geez. Hiring him. (pointing to Harbaugh) I don't have a list of three or five. I haven't done that much. (laughing) Look around, with Ozzie and Eric and [senior vice president of public and community relations] Kevin Byrne. Kevin doesn't get nearly as much credit as a confidant to all of us. He should be the fifth guy up here, really. I rely on Ozzie and John to counsel to me through the football stuff. I rely on Dick and Kevin to counsel me through the business side. Other than that, as you guys know, this place hasn't changed much. There is not much that I can hang my hat on. I'm happy that I had that window of four years to see that we had such a quality organization and then be able to maintain it. So really, other than replacing the head coach, that's about the only major decision I've made in all these years, unless you can come up with something that I did. I am willing to accept credit for anything else you can throw out there." (laughing)

What about player and football decisions on draft day and signing free agents that you are brought into in some way? (Nestor Aparicio)
(BISCIOTTI) "I love being closer to the decision than all the fans and all the reporters, because I get to hear these guys out and see what they like. Eric and I are on the phone all the time, because he (pointing to Newsome) stops taking my calls. (laughter) But, personnel decisions, Eric will tell me, 'Look at this guy. Watch this guy. Watch this guy.' And I do. So when leading up to draft, when they send me players to look at, I look at, and I sit there and tell them why I think we could do better with this guy over that guy if they are even. But, I remember going back to 2002 when the top two guys left on the board were Lito Sheppard and Ed Reed. We had Ed Reed above Lito, and I said to Ozzie, 'I don't understand this. If they both have the same grade, why would you not take a corner over a safety? It seems like that's a more important position.' Ozzie said, 'Because I am true to my board.' We took Ed Reed instead of Lito Sheppard, so I kind of learned from that point on that I better not engage too much and try and alter their decision-making, or else we would have had Lito."

Steve, having achieved great success in business and now being at the pinnacle of the NFL, what is your personal philosophy about maintaining a drive and hunger to continue to succeed and do it again? (Mark Viviano)
(BISCIOTTI) "Ozzie kind of spoke on it. We are not going to get caught up in the moment and do things to our salary cap and make decisions in the euphoria of winning that could hurt us in 2014 and 2015, like we did in 2001. Every single veteran was restructured, I think, so that every single veteran could stay, and then we ended up losing so many people the next year [in 2002]. We don't want to do that. You have to make sure that the excitement of the day doesn't cloud what we promise to build, and that was a consistent winner. I am just proud for Baltimore, and there is a great pressure off of us. This is what we work for, and you know as you get closer that it's like, 'If we don't get it this time …' We felt that way last year. We have to get to it this time when we went up to New England, and we were devastated when we lost because we know how hard it is to get back there. Pittsburgh won two Super Bowls, and then didn't make the playoffs the next year. So, we're going to try and do that. We're going to try and build a consistent winner. We've got this one in the bank. Like John said, you can never take it away from us. I'm just proud for Baltimore for everybody that gets to bask in this."

Ozzie, before the season, you hired Sandy Weil to do statistical analysis. What were the benefits of that, and how does the front office weigh what he's passing along against what you guys are seeing with your own eyes? (Matt Vensel)
(NEWSOME) "That's still a work in progress. What he had to do was to come in and understand the football business part of it and then to mesh that with the analytical aspects of what he could bring. But, what we've been concentrating [on] is he tried to help John and [defensive quality control coach] Matt Weiss through some things this offseason, but his main objective was to gather all of the information that we have over the last seven or eight years, compile it, and see what that information is going to present to us. We'll be looking at some of that information as we move toward the draft."

Ozzie, how much of a priority will it be this offseason to address the left tackle position long term, and did Bryant McKinnie's play in the postseason make him a more viable option to keep moving forward? (Luke Jones)
(NEWSOME) "I think the thing that we found out this season is that we have probably about eight or nine offensive linemen with starter potential that were able to go in and play very good football for us. So, I think you start with [the fact] that we have good depth. 'B-Mac' [McKinnie] is a free agent. I think the way he played down the stretch against [Colts DE Dwight] Freeney, against [Broncos OLB Elvis] Dumervil and then against [49ers OLB] Aldon Smith, I think it makes a statement for him. I think he has a decision to make as to whether he wants to come back and play here. But, I think we like our young guys. I think [run game coordinator] Juan Castillo is going to be a great addition to our staff. He is known for helping and developing young players. So, I feel very good about our offensive line. If you look at the point, you're saying left tackle … But [Broncos OLB] Von Miller plays on the left side, and he has to go up against the right. So right now, it's not a right tackle-left tackle thing. You have to have the ability to be able to hold up whether you're playing on either side."

For any of the guys, can you talk about the first time that it entered your mind after Sunday night that you first thought about a repeat? (Ryan Mink)
(HARBAUGH) "I haven't thought about it yet. The word repeat means nothing. You go back to work. You sink the pilings deep. You do the same thing you do every year, and we're going to try to sink our pilings deep into bedrock again this year, starting, really, this week already, the day after the game. And we just go back to work."

John, earlier in the season we asked you about a solution to the helmet-to-helmet issues, the fine problems. You spoke out against it earlier in the year. Now that it's all over, I wanted to get your thoughts on how all of that can be rectified. Is it as simple as telling guys to lower the target? Or are these helmet-to-helmet shots unavoidable? (Robert Klemko)
(HARBAUGH) "It's not that simple. If it were, it'd be corrected. It's complicated. The helmet-to-helmet shots on defenseless receivers, there are varying levels of it. There are shades there. 'Fifty Shades of Grey …' Is that a book or something I heard about somewhere along the way? (laughter) I haven't read it. I haven't had time to do much reading. But, there is a lot of grey there. I know the Competition Committee is going to go to work on that and will have something to try to just clean it up and clear it up a little bit as best we can. Safety is here to stay – it's really important. Protecting guys and making the game as safe as we can is going to be very important."

(BISCIOTTI) "Wait until he finds out what it ['Fifty Shades of Grey'] is about." (laughter)

Both of you guys and Ozzie mentioned player development a little bit and depth – John, the faith that you have in your coaching staff to develop the players, Oz, the faith you have in your scouts. A couple of years ago you cut the cord with Derrick [Mason] and Kelly Gregg and Todd [Heap]. A lot of people around here said it was wide-spread panic almost, because they thought you were rebuilding. You have been able to maintain an unbelievable level of achievement since then with player development and scouting. Can you talk about the faith you have in that system that you've put together now when you have to make some tough calls? (Keith Mills)
(NEWSOME) "I would say it in two different ways: I think the key to any team's success year-in and year-out is the depth that they have on their football team. That's what John and I – we discuss on a daily basis of the depth. The depth goes all the way to our practice squad, having those guys and having those guys practice. But what combines it are our coaches having the ability to develop the players, spend the extra time with them and stand out on the field with them, getting them extra reps. We did something this year in training camp, and I think it was a little taxing, but it was very good. John split up the practices, and he had the young guys on one field and the veteran guys on the other field. Therefore, we didn't have to stay out there for three hours, but we had guys getting reps. Those reps, I think, paid dividends for us, because I don't know how many reps Chykie Brown took during that time, but if we would have just had a conventional practice, he wouldn't have gotten as many. I think I realized and John realized the importance of depth. But John and his coaches and our staff – my personnel staff – we realized that the development of players is an ultimate thing that we have to do."

(HARBAUGH) "I concur. The thing that we have here that is probably pretty unique around the National Football League – this is something that Steve doesn't take much credit for anything – but what he has laid is an organizational structure where everybody works together. There really aren't clear lines of demarcation between people – scouts and coaches work together. Front office and coaches and scouts work together. Everybody is involved with one another. It's not like … We are all responsible for our areas, but we all seek help. I can walk into [director of pro personnel] Vince Newsome's office at any time and just ask him what he thinks and how we are bringing along a player or something along those lines. That's just huge for us. I know that all of the scouts feel the same way. Ozzie and I do it all the time, but it's not just us two. It's not just Steve and Dick or Kevin; it's everybody throughout the whole organization. It's just interwoven together. To me, that's the key to any success that we have."

Steve, could you talk about the coaching job that John did this year, especially in terms of all the challenges that the team had to overcome? (Kevin Cowherd)
(BISCIOTTI) "It goes back to all the coaches. We did have a lot of injuries, but they were marquee players, and we got Ray [Lewis] and [Terrell] Suggs back quicker than we thought. We didn't know if we would get them back at all. [It was a] masterful job, but I think that it's not a mosaic, really. It's just every day he comes in and he talks with Ozzie, and they make the right decisions. It goes back to having those young players capable of stepping up. What I commend John for is that he spends a lot of time one-on-one with these guys. The 52nd guy on the roster is just as likely to be in a one-on-one meeting with John as Ray Lewis is. From an organizational standpoint, John understands that those guys on the bottom 15 – if you will – could be in at any given moment, so he spends an inordinate amount of time with the guys – the second half of the roster – so that he understands them. He has a real one-on-one relationship with them, and when it comes time to put them in, he knows what their strengths and weaknesses are. You can't run a business by talking in front of a group. John spends the majority of his time in one-on-one meetings, and I think it's the right way to run a business."

Ozzie, have you talked to Ed Reed yet, and when have you kind of planned to address the situation? (Jeff Zrebiec)
(NEWSOME) "No, not officially, but unofficially, we've had conversations. He's representing himself still. I don't know if he has an agent. I think he wanted to let some time clear. At that point, he and I will sit down. I think he realizes there may be some other options out there, but I think if you watched him and watched his body language over the course of the last eight to 10 days, that he loves being here in Baltimore. I think we can use that to help make that relationship last a little bit longer."

First of all, congratulations to all four of you. My question is for Steve and Dick: What does winning do to the brand, and conversely, how do you as businessmen – from that side – how do you monetize that brand moving forward? (Stan Charles)
(BISCIOTTI) "We are monetizing – that's our job. We monetize every year. I don't think … We've had shockingly little difference in tickets being renewed every year. It literally fluctuates between 99.5 percent and 98.1 percent when we went 5-11 or we made the playoffs. It's not that big of a deal. Will sponsors be more inclined to get on us? Yes, but it's not that big of a money-making operation. I think that it's really just about what you are delivering and the pride associated with the brand. And it does, and we should be, able to monetize. When so much of our money comes from the national level, it doesn't make that much of a difference. We aren't going to see a huge spike in revenue because we won a Super Bowl. All I know is that the softness of that potential is hardened now. I think that we'll see less turnover. We will see more teams – more companies – signing up with us. I don't think it's going to make that much of a difference when it comes right down to it."

(CASS) "I do think it helps the brand in the sense that it strengths our brand. It deepens our legacy in this region and probably a little bit more around the country. That doesn't result in more dollars, but it makes us a more valuable franchise. People look at us in a different light. It is very difficult … We have won now two Super Bowls in 13 years. That is very difficult to do. New England has won three during that period. No one else was won more than two. Two other teams have won two. I think that really deepens our legacy. You try to think about how many people in this region were watching that Super Bowl game and how many were children and how many will always remember that win and will forever be Ravens fans. That's what I think is most important in terms of the win for us. It's building our fan base, having more and more fans think highly of the Ravens as an organization. That's something that will stick with us and live beyond this year."

Steve, this is for you. You saw people on video, probably, of people literally trying to break into the stadium during the event. Obviously, everyone around you wants a piece of this team now. I'd like to get your impression from the fans' point of view of how this first training camp here went in terms of the lottery and everything. Do you expect a similar structure – the three offsite practices, or have you looked ahead at that yet? (Bo Smolka)
(BISCIOTTI) "No, I haven't thought about it, but we aren't going backwards. I can assure you. We did those three, and we want that interaction, so I'll push John to do a fourth one. Logistically, it's hard, but we aren't going backwards."

(CASS) "I think we should commit to three, maybe." (laughter)

(BISCIOTTI) "That's all I committed to is three. I said I'll work on him on the other." (laughter)

(HARBAUGH) "His powers of persuasion are pretty renowned." (laughter)

During the three-game losing streak and the 1-4 finish, how concerned were you? Was there ever a moment in there when you thought it was slipping away? (Peter Schmuck)
(NEWSOME) "I engage in conversation with John two, three times a day. I think that is the strength of our relationship. So during that time, he and I were in constant conversation. And John knows, I am out at practice, I watch every practice tape. He tells me what the game plan is, and I have an understanding of that. So he and I were able to sit there and talk through it, but we never lost sight of what the goal was. The goal was to win the division, and even though we were struggling, we were still one game ahead, two games ahead. We needed to win one game to win the division. So, we never lost focus on what our first goal was. We never lost focus on that, but we also were able to sit there through all of that time, watching practice, and watching the practice tape, and interacting with each other and the players, and to realize that this thing could turn around and turn around very huge. It happened that way."

(BISCIOTTI) "It is a blur to me, because you guys get to write about it all week, and we turn around and start worrying about the next opponent the next day. So a three-game losing streak really didn't register to me, because like Ozzie said, we weren't losing ground. I think Pittsburgh was losing at the time, too. So, we were just kind of counting our blessings there at that point. But, the whole idea of being hot … It was up to last week that everyone kept saying we had lost four of our last five and all of this. They were picking and choosing what they want to do, because we lost three, and then we turned around in a must-win game and beat up the Giants pretty good at home. That got us clinched, and it got us the ability to rest our starters. Then we lost to Cincinnati, and they came up with this: 'They lost the last four of their five. They have no momentum going in.' To me, that is ridiculous. Interestingly enough, they kept talking about it and talking about it forever, and yesterday I read a report that said every single team in the last seven years has lost three of their last six games. So, they build up this big thing that we can't win because we are losing, and then once we overcome … Everyone said we weren't hot going into the playoffs; we kind of thought we were. So we looked at the whole season and thought that we were getting healthier and getting better. So, we are looking at it from the inside out and not the outside in, and we really believed that we were getting better and healthier. So, there really wasn't a lot of panic. When you get to rest your starters in the last week, that is a good thing. So no, we are much more even keel than the public is. That is all I can tell you, and we have to be."

Ozzie, I know you kind of talked about going through that first process like the personnel meetings. As you look at it in the early phases, what did you see as the biggest need heading into this offseason? (Garrett Downing) (NEWSOME) "We talked about it – the middle of the defense. We think we have to get better at defensive tackle. We know that one linebacker is retiring and another on is a free agent. We have a safety that is a free agent, and some young guys that have yet to step up. So, we would say the middle of the defense is probably the one area that we will concentrate on. But in saying that, we realize that pass rushers and guys that can cover, we felt pretty good about that. We still would need an elite pass rusher to match the guys that we have. But when we talked through it, we felt very good about it. We have guys out on the edges that can cover, and cover with the best of them. We have guys that can set the edge and have some potential to rush the passer. Offensively, we will not turn down a good player if that player is available for us on the offensive side of the ball. We just won't do it, because you can never have enough depth. We got to a point in the last two or three weeks where Anthony [Allen] and Bernard Pierce were both hurt, and we didn't know if they were going to be able to play in the game. So we continually look for quality depth, so that when we are having issues like that, we don't have to panic or we don't have to do something drastic."

Steve, if you have to go the franchise [tag] route with Joe [Flacco], would you anticipate him being present in the offseason and up until training camp if that's the route that has to be done? (Brett Hollander)
(NEWSOME) "I don't know; I don't know the answer to that. Right now, the offseason doesn't start until April 10, so everything is pushed back now with the new CBA [Collective Bargaining Agreement]. But, I do know that Joe has a very good relationship with [offensive coordinator] Jim Caldwell. And, it was amazingly nice to hear how Jim said yesterday in our meeting that anytime he asked Joe to show up, he showed up. So, that relationship is there, and I think Joe and Jim will be able to maintain their relationship while Pat, Joe Linta and I and Steve negotiate a deal, and I think that is huge."

I wanted to ask you a question about the franchise tag. I assume you won't tell us which level you would put on with Joe – the high one where you keep him, or the lower one where you could lose him to two first-round picks. Could you tell us how that whole process works – whether or not you put him with the low one, the team would just give up their two-consecutive first-rounders? When you've done it in the past, which route did you go with Haloti [Ngata] and [Terrell] Suggs and guys like that and whether or not teams historically have lost players at all if they went the route where they could lose them to two first-rounders? (Steve Davis)
(NEWSOME) "You kind of explained it yourself. If you put the low tender, it's two first-round picks, and I don't know if any team did. But what you have to look at is what the Redskins did this past year to move up to get Robert Griffin III. If someone thinks that a quarterback is that valuable, then I am sure you can talk to [Washington Redskins general manager] Bruce [Allen] or [Washington Redskins head coach] Mike [Shanahan] and [Washington Redskins owner] Mr. [Dan] Snyder and [that] they are very happy with RG3 right now, and they don't mind not having those draft picks. I can't monitor or I don't know what 31 other teams are doing, so we have to prepare ourselves for it. Then, we also know what the exclusive tag does. It puts him out [of contact], where it basically takes him off the market. Those are some of the things we will talk about. But, I am coming away today thinking that we can get a deal done. We got deals done [Haloti] Ngata, J.O. [Jonathan Ogden], Ray [Lewis], Ray Rice, Ed Reed – we have got big-time – [Terrell] Suggs … I have a very good owner who understands the business. He understands the importance of certain positions, so I am optimistic. Which tag we will use? We don't know, but we will be prepared for either scenario."

With Ray retiring, we know he has plans to go watch his son, maybe do television. Are there any plans that he would be around to be a coach? Have you talked to him, or even a tutor, just to be around and help? (Brent Harris)
(HARBAUGH) "All of the guys that have played here come back often. Talk to players, and they are always welcome. Of course, Ray would be no less than that. We have talked about it. He knows he is always welcome. He has not expressed an interest to coach. I have asked him, and he is not interested. But we have talked about it. Ray is iconic. He is going to be so many amazing and powerful things, and he is excited about those things."

How is Haloti [Ngata] doing? Is he doing OK? Is Jameel McClain making progress? (Aaron Wilson)
(HARBAUGH) "There is nothing serious with Haloti. There are some things in there, we will just have to see, but it won't be anything that should keep him out of training camp or anything like that. Jameel [McClain], we are still looking at Jameel, but I am very optimistic based off of what Ozzie shared with us yesterday. We are very optimistic about that."

Ozzie, you had mentioned a couple of players that are retiring – plural. Other than Ray [Lewis], are there other players that you have an idea or voiced that they may not be coming back? (Jeff Zrebiec)
(NEWSOME) "Not officially."

You have said that Joe [Flacco] is the priority. You hope it gets done. If it does, who becomes next? (Morgan Adsit)
(NEWSOME) "That is, when we will take the time for the tag? Oh, if we get a deal done with Joe, we will not franchise another player. We will not do that. You are OK with that, right?" (looking to and asking Bisciotti)

(BISCIOTTI) "Absolutely." (laughter)

Steve, can you just talk about what you saw from Joe Flacco this year and the progress that he made? (Ryan Mink)
(BISCIOTTI) "You know, I think John is better off explaining that, but I saw a guy just maturing the way we would expect him to mature. We were sitting here last year, and I said the same thing. A husband, a father, a familiarity with what we're asking him to do – all those things work in his favor. And I said last year, I didn't expect him to change, and he is who he is. And his demeanor, we're very comfortable with. We don't need a screamer. And I said that I believe that the fans will be rewarded because of Joe's demeanor, and Joe will be appreciated for it if he wins. And we believe he's going to continue to win. So, Joe proved that you can win being like Joe. We're thrilled, because we never thought we needed to change the way Joe was, like some of you all or like some of our fans [wanted]. Now, he gets to say I told you so. So, you can be like Joe, and you can win. I told the national [reporters] after the Super Bowl that night … I said [Flacco] went to the 'Eli Manning School of Disrespect.' They gave Eli the same business, and now he's got two Super Bowls and Peyton [Manning] has got one. So, we'll let Joe do it his way."

Dick, have you had a chance with your staff to talk about Tuesday – the celebration? The good, maybe some of the things that didn't go as well, or maybe just in hindsight … If you create sort of a folder to say, "Hopefully we do this again next year. Here's the good and the things we can improve on." (Drew Forrester)
(CASS) "The good was just the energy of the crowd, the size of the crowds. I've never seen anything like that. I don't think any of us had seen anything like that. I don't think any NFL team had had a celebration quite like that, with that type of crowd, as large as it was, both on the streets and in the stadium. So, it was amazing, and I know our players were moved by it, deeply moved by it. I think with the benefit of hindsight, we did not anticipate the size of that crowd. I don't think the police anticipated the size of that crowd. I think the police did an extraordinarily good job of controlling the crowd and avoiding any major safety issues. So, I think they are to be applauded for that. I think in the future, if we had to do it again, we would have a ticketed event at the stadium. They would be free tickets, but we would hand out tickets so people would know they could get into the stadium. If you didn't have a ticket, you couldn't go. I think that was probably the major potential safety issue. Next time we do this, we'll know better."

You guys are always mindful about not putting things on the credit card as far as cap goes, and you've already mentioned that you're not going to re-do a bunch of deals just to repeat, but there is availability for cap space, specifically with some of your larger-ticket players. How do you balance the not credit card versus not much cap space? (Glenn Younes)
(NEWSOME) "I think over the course of the last two years, we've probably re-done two deals – [Marshal] Yanda last year. The only time we consider restructuring guys' deals is [if] there is a player that comes available that we think has great value and is worth us restructuring a deal to get it done. But it also, it has to be a player that we think has a pretty good chance of playing out his contract, because that's when you get in trouble, if you restructure a deal then all the sudden that player's abilities fall off the cliff, and you have to let him go. Then you have to eat all that acceleration right away. But we are of the mind right now … I think with the way John and his coaches develop players, the way Eric and Vince and [senior personnel assistant] George [Kokinis] and those guys go out and collect players, that we've got a good nucleus of young players that are still under their first contracts, that it's going to allow us not to have to be able to do that. But, that's something that we will talk about, and if there is a dynamic player out there, then there are a couple of guys that we could go to. But that's, so far, that's probably a last resort for us."

(BISCIOTTI) "And, I will say that we're more apt to create space to get a few really good veterans for small amounts. That's how Ozzie ends up putting the icing on our cake every year, is that we end up getting those guys like [Corey] Graham and people like that, that don't cost a ton. So we know, in order to fill a roster with professionals, while we're waiting on the young guys to develop, that that last $7 million that we have left is probably better spent on three veterans instead of one dynamic player. And so, I'm more open to that when it comes to creating cap room, because he's done such a good job with the last guys we put on the roster in the last couple years, like McKinnie and Corey Graham and people like that. So, that to me is not being risky, it's being prudent, and we're going to see high-priced guys getting cut. I think it started a couple days ago. You all know them – some of the guys out there. And their team wanted to keep them. They just couldn't. And [reporters] went and talked about two years ago when we let [Todd] Heap and [Derrick] Mason and Kelley Gregg go. That stands out because maybe, it stands out to you or some of the fans, but we were just as drastic last year. We let Haruki [Nakamura] go. We let [Tom] Zbikowski go. We let Cory Redding go. We let Jarret Johnson go. We let a Pro Bowl Ben Grubbs go. We don't have the money for all of them, and the two safeties went and got starting jobs with Carolina and the Colts. So, we have to have guys ready to go, and that's what we do. We've proven it two years in a row that we can kind of shock the world and disappoint our fans at the same time, by letting some of these guys go, but letting young guys fill in and then going out and getting good values on the free agent market."

Steve, a couple years ago you sat up here and you said that you wanted to model yourself after the Steelers, because they had had so much success. Is it fair to wipe that off the table now, and are you hoping that other franchises will model themselves after the Ravens? (Mark Zinno) (BISCIOTTI) "I think they do to a small degree. When you look at the ones that are winning – something like eight years in a row with the AFC in the Super Bowl, [the conference] was represented by New England, Pittsburgh and the Colts. So, we admire all those organizations and we're always looking to steal from each other. This is a best practices-type of business. You look at the way they handle things – continuity of staff – they all have that same thing. Look at those three teams that represented us for eight years; they all have that, they all have continuity. They have [general managers] that have been around for a long time, they've got stable ownership, they've got stable coaching. They wanted [New York Giants head coach] [Tom] Coughlin's head for two years before he won two Super Bowls, so yeah, that's what we talked about – the brand. We now have two [Super Bowls] in 13 years, and we're one of the handful. So, that's our job, to keep winning. Get us a chance to win. The two seed didn't do us as much good [in 2011] as the four seed did us this year. [But you must] get in the tournament. We say that, and other people take that as, 'That's not good enough.' But you have to be there. We don't want to repeat – we want to be one of the 12 teams that has a chance to win every year. And if you think that we can build this up to try and repeat, it's fool's gold, because we're not the favorite to win next year. We're not even in the Top 4 teams favored to win next year. So, we want to make sure that [in] 2015 we have as good a chance to win as 2013."

Ozzie, you talked about the challenges of being five weeks behind the rest of the league, and we've heard from other Super Bowl winning teams that there are so many difficulties to winning the Super Bowl back-to-back. Can you talk about the lessons learned from that first Super Bowl victory and things that you might do differently in the offseason? (Robert Klemko)
(NEWSOME) "I think we have a process in place, and we'll stay true to the process. The process is what has gotten us the success, and I think the process will be where we'll maintain it. So, we'll stay true to that. Even though there are going to be more demands on our players, the CBA allows for more opportunities for them to do it before they have to be here in April. As far as our coaching staff, we will have continuity there. As of right now, I have not gotten a call or a letter from another organization asking to interview one of our coaches, so we will have some continuity there. Along the way, our scouts and our pro personnel departments, they've been working and preparing for 2013. It's just a matter of Steve, John, Dick and I depending on the people that we have in place and allowing them to do their jobs, and then we can come in when we have to and take a look at what they've done. Then we move forward."

With Ray Lewis, how about a statue? Is that something that may go up around M&T Bank Stadium to honor him? (Jerry Coleman)
(BISCIOTTI) "Yes. And the fact that you said, 'Maybe,' I'll say, 'Absolutely, maybe.' Yes, we have to work that out. Where? And how long it takes? But, yes, I think he set himself apart in Baltimore sports history, and we will certainly look into it, and I would not be surprised if there is one there in the next year or two."

Steve, how hard do you expect Joe Flacco to come pound on your desk, and basically, are you prepared to make him the highest paid quarterback in the NFL? (Jim Corbett)
(BISCIOTTI) "That was a figurative [statement]. (laughter) I'll lock the door before I let him come in pounding on me. (laughter) No, that's what we wanted. We wanted to see him do this, and he did. Like I said, this is history, and I have faith that it didn't set us back in our negotiations, really. We offered him a Top 5 contract last year, and we will be back at the negotiating table, and it was pretty close last year. So, we'll be right back at the table, and I don't see us winning the Super Bowl [by] making the negotiation any more difficult than it would have been had we gone out in the first round of the playoffs; that might have been more difficult. So, we both know that we want each other, and it's up to Ozzie and Joe Linta to work that out. Then Joe and I will go golfing or something like that, but I don't negotiate with Joe."

Closing remarks:
(BISCIOTTI) "The one thing that I want you all to know is that this is a staff of over 100 people, 120 people that are not coaches or players. And I want to take my hat off to them, because what they do, the quality of the organization goes all the way through the organization – not just the top. And what they did, what they pulled off in the last two weeks, is absolutely remarkable. You just can't imagine what our organization did in order to deliver us there, set us up correctly, and take the distractions out of our hands for us to be able to pull that off. So, they deserve so much credit, and there are so many people that work as hard as we do to make that happen, that it would be remiss not to at least tip our hats collectively to all the others that are on the other side of the camera. Thanks."

GAME 1: RAVENS 44, BENGALS 13

Baltimore (1-0) · Cincinnati (0-1)

Monday, September 10, 2012 · 7:10 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore
Weather: 74°, Clear, Wind NW 10 mph · Attendance: 71,064 · Time: 3:04

The Ravens started the season unveiling a no-huddle offense that propelled the team to an impressive 44-13 victory over the visiting Bengals on Sept. 10. QB Joe Flacco was superb, completing 21 of 29 passes for 299 yards and 2 touchdowns. Baltimore leaped out to a 10-0 first-quarter lead on a 46-yard K Justin Tucker field goal and a 7-yard RB Ray Rice TD run. A Flacco-to-WR Anquan Boldin 34-yard TD pass made the score 17-3 in the second quarter. Cincy made the score 17-10 at the half when RB BenJarvus Green-Ellis ran for a 6-yard TD on fourth-and-one. But the Ravens then exploded for 27 second-half points after the Bengals closed the gap to 17-13 on the first series of the third quarter (K Mike Nugent's 19-yard FG). Highlights included S Ed Reed returning a QB Andy Dalton interception 34 yards for a TD and Flacco's 10-yard TD toss to TE Dennis Pitta. Pitta's 5 catches for 73 yards were highs for the Ravens. Rice scored 2 TDs, rushing 10 times for 68 yards and adding 3 catches for 25 more. Tucker connected on 3 FGs (46, 40 and 39 yards) in his debut. Dalton was 22-of-37 for 221 yards, completing 8 passes for 86 yards to WR Andrew Hawkins. Dalton was sacked 4 times, however, 1.5 times by DT Haloti Ngata. Green-Ellis gained 91 yards on 18 carries. With his 58th-career interception and 34-yard return, Reed became the NFL's all-time leader in interception return yards with 1,497, besting Hall of Famer Rod Woodson's 1,483 yards. Following his stellar performance, Flacco earned the AFC Offensive Player of the Week honors.

Baltimore (1-1) • Philadelphia (2-0)

Sunday, September 16, 2012 • 1:03 PM ET • Lincoln Financial Field • Philadelphia
Weather: 72°, Sunny, Wind W 5 mph • Attendance: 69,144 • Time: 3:38

In a thrilling and chaotic contest, the Ravens dropped their first game of the season, losing 24-23. Eagles QB Michael Vick's 1-yard TD plunge with 1:55 left in the game provided Philly with the winning margin. The Ravens appeared to take a 10-point, 27-17 lead with 5:35 left in the game after QB Joe Flacco found WR Jacoby Jones in the end zone for a 25-yard touchdown, however, an offensive pass interference call on Jones nullified the score. The Eagles took a 7-0 first-quarter lead on RB LeSean McCoy's 1-yard TD 10 minutes into the game after getting the ball on the Ravens' 15-yard line following a Flacco sack/fumble. Baltimore roared right back, tying the game on a 5-yard FB Vonta Leach TD run. A Flacco-to-Jones 21-yard scoring strike and a 56-yard K Justin Tucker field goal gave the Ravens a 17-7 halftime lead. (Tucker's FG tied for the longest in Ravens history.) An Eagles' touchdown – Vick to WR Jeremy Maclin for 23 yards – and a 23-yard FG by K Alex Henery tied the game at 17 after three quarters. Tucker then made 51- and 48-yard FGs to give Baltimore a 23-17 lead with 4:43 left in the game. The Ravens moved the ball to their own 46 on the final drive before failing on a fourth-and-1 pass from Flacco that was intended for RB Ray Rice. Flacco finished the game with 22 completions on 42 attempts for 232 yards. TE Dennis Pitta caught a team-high 8 balls for 65 yards, while Rice caught 6 for 53 and added 99 rushing yards on 16 carries. Vick completed 23 of 32 for 371 yards, including 8 to TE Brent Celek for 157 yards and 7 to WR DeSean Jackson for 114 more. The Eagles produced 486 yards to the Ravens' 325.

GAME 3: RAVENS 31, PATRIOTS 30

Baltimore (2-1) · New England (1-2)

Sunday, September 23, 2012 · 8:31 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore

Weather: 67°, Clear, Wind NW 5 mph · Attendance: 71,269 · Time: 3:24

In a wild game played in Baltimore and televised nationally, the Ravens beat the Patriots, 31-30, last Sunday night. The game was not sealed until the final play when Baltimore rookie K Justin Tucker made a 27-yard field goal. The Ravens rebounded from 13-0 (first quarter) and 30-21 (fourth quarter) deficits. WR Torrey Smith, who caught 6 passes for 127 yards with 2 TDs, played with a heavy heart. His younger brother Tevin, who was 19, died that morning after crashing a motorcycle. New England took a 13-0, first-quarter lead on 2 K Stephen Gostkowski field goals (37 and 49 yards) and a 2-yard RB Brandon Bolden TD run. The Ravens rallied with 2 second-quarter TDs on passes from QB Joe Flacco to Smith (25 yards) and TE Dennis Pitta (20 yards). A QB Tom Brady-to-WR Julian Edelman 7-yard TD toss gave the Patriots a 20-14 halftime lead. RB Ray Rice, who rushed for 101 yards and caught 5 passes for 49 more, opened the second half with a 7-yard TD scamper to give the Ravens a 21-20 lead. But, the Pats roared back, scoring the game's next 10 points – a RB Danny Woodhead 3-yard TD and a 20-yard Gostkowski FG – to take the 30-21, fourth-quarter lead. Smith's second TD reception from Flacco (5 yards) with 4:01 remaining brought the Ravens within 2 (30-28) before Tucker's game-winner. Flacco completed 28 of 39 passes for 382 yards with 3 TDs. Brady was 28-of-41 for 335 yards, including 9 to WR Brandon Lloyd for 108 yards and 8 to WR Wes Welker for 142 more. It was Flacco's ninth-career 300-yard passing game, the most in Ravens history.

GAME 4: RAVENS 23, BROWNS 16

Baltimore (3-1) · Cleveland (0-4)

Thursday, September 27, 2012 · 8:30 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore
Weather: 77°, Cloudy, Wind E 5 mph · Attendance: 70,944 · Time: 3:15

Playing their fourth game in 18 days, the Ravens stopped the determined Browns, 23-16 at M&T Bank Stadium. It was Baltimore's ninth-consecutive win over Cleveland and 13th victory in a row at home. After a scoreless first quarter, the Ravens took a 9-0 lead on an 18-yard QB Joe Flacco-to-WR Torrey Smith touchdown pass (aborted PAT) and a 45-yard K Justin Tucker field goal. The Browns bounced back with a 94-yard TD drive that finished with a 1-yard RB Trent Richardson TD blast to make the score 9-7 at the half. A Flacco 1-yard TD run, along with CB Cary Williams' 63-yard INT-TD, gave the Ravens a comfortable 23-10 advantage after three quarters. Browns K Phil Dawson kicked a 51-yard FG in the third period and added 50- and 52-yard FGs in the fourth quarter to get Cleveland within 7 (23-16) with 4:33 left in the game. A last-minute effort that ended with QB Brandon Weeden's final pass sailing out of the end zone concluded the contest. After catching just 1 pass for 6 yards in the first half, WR Anquan Boldin exploded in the second half and finished with 9 receptions for 131 yards, his 33rd-career 100-yard game. RB Ray Rice added 8 catches for 47 yards, while Smith grabbed 6 for 97 yards. (Rice also rushed 18 times for 49 yards.) Flacco completed 28 of 46 for 356 yards – his second-straight game of 300-plus yards passing (382 vs. the Patriots on 9/23). Weeden threw 52 passes, completing 25 for 320 yards. Richardson ran for 47 yards on 14 carries. It was the Ravens' 10th-consecutive victory in the AFC North.

GAME 5: RAVENS 9, CHIEFS 6

Baltimore (4-1) · Kansas City (1-4)

Sunday, October 7, 2012 · 12:02 PM CT · Arrowhead Stadium · Kansas City

Weather: 47°, Sunny, Wind 0 mph · Attendance: 68,803 · Time: 2:54

No touchdowns were scored in the Ravens' hard-fought 9-6 victory over the Chiefs at Arrowhead Stadium last Sunday. Rookie K Justin Tucker scored all of Baltimore's points with FGs of 28, 26 and 39 yards. Chiefs K Ryan Succop's 2 FGs (30 and 31 yards) accounted for the Kansas City scoring. The game was tied 3-3 at the half despite an impressive running performance by KC RB Jamaal Charles, who carried 20 times for 125 yards in the first two quarters. While the Chiefs rushed for 179 yards in the first half, Baltimore's "D" limited the hosts to just 35 yards on 16 carries in the last two quarters. Key plays in the game included Chiefs QB Matt Cassel's lost fumble at the Ravens' 1-yard line (S Ed Reed recovered) in the third quarter and QB Joe Flacco's 16-yard scramble on third-and-15 for a first down with 3 minutes left in the game. Flacco completed 13 of 27 for 187 yards, including 4 to WR Anquan Boldin for 82 yards. RB Ray Rice rushed for 102 yards (17 carries), making a game-clinching 1-yard run with two minutes left in the contest. It was Rice's 15th-career 100-yard rushing game. Charles finished with 140 rushing yards, and Cassel was 9-of-15 for 92 yards, with WR Dwayne Bowe catching 6 for 60 yards. The Ravens scored all 3 FGs on drives following KC turnovers. The game marked Baltimore's first win without scoring a TD five years to the day (10/7/07 at SF, 9-7).

GAME 6: RAVENS 31, COWBOYS 29

Baltimore (5-1) · Dallas (2-3)

Sunday, October 14, 2012 · 1:02 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore

Weather: 69°, Partly Cloudy, Wind SW 11 mph · Attendance: 71,384 · Time: 3:17

In a game that was not decided until Dallas K Dan Bailey missed a 51-yard FG attempt with 2 seconds left in the game, the Ravens stopped the visiting Cowboys, 31-29. It was the Ravens' 14th-consecutive regular season victory at home. After building a 24-13, third-quarter lead on WR Jacoby Jones' NFL-record-tying 108-yard kickoff return, the Cowboys came back to within 1 point (24-23) on QB Tony Romo's 7-yard TD to WR Dez Bryant and Bailey's 34-yard FG. The Ravens responded with a 10-play, 73-yard TD drive that finished with RB Ray Rice's 1-yard score, giving Baltimore a 31-23 lead with 4:41 left in the game. Dallas then responded with its own long drive (18 plays, 80 yards) that ended with a Romo-to-Bryant 4-yard TD pass, which made the score 31-29 with 32 seconds left in the fourth quarter. The Cowboys' 2-point attempt failed, but Dallas recovered the ensuing onside kick at its own 46-yard line. A pass interference call on CB Chykie Brown put the Cowboys in position to try the 51-yarder. The Ravens took a 17-10, first-half lead on a 38-yard K Justin Tucker FG, a 1-yard Rice TD run and a 19-yard QB Joe Flacco TD dart to WR Torrey Smith. Flacco completed 17 of 26 passes for 234 yards and a 106.9 QB rating, while Romo was 25-of-36 for 261 yards and 2 TDs (97.1). Impressively, Dallas held the ball 40:03 of the game, rushing for 227 yards, the most ever against a Ravens' defense. RB DeMarco Murray rushed 14 times for 93 yards, and RB Felix Jones added 92 yards on 18 tries. Bryant caught 13 for 95 yards, while WR Anquan Boldin led the Ravens with 5 receptions for 98 yards.

Baltimore (5-2) · Houston (6-1)

Sunday, October 21, 2012 · 12:02 PM CT · Reliant Stadium · Houston

Weather: Retractible Roof Closed · Attendance: 71,708 · Time: 3:10

A banged up Ravens' team, playing its first game without recently-injured LB Ray Lewis and CB Lardarius Webb, lost at Houston, 43-13, in a battle that featured the AFC teams with the best records (5-1). Houston QB Matt Schaub threw 2 TD passes, and RB Arian Foster ran for 2 more, while the Texans' defense added a safety and a TD with 1 of 2 INTs against QB Joe Flacco. Baltimore started well, taking a 3-0 lead on K Justin Tucker's 51-yard FG. After forcing back-to-back "three-and-outs" on the Texans' first two possessions, Houston's defense scored when Flacco was tackled for a safety by LB Connor Barwin. Houston took advantage of the next possession, completing a TD drive when Schaub hit WR Kevin Walter with a 25-yard TD strike for a 9-3 lead. CB Johnathan Joseph then stole a Flacco pass and raced 52 yards for another TD to give the Texans a 16-3, second-quarter lead. The rout was on. By halftime, Houston led 29-3 after a Schaub-to-TE Owen Daniels TD and 2 K Shayne Graham FGs (33 and 29 yards). Showing the fight they kept all game, the Ravens came back with a TD in the third quarter when Flacco hit WR Tandon Toss on a 15-yard pass. Foster then added his 2 TD runs (1 and 2 yards) around another impressive Tucker FG (54 yards) to complete the scoring. Houston dominated in almost every category, outgaining the Ravens 420 to 176 yards and owning time of possession (38:16 to 21:44). Flacco completed 21 of 43 for 147 yards, and Schaub was 23-of-37 for 256 yards and a 100.7 rating. Houston rushed for 181 yards, with Foster gaining 98 on 19 carries. RB Ray Rice ran 9 times for 42 and was limited to 12 yards receiving on 5 catches. Weather: 39°, Cloudy, Wind NW 8 mph · Attendance: 65,449 · Time: 3:02

Starting fast and finishing strong, the Ravens stopped the Browns, 25-15, at Cleveland Browns Stadium. It was Baltimore's 10th-consecutive victory over the Browns and 11th-consecutive AFC North win. The Ravens jumped to a 14-0, first-quarter lead after rushing touchdowns by RB Ray Rice (8 yards) and RB Bernard Pierce (12 yards). The Ravens bounced right back with a nine-play, 81-yard TD drive that concluded when QB Joe Flacco hit WR Torrey Smith with a 19-yard score. The two-point conversion from Flacco to WR Anquan Boldin gave the Ravens a 22-15 lead with 4:26 left in the contest. Baltimore extended the lead to 10 with 2:49 remaining on a 43-yard K Justin Tucker FG. Flacco completed 15 of 24 for 153 yards and a 94.6 rating. GAME 9: RAVENS 55, RAIDERS 20

Baltimore (7-2) · Oakland (3-6)

Sunday, November 11, 2012 · 1:02 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore
Weather: 61°, Sunny, Wind SSE 6 mph · Attendance: 71,339 · Time: 3:06

Scoring the most points in franchise history, the Ravens topped the visiting Raiders, 55-20, at M&T Bank Stadium. QB Joe Flacco threw 3 TD passes and ran for a fourth, while Baltimore's special teams provided 2 TDs. The Ravens took a 10-0, first-quarter lead on a 48-yard K Justin Tucker field goal and Flacco's 1-yard TD dive. After an Oakland FG (K Sebastian Janikowski, 32 yards), the Ravens extended the lead to 20-3 on a Flacco-to-TE Dennis Pitta 5-yard TD toss and another Tucker FG (34 yards). Oakland fought back, cutting the lead to 10 (20-10) on a QB Carson Palmer-to-WR Darrius Heyward-Bey 55-yard TD throw with 1:37 left in the second quarter. But, the Ravens roared back with a quick 7-play, 80-yard TD drive that ended with a 7-yard RB Ray Rice score that gave the home team a 27-10 halftime lead. The Ravens scored again on the opening series of the second half when WR Torrey Smith grabbed a 47-yard TD strike from Flacco to make the score 34-10. After the Raiders scored on a Palmer-to-WR Denarius Moore 30-yard pass, Flacco hit Smith again with a TD throw (20 yards). After P Sam Koch scored from 7 yards on a fake FG, the Ravens enjoyed a 48-17, third-quarter advantage. Janikowski added a 47-yard FG, and Baltimore's WR/RS Jacoby Jones returned a kickoff 105 yards for the game's final tally. Flacco completed 21 of 33 for 341 yards with 3 TDs and 1 INT for a 115.8 QB rating. Palmer, who was sacked 3 times and had 6 passes tipped near or at the line of scrimmage, was 29-of-45 for 368 yards (95.4 rating). OLB Paul Kruger intercepted Palmer and sacked him twice.

GAME 10: RAVENS 13, STEELERS 10

Baltimore (8-2) • Pittsburgh (6-4)

Sunday, November 18, 2012 • 8:30 PM ET • Heinz Field • Pittsburgh

Weather: 46°, Clear, Wind E 5 mph • Attendance: 63,446 • Time: 3:06

In a battle typical of the games played between Baltimore and Pittsburgh, the Ravens beat the Steelers, 13-10, at Heinz Field. It was the sixth time in the last seven regular season games played between the Ravens and Steelers that the game was decided by three points. It was Baltimore's third-straight regular season victory at Heinz and 12th-consecutive win in the AFC North. (That streak ties Indianapolis for the most division wins in a row since realignment in 2002.) While the Ravens held the Steelers without a touchdown in the final 59 minutes and 17 seconds of the game, Pittsburgh's lone TD was scored in the first minute of the contest. QB Byron Leftwich, playing for the injured Ben Roethlisberger, raced 31 yards for a touchdown just 43 seconds into the game. Baltimore bounced back to take a 10-7, first-quarter lead on K Justin Tucker's 26-yard field goal and WR Jacoby Jones' spectacular 63-yard punt return. The Ravens bumped the lead to 13-7 in the third quarter on Tucker's 39-yard FG into the open end of Heinz. Later in the period, Steelers K Shaun Suisham provided the final points of the game with a 22-yard FG. Both teams struggled on third downs with Baltimore converting just 3-of-14, while Pittsburgh was 5-of-17. The Steelers out gained the Ravens 311 to 200 yards. QB Joe Flacco completed 20 of 32 passes for 164 yards, including 8 for 79 to WR Anquan Boldin. Leftwich was 18-of-39 for 201 and was intercepted once by CB Corey Graham. The Ravens did not turn the ball over, while taking it away from the Steelers three times, scoring both of their FGs after the take-aways.

GAME 11: RAVENS 16, CHARGERS 13 (OT)

Baltimore (9-2) • San Diego (4-7)

Sunday, November 25, 2012 • 1:05 PM PT • Qualcomm Stadium • San Diego

Weather: 59°, Partly Cloudy, Wind SSW 1 mph • Attendance: 57,882 • Time: 3:49

Rookie K Justin Tucker kicked a 38-yard field goal with no time left in regulation to tie the Chargers at 13-13, and he then kicked another 38-yarder with 1:07 left in overtime to give Baltimore a 16-13 victory over San Diego at Qualcomm Stadium. The Chargers took a 13-3 lead on K Nick Novak's 30-yard FG with 7:39 left in the fourth quarter. Ravens QB Joe Flacco then directed a 9-play, 80-yard drive that ended with a 4-yard TD toss to TE Dennis Pitta with 4:19 left in regulation to make the score 13-10. After the Baltimore defense limited the Chargers to a three-and-out, the Ravens had the ball on their own 40 following a 23-yard punt return by WR/RS Jacoby Jones. Four plays later, the Ravens faced fourth-and-29 on their own 37 when the play of the game was made. Flacco threw a short pass to RB Ray Rice, who scampered the needed 29 yards to San Diego's 34-yard line for the first down. Four plays later, Tucker tied the game as the fourth quarter ended. The Chargers had the ball twice in the overtime, the second resulting in a three-and-out before Flacco led the winning 12-play, 69-yard drive. After a scoreless first quarter, the Chargers took a 10-0 halftime lead on QB Philip Rivers' 21-yard strike to WR Malcom Floyd and a 47-yard Novak FG. The only score in the third period came from a Tucker 43-yard FG to make the deficit 10-3 entering the fourth quarter. Flacco finished with 30 completions on 51 attempts for 355 yards. Rice caught 8 passes for 67 yards, while WR Torrey Smith grabbed 7 for a contest-high 144 yards, including a key 31-yarder on the game's final series. Rice added 97 rushing yards (22 carries). Rivers completed 23 of 36 for 228 yards and was sacked 6 times, twice by DE Arthur Jones, who posted 5 total tackles.

GAME 12: STEELERS 23, RAVENS 20

Baltimore (9-3) • Pittsburgh (7-5)

Sunday, December 2, 2012 • 4:25 PM ET • M&T Bank Stadium • Baltimore

Weather: 57°, Partly Cloudy, Wind S 9 mph • Attendance: 71,442 • Time: 3:02

For the seventh time in the last eight regular season meetings between the Ravens and Steelers, the game was decided by three points. This time Pittsburgh won, 23-20, at M&T Bank Stadium. The Steelers' win was the first loss at home for the Ravens since Mike Tomlin's team stopped Baltimore, 13-10, on Dec. 5, 2010. The defeat halted a 16-game M&T Bank Stadium (including playoffs) Ravens' winning streak, plus a 12-game, AFC North run without a loss. This battle was tied three times, including at 20-20 when Pittsburgh K Shaun Suisham kicked a 42-yard game-winning field goal as time expired. Suisham gave the Steelers a 3-0, first-quarter lead on a 46-yard FG, but the Ravens rallied with 13-consecutive points. K Justin Tucker connected on back-to-back 45- and 23-yard FGs in the second quarter before QB Joe Flacco threw an on-target, 28-yard touchdown to WR Anquan Boldin. Suisham's 41-yard FG made the score 13-6 at the half. On the opening drive of the third quarter, the Steelers tied the game when RB Jonathan Dwyer scampered 16 yards for a TD. Still in the third period, RB Ray Rice gave the advantage (20-13) back to the home team with a 34-yard TD sprint. With 7:24 left in the game, QB Charlie Batch found TE Heath Miller for a 7-yard TD to tie the contest at 20-20. Batch was impressive throughout the game, completing 25 of 36 passes for 276 yards. Flacco finished with 16 completions on 34 attempts for 188 yards, including 5 for 81 to Boldin and 4 for 40 to FB Vonta Leach. Rice rushed for 78 yards on 12 carries. S Ed Reed produced two take-aways (FR and INT), and CB Corey Graham also stole a Batch pass. Both of Baltimore's TDs came after Steelers' turnovers. OLB James Harrison had a key play late in the game when he sacked Flacco and caused a fumble that was recovered by DE Ziggy Hood. Miller's TD followed that take-away.

GAME 13: REDSKINS 31, RAVENS 28 (OT)

Baltimore (9-4) · Washington (7-6)

Sunday, December 9, 2012 · 1:03 PM ET · FedExField · Landover, MD

Weather: 51°, Cloudy, Wind NE 7 mph · Attendance: 81,178 · Time: 3:19

For the second week in a row, the Ravens lost on the last play of the game. This time, it was in overtime when the host Redskins produced a furious rally to tie the contest, 28-28, in regulation and then won in the extra period on K Kai Forbath's 34-yard field goal. Baltimore took an 8-point lead (28-20) with 4:47 left in regulation on RB Ray Rice's 7-yard TD run. Washington then produced an impressive 13-play, 85-yard drive that finished with backup QB Kirk Cousins hitting WR Pierre Garcon with an 11-yard TD strike. Cousins then scored on a QB draw for the 2-point conversion to tie the game at 28. Twice in that series the Ravens sent Redskins starting QB Robert Griffin III to the sideline with injuries, setting up Cousins' heroics. The Ravens took a 21-14 halftime lead on 3 QB Joe Flacco TD throws: 2 to WR Anquan Boldin (19 and 31 yards) and the other to TE Dennis Pitta (14 yards). The Redskins scored on a 4-yard Griffin-to-WR Joshua Morgan throw and a 1-yard RB Alfred Morris run. The Redskins came within 1 (21-20) in the third quarter on a pair of Forbath FGs (48 and 49 yards). In the overtime, Baltimore won the toss, but punted after not making a first down. CB Richard Crawford then returned the kick 64 yards to set up the winning FG. Flacco completed 16 of 21 passes for 182 yards and a 121.4 QB rating. His 2 third-quarter turnovers (INT and a fumble) set up 2 Redskins FGs. Rice ran 20 times for 121 yards and caught 3 passes for 15 more. Morris rushed for 122 yards for the 'Skins, while Griffin III was 15-of-26 for 246 yards and a 102.4 rating. Boldin (10,072) passed the 10,000-yard career receiving milestone during his team-leading 78-yard performance (3 catches). OLB Paul Kruger has tallied at least 1 sack in five-straight games, tying former Ravens' OLB Adalius Thomas (who did it twice, 2005 and 2006) for a team record.

GAME 14: BRONCOS 34, RAVENS 17

Baltimore (9-5) · Denver (11-3)

Sunday, December 16, 2012 · 1:02 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore
Weather: 53°, Cloudy, Wind SSE 7 mph · Attendance: 71,317 · Time: 3:05

Two of the AFC's best squared off with the Broncos cruising to a 34-17 victory over the Ravens. It was the Broncos' ninth-consecutive win, while the Ravens lost a third straight for just the third time in the five-year John Harbaugh era. Denver led from start to finish with the biggest blow coming at the end of the first half. Trailing 10-0, Baltimore drove to the Broncos' 4-yard line with 30 seconds and three timeouts left near the end of the second quarter. CB Chris Harris, in a momentum-turning play, grabbed a QB Joe Flacco pass intended for WR Anquan Boldin and raced 98 yards to the end zone with the INT to give the Broncos a 17-0 halftime lead. The Ravens played with a depleted defense, missing four of their top five tacklers (S Bernard Pollard, LB Jameel McClain, LB Dannell Ellerbe and LB Ray Lewis). Offensive first-teamers, Pro Bowl G Marshal Yanda and TE Ed Dickson, also were sidelined. The Broncos took a 3-0 first-quarter lead on K Matt Prater's 27-yard field goal. RB Jacob Hester's 1-yard TD run gave the Broncos a 10-0 second-quarter lead. The Ravens opened the second half with a K Justin Tucker 45-yard FG before QB Peyton Manning hit WR Eric Decker with a 51-yard TD throw that gave Denver a 24-3 advantage. Two minutes later, following a Baltimore three-and-out, RB Knowshon Moreno made it 31-3 with a 6-yard TD sprint. TE Dennis Pitta, who enjoyed a career-best day with 7 catches for 125 yards, made the score respectable with 2 TD catches. The first was for 31 yards, while the second was a spectacular 61-yard catch and run that saw Pitta break three tackles. Decker caught 8 of those for 133 yards. Moreno rushed for 118 yards on 22 carries. Denver held the ball 38:34 of the contest, limiting Baltimore to just 21:26. The Broncos' defense limited the Ravens' offense, playing its first game under new coordinator Jim Caldwell, to 1-of-12 on third down.

GAME 15: RAVENS 33, GIANTS 14

Baltimore (10-5) · Giants (8-7)

Sunday, December 23, 2012 · 4:25 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore
Weather: 51°, Clear, Wind SW 7 mph · Attendance: 71,470 · Time: 3:04

The Ravens clinched a second-consecutive AFC North title when they defeated the defending Super Bowl champion Giants, 33-14, at M&T Bank Stadium. Baltimore dominated from beginning to end, producing its most yards of the season (533) while limiting New York to 186. The Ravens owned the time-of-possession battle (39:21 to 20:39) and third-down conversions, making 11 of 18 on offense and holding the Giants to 2-of-10. Behind a sharp QB Joe Flacco, the Ravens jumped to a 14-0, first-quarter lead on their initial two possessions. Flacco hit WR Torrey Smith with a 6-yard touchdown throw for a 7-0 lead, and then Flacco ran for a 1-yard TD to make it 14-0. By halftime, the Ravens increased the lead to 24-7. Flacco added a 27-yard TD bullet to RB Ray Rice, and K Justin Tucker made a 23-yard field goal. New York's lone first-half score came on a RB David Wilson 14-yard TD scamper near the end of the first quarter. The onslaught continued in the second half, with the Ravens increasing the lead to 33-7 on 3 Tucker FGs (21, 30 and 29 yards). New York added a late fourth-quarter TD when QB Eli Manning hit WR Domenik Hixon with a 14-yard TD strike. Flacco completed 25 of 36 passes for 309 yards (114.2 QB rating). Baltimore rushed for 224 yards, another season high. New York was limited to 67 rushing yards. The Ravens have won their 10th-consecutive regular season home finale (dating back to 2003), the NFL's longest such active streak. Under Harbaugh (since 2008), the Ravens improved to 10-0 at home against the NFC, while dating back to 2006, the Ravens have won 13-consecutive home games against the NFC.

GAME 16: BENGALS 23, RAVENS 17

Sunday, December 30, 2012 · 1:03 PM ET · Paul Brown Stadium · Cincinnati

Weather: 26°, Partly Cloudy, Wind SW 8 mph · Attendance: 61,565 · Time: 3:13

Playing without six starters, including five Pro Bowl-type players (WR Anquan Boldin, DT Haloti Ngata, ILB Ray Lewis, OLB Terrell Suggs and G Marshal Yanda), the Ravens dropped the regular season finale, 23-17, at Cincinnati. Having little to gain in the various AFC playoff scenarios, the Ravens not only rested some starters dealing with injuries, but pulled many other starters after the game's first couple of series. Despite liberal use of young players, the Ravens out-gained the Bengals 352 to 189 yards. The game-deciding play happened with 6:06 remaining in the fourth quarter when Bengals DE Carlos Dunlap stole a QB Tyrod Taylor pass and raced 14 yards into the end zone to give Cincy a 23-14 advantage. The Ravens took a 7-0, first-quarter lead on RB Anthony Allen's 2-yard touchdown run. The Bengals made it 7-7 at the half after QB Andy Dalton's 14-yard TD throw to WR Marvin Jones with 39 seconds left in the second quarter. A pair of K Josh Brown field goals (47 and 32 yards) gave the Bengals a 13-7 lead after three quarters. Taylor's 1-yard TD scamper gave Baltimore a 14-13 lead early in the fourth quarter. Brown's 38-yard FG gave the lead back to Cincinnati (16-14). K Justin Tucker added a 49-yard FG for the Ravens with 1:21 left in the contest. Taylor completed 15 of 25 for 149 yards, while Dalton, who played in the first half, was 10-of-15 for 78 yards. Ravens rookie RB Bernard Pierce led all rushers with 89 yards on 22 carries, Allen added 41 yards on 10 runs.TE Ed Dickson's 6 catches for 64 yards were also a game best.

WILD CARD: RAVENS 24, COLTS 9

Baltimore (11-6) · Colts (11-6)

Sunday, January 6, 2013 · 1:07 PM ET · M&T Bank Stadium · Baltimore
Weather: 49°, Partly Cloudy, Wind WSW 8 mph · Attendance: 71,379 · Time: 3:10

Before a sellout M&T Bank Stadium crowd that celebrated and saluted LB Ray Lewis in his final home game, the Ravens held the Colts without a touchdown, winning 24-9. Lewis, in his 17th and final season after being a first-round pick of the Ravens in 1996, finished with 13 tackles and a pass defensed in his first game since tearing his triceps on Oct. 14. After a scoreless first quarter, Baltimore scored first on a 23-yard K Justin Tucker field goal. The Colts' Adam Vinatieri matched that with a 47-yarder before Ravens FB Vonta Leach made it 10-3 on a 2-yard touchdown power play. Vinatieri's 52-yarder with 50 seconds left in the second quarter made the score 10-6 at the half. QB Joe Flacco, who averaged 23.5 yards per completion in the game, hit TE Dennis Pitta with a 20-yard TD to extend the Ravens' lead to 17-6. Vinatieri's 26-yard FG at the end of the third quarter made it 17-9. The Ravens put the game away when Flacco hit WR Anquan Boldin with an 18-yard TD throw to create the final margin of 24-9. Boldin set a Ravens' playoff record with 145 receiving yards (5 catches). Rookie RB Bernard Pierce, whose 43-yard run set up Baltimore's final TD, rushed for 103 yards on 13 carries (7.9 avg.) RB Ray Rice added 70 yards on 15 carries, helping the Ravens to 172 rushing yards. Rice also had a 47-yard catch and run to set up the game's first TD. Colts rookie QB Andrew Luck threw 54 times, completing 28 for 288 yards with an interception, but could not lead his team to the end zone. WR Reggie Wayne caught 9 for 114, and WR T.Y. Hilton grabbed 8 for 66 more. The Colts did dominate time of possession, holding the ball 37:32 of the game.

DIVISIONAL: RAVENS 38, BRONCOS 35 (2OT)

Saturday, January 12, 2013 · 2:36 PM MT · Sports Authority Field at Mile High · Denver

Weather: 13°, Partly Cloudy, Wind E 8 mph · Attendance: 76,732 · Time: 4:11

In what became the fourth-longest game in NFL history, the Ravens outlasted the Broncos, 38-35, in double overtime, in a thrilling victory that will will go down as one of the greatest wins in franchise history. Rookie K Justin Tucker's 47-yard field goal in the second overtime period sent Baltimore into the AFC Championship for the second-straight season. The Ravens tied the game at 35 with :31 remaining in regulation on a QB Joe Flacco-to-WR Jacoby Jones 70-yard TD toss. Denver opened the scoring on a RS Trindon Holliday 90-yard punt return for a TD, but the Ravens answered back on their next possession with a 59-yard WR Torrey Smith TD catch, tying the game at 7. On the Broncos' first offensive possession, CB Corey Graham secured his first of 2 INTs off QB Peyton Manning, racing 39 yards to the end zone to give the Ravens a 14-7 lead. Manning's 15-yard toss to WR Brandon Stokley tied the game at 14 at the end of the first quarter. Denver took the lead, 21-14, after Manning hit RB Knowshon Moreno with a 14-yard TD strike. But, the Ravens tied the game just before the half on a spectacular grab by a leaping Smith for a 32-yard TD. Holliday scored another special teams TD, this time on a 104-yard KOR to open the second half, but Baltimore tied the game again on a RB Ray Rice 1-yard TD run at the end of the third period. Manning connected with WR Demaryius Thomas for a 17-yard TD midway through the fourth, giving Denver a 35-28 lead. Graham intercepted Manning near the end of the first overtime, setting up the Tucker game-winner. Baltimore has now reached the AFC Championship in three of the last five years, with John Harbaugh becoming the first head coach in NFL history (since 1970 merger) to reach three conference title games in his first five seasons.

AFC CHAMPIONSHIP: RAVENS 28, PATRIOTS 13

Sunday, January 20, 2013 · 6:40 PM ET · Gillette Stadium · Foxborough, MA
Weather: 41°, Clear, Wind NW 18-28 mph · Attendance: 68,756 · Time: 3:07

The Baltimore Ravens earned a trip to their second Super Bowl in franchise history, defeating the No. 2 seed Patriots, 28-13, in the AFC Championship. The Ravens' defense shut out the NFL's No. 1-ranked and highest-scoring offense in the second half, and QB Joe Flacco, who has 8 TDs and zero INTs in the playoffs, threw three TDs in leading Baltimore to victory. The Ravens held New England to a K Stephen Gostkowski 31-yard field goal on four first-quarter possessions. Then, Flacco led the team on a 13-play, 90-yard scoring drive to open the second quarter, capped by a RB Ray Rice 2-yard TD run. New England struck back with a QB Tom Brady-to-WR Wes Welker 1-yard TD, making the score 10-7. After another Gostkowski field goal (25 yards), the Patriots took a 13-7 lead at halftime. Early in the third period, Flacco hit TE Dennis Pitta with a 5-yard TD pass, giving Baltimore a 14-13 lead. Flacco was 6 for 9 for 64 yards on the 72-yard scoring drive. The Ravens' defense was stout, forcing the Patriots to punt on both third-quarter possessions, while the offense continued to put points on the board, including Flacco's second TD, a three-yard pass to a leaping WR Anquan Boldin in the back of the end zone early in the fourth quarter. After the Ravens forced a RB Stevan Ridley fumble, Flacco hit Boldin again on an 11-yard toss, giving the Ravens a 28-13 lead and the final margin. Baltimore's defense sealed the game with 2 INTs on New England's final two possessions. The Ravens held Brady to a 62.3 QB rating, his fourth-worst in 24 career postseason games. The Brady-led Pats had been 67-0 at home when leading at halftime.

SUPER BOWL XLVII: RAVENS 34, 49ERS 31

Baltimore (14-6) · San Francisco (13-5-1)

Sunday, February 3, 2013 · 5:31 PM CT · Mercedes-Benz Superdome · New Orleans

Weather: Indoors · Attendance: 71,024 · Time: 4:14

After taking an early 28-6 lead, the Baltimore Ravens needed a goal-line stand to clinch their second World Championship title, defeating the San Francisco 49ers, 34-31, in Super Bowl XLVII. The Ravens' defense delivered the critical stand late in the fourth quarter, overcoming a furious second-half comeback and a 34-minute power outage. For the first time in any of the four major pro sports, two head-coaching brothers (John and Jim Harbaugh) faced each other in a championship game. QB Joe Flacco threw 3 TD passes and was named the game's MVP. Following a San Francisco three-and-out, Flacco hit WR Anquan Boldin with a 13-yard TD pass on Baltimore's first drive. Then, on the 49ers' second possession, the Ravens sacked QB Colin Kaepernick on third down, forcing a K David Akers' 36-yard field goal. Flacco's second TD came on a 1-yard toss to TE Dennis Pitta, making the score 14-3. Then, late in the second quarter, Flacco connected for a 56-yard score with WR Jacoby Jones, who secured a long pass, then jumped up and dove into the end zone after eluding two defenders on the way. Akers kicked a second field goal (27 yards) just before the half, making the score 21-6. The second half started with a Jones 108-yard kickoff return for a TD that gave the Ravens a 28-6 lead. Shortly thereafter, half of the stadium lost power, and a 34-minute delay ensued. When play resumed, the 49ers stole the momentum, starting with a 31-yard TD from Kaepernick to WR Michael Crabtree. After a Ravens' three-and-out and a strong punt return by WR Ted Ginn, RB Frank Gore capitalized with a six-yard TD run, making the score 28-20. Following a RB Ray Rice fumble, Akers kicked his third FG (34 yards), but the Ravens answered right back early in the fourth quarter with a K Justin Tucker 19-yard FG, making the score 31-23. The 49ers then drove quickly down the field and scored on a Kaepernick 15-yard run, closing the gap to 31-29 after a failed two-point attempt. Tucker added a 38-yard FG on Baltimore's next possession, making the score 34-29. The Ravens then took a safety following the pivotal goal-line stand and tackled Ginn after a free kick, sealing the victory.

STRONG SPECIAL TEAMS PLAY

Much of Baltimore's success in 2012 could be attributed to the strong performances of the special teams units. In addition to posting a league-best 3 kick return TDs (108- & 105-yard KORs and 63-yard PR by WR/RS Jacoby Jones), scoring a TD off a fake FG (7-yard run by P Sam Koch) and being consistently accurate on FG attempts (K Justin Tucker was 30-of-33), Baltimore's return blocking and coverage teams excelled. The Ravens ranked second (tied, Min.) in the NFL in average starting position after a KO (24.6-yard line) and stood fifth in opponent average starting field position following a kickoff (20.6-yard line).

RAVENS RANTS: HALOTI NGATA

THE DOMINANT DT

One of the NFL's most disruptive forces, DT Haloti Ngata was named to his fourth Pro Bowl in 2012. Perhaps the NFL's most athletic DT, Ngata stops the run (444 career tackles), rushes the passer (22 career sacks) and even drops into coverage (3 career INTs). In Week 11's win at Pittsburgh, he had 5 tackles and 1 sack (-10 yards), helping hold the Steelers to 10 points. Baltimore has a history of strong run defense, and with Ngata's help the past several seasons, has been consistently sturdy on the ground.

NFL'S TOP 100

It can be argued that the 100 best NFL players of 2012, as voted by the players late in 2011, doesn't really represent the best. Maybe coaches or scouts have a different list. Certainly, there are reporters who compiled rankings of their own. Still, it's special for the Ravens to boast seven players overall (tied with Phi. and SF for the NFL's most) – including five standouts in the Top 25.

NFL'S TOP 100

It can be argued that the 100 best NFL players of 2012, as voted by the players late in 2011, doesn't really represent the best. Maybe coaches or scouts have a different list. Certainly, there are reporters who compiled rankings of their own. Still, it's special for the Ravens to boast seven players overall (tied with Phi. and SF for the NFL's most) – including five standouts in the Top 25.

On Jan. 12, 2013, the Ravens traveled to Denver for a Divisional Round matchup in which they knocked off the AFC's top seed in a 38-35 double-overtime thriller. CB Corey Graham (above) picked off two QB Peyton Manning passes, one of which he returned 39 yards for a touchdown.

In the Wild Card round at New England (1/10/10), RB Ray Rice ran 83 yards for a touchdown on the opening play from scrimmage, the second-longest rush in NFL postseason history. Rice finished the day with a Ravens' postseason-franchise record 159 yards, adding 2 TDs, en route to a 33-14 victory.

– SEASON CLIPS –

Ravens complete magical journey

By Jamison Hensley

February 4, 2013

No one can doubt the Baltimore Ravens anymore.

The Ravens claimed their place in NFL history with one of the most magical and improbable runs in recent memory. Their 34-31 triumph over the San Francisco 49ers in the Super Bowl was the crowning glory in a season in which nothing came easy.

A team that appeared to be unraveling one month ago is now sitting on top of the football world because it refused to crumble. Some teams would flinch when a 22-point lead in the second half dwindled to two. But not every team has been on a journey quite like the Ravens'.

There have been gutsy calls. It happened with three weeks left in the regular season, when Ravens coach John Harbaugh fired offensive coordinator Cam Cameron. It happened Sunday night when Joe Flacco called an audible and decided to pass on third-and-1, which led to a critical field goal late in the fourth quarter.

There have been emotional rallying points from the death of former owner Art Modell to the retirement announcement of linebacker Ray Lewis. And on Lewis' final drive of his 17-year career, the Ravens stopped the 49ers on four plays inside the Baltimore 10-yard line.

And there have been miracles. The Ravens repeatedly found ways to win whether it wasRay Rice converting a fourth-and-29 in San Diego or Jacoby Jones catching a 70-yard touchdown to tie the AFC divisional playoff game in Denver. It was Jones once again coming up big in the Super Bowl when he got behind the defense for a 56-yard touchdown catch in the second quarter and opened the third quarter with a 108-yard kickoff return.

There have certainly been more talented Super Bowl champions. The challenge is finding one that has been as resilient as the Ravens'.

"How could it be any other way?" Harbaugh asked. "It's never pretty. It's never perfect. It's just us."

It's the imperfection that makes the Ravens so special. They never make it easy. This is the team that lost four of its last five games heading into the playoffs. Did anybody really believe the Ravens were going to hoist the Lombardi Trophy back in December?

This is the team that was down by seven points with 31 seconds left in Denver three weeks ago. Did anybody really believe the Ravens were going to pull that victory out?

This is also the team that gave up 17 straight points following a 34-minute delay Sunday night when half of the lights in the Superdome went out. How many thought the Ravens were going to collapse? Not the Ravens. Some may have lost faith in the Ravens along the way, but the Ravens never lost faith in themselves.

"It is really what makes and forms a Super Bowl champion team," Flacco said. "We've been put through those situations. So when they come up … the moment doesn't get too big. We are comfortable. We've been there before. We've succeeded before. We are not worried about the outcome."

The defining moments of the season have been how the Ravens have answered the skeptics and continued to answer them on the game's biggest stage. Flacco came of age in the postseason and made one of the biggest plays of the game by putting the pressure on himself.

After the 49ers had closed to 31-29 in the fourth quarter, Flacco went to the line of scrimmage with three options on third-and-1. He chose to throw the fade to Anquan Boldin, which resulted in a 15-yard completion. That led to Justin Tucker's 38-yard field goal, which proved to be the difference in the game.

"He throws it right on the money, and Anquan goes up and makes the play," Harbaugh said. "To me, it shows you [Flacco] has guts. He has the guts of a burglar."

The defense, which was Baltimore's first to rank outside the top 10 in more than a decade, proved to be just as clutch as him. This was a defense that was without its best defensive lineman, Haloti Ngata, who was sidelined late in the game with a knee injury. The Ravens also have two star players (Lewis and linebacker Terrell Suggs) who are playing with one healthy arm each.

Still, this defense held tough in the red zone, as it has done all season. Cornerback Jimmy Smith, a disappointing first-round pick, broke up a third-and-goal pass from Colin Kaepernick and then got away with physical coverage on Michael Crabtree to force an incompletion on fourth-and-goal. While Smith made the plays, the attention fell on Lewis, the two-time NFL Defensive Player of the Year who is walking away from the game on top.

"I was sitting there thinking there's no way we stop them here," Flacco said. "But we did and that's what our defense is all about. I don't think there's any better ending to a career than that: a goal-line stand by one of the greatest linebackers and one of the greatest players to ever play the game. That's pretty special."

As the confetti fell on the Ravens at the Superdome, it was time to celebrate Lewis' last ride and Flacco's first step toward establishing his own legacy. It also marked the coronation of a team that won on will. Peyton Manning and Tom Brady couldn't stop them. Not even an unprecedented blackout in the Super Bowl could stop them.

This was more than a team of destiny. This was a team bent on completing a mission. For three weeks, the Ravens were underdogs. And for three weeks, they proved their doubters wrong.

"That's the thing about our team. Everybody outside the locker room is always counting us out," fullback Vonta Leach said. "We never broke. We knew what kind of team we had, and we knew our No. 1 goal coming into this season was to win the championship."

Lewis' last game not all about him

His greatest contribution to Ravens' win was inspiration he gave teammates

By Jeffri Chadiha

For all the hoopla surrounding the final season of Baltimore Ravenslinebacker Ray Lewis, his last game really wasn't about him. It was about Ravens quarterback Joe Flacco, who proved once again that he has finally grown up. It was about the ability of receiver/returner Jacoby Jones to produce big plays at the most critical of moments. It also was about a group of lesser-known players who did whatever was necessary to secure the second Super Bowl win in this franchise's history. In other words, Lewis was really just along for the ride.

It may sound like blasphemy to say that after Baltimore's 34-31 victory over San Francisco in Super Bowl XLVII, but it's true. The Ravens are champions today because they were a complete team, not merely a cast of characters lucky enough to be led by one of the greatest players in NFL history. Lewis certainly gave them ample inspiration by announcing his retirement before the playoffs began. What his teammates gave him in return was the kind of effort that will linger in the minds of Ravens fans forever.

Even Lewis acknowledged as much when he addressed the media in his postgame news conference. "We went through a lot of peaks and valleys this season," Lewis said after finishing the game with seven tackles. "And we heard it all. They said we couldn't beat Denver. They said we couldn't beat New England. They said we couldn't beat San Francisco. We overcame it all, and we showed that what wins is chemistry."

The beauty of Lewis' celebrating the accomplishments of his teammates -- something that he has done repeatedly throughout the postseason despite what some saw as shameless self-promotion -- is that it speaks to his own self-awareness. This wasn't the Ray Lewis who's earned 12 Pro Bowl nominations and two league defensive player of the year awards during his Hall of Fame career. This was a past-his-prime superstar doing everything he could to leave on top. This was a proud team captain praying for the same farewell that only a few other legends -- namely John Elway, Jerome Bettis and Michael Strahan -- had enjoyed.

It didn't take long on Sunday to see that Lewis was overmatched. 49ers tight end Vernon Davis ran by him with ease. The tackles he did make were often downfield and lacking any impact. It was apparent from the start that the 49ers were out to attack the most accomplished member of the Ravens. It was just as obvious that Lewis' main contribution to this team would be keeping his teammates focused.

Lewis talked about rubbing Jones' chest before the returner erupted for a postseason-record 108-yard kick return for a touchdown to start the second half. He raved about his relentless faith in Flacco and the conversations his teammates had when they needed a last-minute goal-line stand to thwart a team that had rallied from a 28-6 deficit. "There was no panic in us," Lewis said. "We talked about that when we were on the goal line. We said that if we stopped them there, they don't get in. That was the most amazing goal-line stand that I've ever been a part of."

It won't be remembered much for anything Lewis did. It was cornerback Jimmy Smith who deflected one pass in that situation and successfully covered 49ers wide receiver Michael Crabtree on the fourth-down attempt. It was another cornerback, Corey Graham, who came up huge on a second-down pass to Crabtree while linebacker Dannell Ellerbe and defensive end DeAngelo Tyson stopped running back LaMichael James on what could've been the game-winning touchdown run. Lewis did his job on those plays. He just didn't do anything memorable.

That's the way this postseason has gone. We've celebrated all of Lewis' playoff tackles -- he had 44 entering the Super Bowl, more than any other defender in the league -- but these weren't the kinds of stops on which he'd built his legacy. Most had come at least 5 or 6 yards downfield. Seldom did it seem as if opposing ball carriers were walking away with the frustrated feeling Lewis often engendered.

If anything, this was a nice element in the final narrative of Lewis' NFL career. His fans wanted to believe he was leaving on top while he was still playing his best, a hard trap to escape. Lewis had been so phenomenal and charismatic that they did not want to think of him as a lesser player on football's biggest stage. They needed to see him as what he has been throughout most of his career: a dominant game-changer who could lift an entire team with his mere presence.

The Ray Lewis who joyfully jogged off the Superdome field Sunday night was far from that talent. He was much closer to what Bettis was for the 2005 Pittsburgh Steelers during their Super Bowl. Bettis wasn't breaking huge runs or devastating defenders who struggled to bring him down during his final games. He was motivating his teammates by reminding them of how much he'd put into his own career & and how much he wanted to share a championship with them.

Lewis wanted nothing more than to see his fellow Ravens feel the same exuberance he'd enjoyed when he led Baltimore to a victory over the New York Giants in Super Bowl XXXV. He knew what it took to win a championship, and he understood how hard it was to get another. Lewis said the topic came up during the team's sermon on Sunday morning. The pastor spoke of the need to "finish the race," and the Ravens embraced that theme most when they watched the 49ers storm back to nearly steal their glory.

Had this been six or seven years ago, Lewis would've been the man at the center of Baltimore's victory. Instead, this game will best be remembered for all the plays that Flacco made with his arm, the acrobatic catches of Ravens wide receiver Anquan Boldin and the aggressive game plan of offensive coordinator Jim Caldwell. The Ravens have long been known for their defensive dominance, but this game reinforced the fact that they will win with offense going forward. Lewis, as much as anybody in that locker room, realizes that's the future of this team.

That's why his most important contributions throughout this entire postseason had nothing to do with his ability. It had more to do with the very things that truly made him great: his heart, his passion and his resilience. Lewis made his teammates believe in the power of all those qualities throughout a rocky season, and a 17-year career. In return, they gave him the kind of retirement gift that he will cherish for the rest of his life.

Joe Flacco's MVP Performance Caps Off Historic Postseason

By Garrett Downing

February 3, 2013

The Ravens quarterback was 'phenomenal,' and showed that the Ravens are his team.

Joe Flacco stood on the stage in the Superdome with the confetti falling all around him.

That's when General Manager Ozzie Newsome reached over and passed him the Lombardi Trophy, making Flacco the first Ravens player of the night to lay hands on football's greatest prize.

While it took a few seconds to soak up his place as the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player, there was no doubt that he became the full-fledged leader of the Ravens team and had cemented himself among the best quarterbacks in the NFL.

"Joe is phenomenal," Head Coach John Harbaugh said.

Flacco carried the Ravens in Sunday's 34-31 victory over the San Francisco 49ers, just like he's done throughout the postseason. He masterfully picked apart the 49ers defense, making one big throw after another to march the Ravens up and down the field.

After the game, his teammates couldn't stop gushing about their franchise quarterback.

"Joe Flacco's the best quarterback in football right now," running back Ray Rice said.

"I've been a Joe Flacco fan," linebacker Ray Lewis said. "For him to come in and do what he did today and make some of the throws he made, this is what we've always seen."

For a team that has long been defined by its defensive prowess, Flacco has flipped the script.

It was the offense that led the Ravens Sunday, as they've done throughout the postseason.

"People have to respect him because we rode his arm through the whole playoffs," wide receiver Torrey Smith said. "Our defense played well, but we rode his arm."

Flacco finished 22-of-23 for 287 yards with three touchdowns and no interceptions, and a quarterback rating of 124.2. The Super Bowl performance capped off a remarkable postseason run for Flacco, where he finished with 11 touchdowns and no interceptions, and outdueled future Hall of Famers Tom Brady and Peyton Manning along the way.

He joined Hall of Famer Joe Montana – his boyhood idol – as the only player in NFL history to throw at least 11 postseason touchdowns without an interception.

"It's pretty cool," said Flacco who didn't even know about the record. "Joe Montana has been my favorite quarterback, so to be put anywhere next to him is pretty cool."

Just like he's done all season, Flacco was unafraid to take chances. He consistently took deep shots, throwing balls up for Anquan Boldin, Jacoby Jones and Torrey Smith. The aggressiveness paid off.

If there was one play that embodied Flacco's game and his entire season, it was a fourth-quarter pass to Boldin with seven minutes, 15 seconds left in the game. The Ravens were clinging to a five-point lead and facing a third-and-inches situation, desperately needing to pick up a first down.

They came to the line with three play options to run. Flacco glanced across the line and didn't like the matchups for the running play, so he called pass.

He wanted the ball in his hands with the game on the line.

Flacco dropped back and zinged a pass to Boldin in tight coverage 15 yards up the field. Boldin hauled in the tough catch and the Ravens went on to kick what would prove to be the game-winning field goal.

"To me, it shows you he's got guts," Harbaugh said. "He's got the guts of a burglar. He was doing it all night, making plays."

That gunslinger mentality and inconsistency at times has made Flacco the subject of criticism throughout his career. He's won at historic levels – he's the only quarterback in NFL history to go to the playoffs and win a playoff game in each of his first five seasons – but his accomplishments sometimes aren't enough to earn him respect in the national media.

"How many guys ever had this much success for five years and have taken this much criticism?" asked center Matt Birk. "He's kind of a victim of his own success I guess. But the great thing is that Joe never wavers.

"Now they're going to have to talk about Joe Flacco because Joe is a stud and he showed it tonight."

Boldin was even more direct in his feelings.

"People should shut up about Joe," said Boldin, who logged six receptions for 104 yards and a touchdown. "I'm so sick of people saying Joe's not an elite quarterback. For all the critics who say he's not, ask them how many rings they have."

Flacco had his opportunity after the game to stand on the podium and dismiss all of the naysayers that questioned whether he was an elite quarterback. But Flacco took the same approach he's taken the last five years, and didn't get wrapped up in the discussion.

"I've never cared," he said. "I don't even want to feel like I'm in a position to defend myself, it's just not right. I don't have to do that."

That answer is typical of Flacco, and that's why the Ravens love him.

The franchise and his teammates have stood behind him for years, and on Sunday Flacco proved to them and the world that he truly is one of the stars of the NFL.

"Joe is Joe," Birk said. "Great guy. Great teammate. And great quarterback."

Baltimore Ravens win Super Bowl, defeating San Francisco 49ers, 34-31

By Jeff Zrebiec

Ray Lewis' last ride has ended with a Ravens coronation, and the vision he has been telling his teammates about for more than a decade is now fulfilled.

Twelve years since they won their first Super Bowl with Lewis and the defense leading the way, the Ravens reigned again, finishing off a surprising playoff run with a thrilling 34-31 victory Sunday night over the San Francisco 49ers in Super Bowl XLVII at the Mercedes-Benz Superdome.

Behind the arm of Joe Flacco, the legs of Jacoby Jones and a defense that stiffened at the most crucial time, the Ravens survived a frantic comeback attempt to send Lewis out on top and give coach John Harbaugh bragging rights over his brother, Jim, coach of the 49ers.

When the two brothers, separated in age by 15 months, met at midfield after the game, John said, he told Jim that he loved him.

“It wasn't pretty, it wasn't perfect, but it was us,” said John Harbaugh, who took the Lombardi Trophy from owner Steve Bisciotti and held it aloft. “The final series of Ray Lewis' career was a goal line stand to win the Lombardi Trophy. As Ray said on the podium, how could it be any better than that?”

But it wasn't easy, especially after a 34-minute power outage in the Superdome cost the Ravens the momentum they had gained in the first half and from Jacoby Jones' 108-yard kickoff return to start the second half. Following the stoppage in the third quarter, the 49ers scored 17 straight points to cut the Ravens' lead to 28-23.

“I just knew that with Jim Harbaugh on the other sideline and all those years being together, that those guys were going to come back,” John Harbaugh said. “Those guys handled [the delay] better than we did.”

But before the darkness, the game was all about Flacco. Completing one of the best postseasons for a quarterback ever, Flacco threw three first-half touchdown passes to capture the Super Bowl MVP award and perhaps, quiet his skeptics for good. Jones, who caught one of those touchdowns, gave the Ravens a 28-6 lead before the power cut out.

But fittingly, after a season in which they lost four of their final five regular-season games, battled injuries and had several players deal with personal tragedies, the Ravens needed one more defensive stand to win the Super Bowl.

Quarterback Colin Kaepernick, who fueled the 49ers' comeback by driving their offense to three second-half touchdowns and a field goal, got his team down to the Ravens' 5-yard line with two minutes to go. However, three straight incompletions, the final one just eluding the grasp of Michael Crabtree, gave the Ravens the ball back.

Less than two minutes later and only after Josh Bynes pulled down Ted Ginn Jr. at midfield on a free kick return, the Ravens burst toward the middle of the field to celebrate. Several players had a pile-on near midfield as the purple confetti rained down on them. Other players did snow angels in the pile of confetti as a pro-Ravens crowd , which sweated through the final minutes of the 49ers' comeback attempt, erupted.

It was exactly the scene that Lewis, as the team's only previous Super Bowl winner, had been telling his fellow players about for so many years.

“We finished it. It just shows what our team was built for. We were here to finish this race and we finished it,” Lewis said. “I wanted to see their faces when that confetti came out of the sky. ... That's the greatest reward as a leader, to talk to them about a vision and then finishing it. To bring Baltimore a second ring before I hang up my cleats, there's just no better way to go out.”

Now Lewis, the only remaining player from the team that blitzed the New York Giants to win Super Bowl XXXV, and his teammates will get one more ride, a trip through the streets of downtown Baltimore for a parade Tuesday beginning at 11 a.m..

It was Ozzie Newsome's second title, further solidifying him as one of the game's best general managers. But the top executives had said all week that this was about the players and nobody enjoyed the victory any more than safety Ed Reed, who had played 11 years to get this opportunity.

After the victory, which came less than a half hour from where he grew up, Reed went sideline-to-sideline whooping it up with fans. He called the victory a microcosm of the Ravens' season.

“Started good, got ugly, ended great,” said Reed who had an interception in the game.

Then there was Flacco who completed a near-perfect postseason — he had 11 touchdowns and no interceptions in the postseason — by completing 22 of 33 passes for 287 yards and three touchdowns. When the 49ers cut the Ravens' once-comfortable lead to 28-23 following scores on three straight possessions, Flacco answered with a drive that resulted in a Justin Tucker 19-yard field goal.

Following a 15-yard touchdown run by Kaepernick and a failed two-point conversion that left the Ravens with a 31-29 advantage with 9:57 left, Flacco engineered another march, this one ending with Tucker bootintg it through the uprights with 4:19 to play. Flacco then went to the sideline and, like everybody else, held his breath as the Ravens' defense, the second most effective red zone group during the regular season, held San Francisco out of the end zone.

Flacco threw first-half touchdowns to – a 13-yarder to Anquan Boldin on the Ravens' first drive, a 1-yard connection with Dennis Pitta to make it 14-3 and then a 56-yard strike to Jones to make it a 21-3 game. Jones came back for the ball, tumbled to the turf and then got up when he went untouched and ran into the end zone. In the process, Flacco tied Joe Montana and Kurt Warner for the most touchdowns in a postseason.

When Jones then burst through the middle and returned the opening kickoff of the second half for a 108-yard touchdown and a 28-6 lead, the Ravens appeared to be well on their way to a second title. There was still nearly 30 minutes left to play, but to that point, the Ravens had dominated in every way.

A 31-yard Kaepernick touchdown pass to Michael Crabtree, who spun off Cary Williams and Bernard Pollard, made it 28-13. Then just over two minutes later, the 49ers got a long punt return from Ginn to set up a 6-yard touchdown run by Frank Gore to make it 28-20.

“At no point in the game did we think that we were going to lose,” said linebacker Terrell Suggs who had played 10 seasons before winning his first title. “As long as we had the lead, we knew we had them. They can call us whatever we want but they've got to put champions on it. The Baltimore Ravens are world champions, baby.”

Ravens' coaching staff deserves tons of credit for getting this team to the Super Bowl

By Mike Preston

The Ravens coaching staff might be a victim of the front office's success and its ability to draft or sign good players.

You never hear John Harbaugh mentioned as a possible NFL Coach of the Year. Brian Billick was never a serious candidate either, even though he had a good run in Baltimore from 1999 until 2008.

Few of the experts expected the Ravens to win the AFC North, much less play in the Super Bowl in New Orleans. A 9-7 or 8-8 record was a more realistic possibility.

Miracles still happen.

But to say the Ravens were just a team of destiny would cheapen some of the things they accomplished in 2012. When you look back, there were moments when they could have fallen apart and didn't.

The Ravens had good coaching.

This is not about trying to make Harbaugh the Coach of the Year. That's not his style, or mine, either.

But when you look at the injuries, staff changes and young players, the Ravens are on a remarkable run because of the strong coaching.

Just look at first-year defensive coordinator Dean Pees.

He had to follow in the footsteps of other former Ravens coordinators like Marvin Lewis, Mike Nolan, Rex Ryan and Chuck Pagano. But at least most of them had inside linebacker Ray Lewis in his prime.

Pees got an old Lewis and an old Ed Reed. His defense was minus its former signal caller, Jarret Johnson, and its best defensive end, Cory Redding. His best cover corner, Lardarius Webb, was lost for the season early in the year with a knee injury, and Lewis, linebacker Terrell Suggs and safety Bernard Pollard also missed extensive time with injuries.

Pees also had to work with a lot of new starting players, like end Arthur Jones, outside linebackers Paul Kruger, Courtney Upshaw and Albert McClellan, and cornerbacks Corey Graham and Chykie Brown.

In the beginning of the season, the Ravens struggled. When that happens in Baltimore, fans typically have one solution: blitz and blitz. And blitz some more.

Instead, Pees chose to call plays from upstairs instead of on the field so he could get them in sooner. He put some of his players in situations where they were stronger. For example, Kruger was used more in passing situations, while Upshaw became more of a run stopper. Instead of having to play full time with a "soft" Achilles, Terrell Suggs shared some time with McClellan.

Pees changed up his coverages on the back end and the Ravens became more physical. They certainly became better tacklers. The Ravens can play an attacking style or play bend-but-don't-break, as they did the past two weeks against star quarterbacks Peyton Manning and Tom Brady.

There are no more questions about Pees' coaching abilities.

"I think Dean is a great leader. I think we have a great staff," Harbaugh said. "And Ed [Reed] alluded to it — coaches and players working together to make each other better. That's kind of a motto that we had. And Dean did a great job transitioning really what is a young defense.

"When you look at our defense a bit, it's become a young defense. We needed to adjust what we we're doing a little bit schematically and we did that. We got back to playing. We got [back] to playing those guys in a very fundamentally sound way. And it showed up in the way we played defense in the second half of this season."

The Ravens showed improvement on the other side of the ball as well. Few people ever heard of tight ends coach Wade Harman, but he developed Todd Heap and now has another potential great in Dennis Pitta.

You can't get a lot of words out of running backs coach Wilbert Montgomery, but he helped cultivate the talents of Marshall Faulk and Steven Jackson in St. Louis, and now has Ray Rice and rookie Bernard Pierce on his resume.

And then there is Harbaugh.

During the Ravens' three-game losing streak in early December, I suggested it was time for him to take charge of his team. Enough of the rah-rah, mighty, mighty men stuff. So Harbaugh put on his big boy pants and fired offensive coordinator Cam Cameron after a 31-28 overtime loss to the Washington Redskins, even though the Ravens were 9-4.

The timing was strange, but the move was endorsed here.

The move was way overdue, but at least Harbaugh swallowed his pride.

Since then with Jim Caldwell calling plays, the Ravens have been reborn on offense. Quarterback Joe Flacco has been playing well, and seems more at ease now than ever before in his previous five seasons.

But this isn't all about X&Os. Harbaugh has handled the Ray Lewis retirement tour well, even though it could have been a problem.

Harbaugh is old school. He probably would have preferred Lewis retire like Jonathan Ogden, where one day he picked up the phone and told general manager Ozzie Newsome he was done.

Lewis is always camera ready and all about theatrics. Harbaugh seemed a little annoyed that Lewis was so long-winded in his first public announcement about retiring, but has been gracious while giving the linebacker the proper send-off.

There's a lot more to coaching than most people think. Besides the strategies and the game planning, the coaching staff has to know the personality of the team and maintain the pulse.

The Ravens are under control. Harbaugh has used the underdog role well and is extremely confident. Regardless of whether or not the Ravens beat San Francisco on Feb. 3 in New Orleans, this coaching staff has gotten just about every ounce of talent out of this team. There isn't much more to give.

Ray Lewis, Baltimore Ravens keep pushing through adversity

John Harbaugh stopped on his walk to the Baltimore Ravens' bus, his suit on and an AFC Champions hat tugged tightly over his head. And on the way to the wildest family reunion ever, he was reminded of just how his team had looked 35 days earlier.

That day, his Scotch-taped-together group was overwhelmed by a red-hot Denver Broncos squad that raced to a 31-3 lead before cruising to a 34-17 win in Baltimore. Harbaugh smiled at the memory.

"Looks," he said, "are deceiving."

Want to encapsulate the 2012 Ravens? It's right there, in the five-week period between that loss and the AFC Championship Game.

There was nothing deceptive about what went down at Gillette Stadium on Sunday. The Ravens spent the early going peppering the New England Patriots with jabs before unloading a barrage of second-half haymakers on their decorated hosts, scoring a convincing 28-13 win.

But to simply see Baltimore as the juggernaut it so clearly seemed to be on this night -- without accounting for the road it traveled to get there -- wouldn't do service to the journey. On Dec. 16, Harbaugh might have known that the rest of the world hadn't seen a proper representation of his team, that the loss hadn't marked the beginning of the end for the Ravens. But few others did.

Against the Broncos that day, the Ravens had just four opening-day starters in their defensive lineup, with massive changes having been prompted by a string of unfortunate circumstances. Ray Lewis was still out. Terrell Suggs was playing through a torn biceps, which he'd suffered after coming back from a torn Achilles. The secondary had been decimated. Haloti Ngata had been playing on a sprained MCL all year.

On that afternoon, logic held that it was over for Baltimore.

"Our team is awesome, because we always believed in each other, no matter what we went through," Lewis said in a quiet moment in the tunnel at Gillette. "It shows you how close our team really is. It's special, because everybody went through pain; everybody had to go through some type of pain. And there was always the next man to pick him up and keep his spirits high. When Suggs went through it, I kept his spirits high. When I went through it, too.

"Five of our starters had major surgery? Who does that?"

The Ravens did. And as has been the case with so many things in this topsy-turvy season for Baltimore, it started with something Lewis himself said.

If you ask Suggs to trace it, he'll go back just about one year, after Lee Evans dropped that ball and Billy Cundiff missed that kick and Baltimore went home one game short of the ultimate stage. What Lewis said, the Ravens believed.

" 'We'll be back next year. We'll be back next year,' " Suggs remembered Lewis saying. "And we didn't put it in the hands of the refs or the kickers. Even though a few of those calls were questionable, we just said, 'We don't need to worry about wide left.' "

Suggs, of course, was the first to go down, suffering his Achilles injury in April, with Lewis' vow still ringing in his head.

"They said, 'You're out -- nine months to a year.' I said, 'No way. Not with the team I got. No way,' " Suggs said. "They told me I was out for the season, and I decided with my heart I wasn't gonna accept that. They told Ray he was out for the season. He decided in his heart he wasn't gonna accept that. So here we are. And the Ravens are going to the Super Bowl."

Lewis and Suggs were both in the lineup Sunday. They both played all the way through. As did Ngata and Ed Reed, who seemed to have been held together by paper clips at times this season.

Maybe more impressive was how, banged up and maligned as the defense was -- it ranked a middling 17th overall this season -- the team that showed up to Gillette played like the Ravens.

Some of the hits were borderline. Others were flagged. But the message was being sent that Baltimore -- just like in old times -- was going to be the aggressor in this heavyweight bout.

The Ravens were still older in some spots and beat up all over the place. And yet, what Harbaugh had seen earlier rang true. Their resilience trumped everything else.

Wes Welker's momentum-turning drop on third-and-8 in the third quarter came three plays after he took a big -- and illegal -- shot from Ravens safety Bernard Pollard. Two Patriots possessions later, Pollard knocked the ball loose from Stevan Ridley -- and knocked Ridley from the game.

Joe Flacco and the offense -- under coordinator Jim Caldwell, who called his first game for Baltimore on Dec. 16, after Cam Cameron's firing -- adjusted in the second half. They spread the Patriots out, picking them apart on three consecutive scoring drives before coming back and running six straight times for two critical first downs.

When it was time to finish the Patriots, Baltimore's defense picked off Brady twice, sending the Ravens to a stage few of us envisioned them climbing a month ago.

"We knew they didn't have us picked for this," Reed said outside the locker room. "We were underdogs for the whole time in the playoffs. We weren't picked, and that's Baltimore's spot. It happens. For you to grow as a team, you gotta have some losses, you're gonna have some tough wins, and you're gonna get after each other. And we did. But we persevered through all that, through everything."

The Ravens, without question, have been through a lot.

And maybe that's why, as Harbaugh said, we'd all been deceived, because there was so much beneath the surface of the team's problems.

After Sunday, though, it'd be hard for anyone to miss what the coach has seen all along.

Ravens band together in special run

By Alex Marvez

January 21, 2013

They took over Gillette Stadium as if it was their own.

Fresh off a 28-13 victory over New England in the AFC Championship game, the Baltimore Ravens stuck around to celebrate.

Exuberant inside linebacker Ray Lewis jumped into the arms of fullback Vonta Leach. Running back Ray Rice and wide receiver Torrey Smith did the Lambeau Leap into a crowd of several hundred Ravens fans who were howling the beat from "Seven Nation Army," which has become the team's unofficial rallying cry. Players hugged each other and ran around the field like school children holding pre-printed posters celebrating the victory.

And to think, five years ago, head coach John Harbaugh had to keep Ravens players from going at each other's throats.

The squad that Harbaugh inherited from predecessor Brian Billick had a major divide. A dominating defense had grown resentful of an offense that wasn't carrying its end of the bargain. This animosity manifested itself during a wild brawl that broke out between both sides in an offseason practice.

Hoping to promote camaraderie with a mantra stressed throughout the season, Harbaugh introduced a Biblical parable from the Old Testament that involved climbing a wall. Harbaugh stressed to his charges that they had to help each other or the team wouldn't be whole on the other side.

On Sunday, the Ravens didn't just hurdle the one obstacle that they were unable to overcome. They broke through the wall that had kept the Ravens from reaching a Super Bowl during the previous four seasons of playoff appearances. That included last January's heartbreaking 23-20 AFC title loss at New England.

"We've been through a lot," Ravens center Matt Birk said. "We've been close for the last few years. To finally get over the hump, it's a tribute to how guys feel about each other in this locker room and how much they care."

We got all the best shots from Championship Sunday.

The Ravens needed those bonds to keep from splintering during a tumultuous 2012 season. Key players battled injuries throughout the season. Offensive coordinator Cam Cameron was fired in mid-December when the unit had sputtered for too long. Yahoo! Sports reported that Ravens players almost had a mutiny in October because of what they thought was heavy-handed treatment by Harbaugh. While that rift was mended, Baltimore lost four of its final five regular-season games to stagger into the playoffs as a No. 4 seed.

“We always knew our potential,” Ravens linebacker and special-teams ace Brendon Ayanbadejo said. “We hadn’t really played to our potential. We played in spurts. We haven’t been at full strength all year. We’re as close as we’ve been now.

“We just hung in there and stuck to it. We didn’t panic. We were 9-2 to start the season. We dropped a few games, but we just wanted to make the playoffs. We’re built for January.”

This was proven with three straight postseason victories, including two on the road as heavy underdogs against top AFC seed Denver and then the Patriots. The one against New England was especially satisfying because of the rivalry that has developed between two of the conference’s most successful franchises.

Ravens outside linebacker Terrell Suggs celebrated New England’s demise en route to the postgame locker room celebration. He yelled at reporters to tell the Patriots “have fun at the Pro Bowl” next weekend in Hawaii and then added, “Arrogant f***.”

“When you’ve got three titles and five (Super Bowl) appearances and (Tom Brady) under center, they’ve got the right to be,” Suggs added later. “We respect them. Even enemies can show respect.”

The Ravens earned their own respect Sunday by overcoming a 13-7 halftime deficit. Baltimore’s defense pitched a second-half shutout against New England’s rapid-fire attack while the offense successfully exploited a Patriots secondary that couldn’t compensate for the absence of cornerback Aqib Talib, who didn’t return after suffering a thigh injury on the game’s first series. Wide receiver Anquan Boldin, who forecast a Ravens victory earlier in the week, caught two of Joe Flacco’s three second-half touchdown passes.

“We’ve found a lot of different ways to win games this year,” said Birk, whose unit did an outstanding job neutralizing New England’s defensive front. “We won 9-6 (against Kansas City). We won 31-30 (against New England in September). We just always believed in each other that we could find a way.”

There is further bonding among a slew of Ravens — coaches, players and front-office employees — who share a strong Christian faith. Players offered postgame praise during locker-room chatter among themselves. As he headed toward the locker room, Ravens backup guard Bobbie Williams shouted, “Nobody against us shall prosper! God is good!”

Lewis is at the forefront of the movement. The Ravens have rallied around him since their football and spiritual leader announced at the start of the playoffs that he plans to retire at season’s end. Tears streamed down Lewis’ face during the national anthem as he said aloud, “Thank you, Father. Thank you, Lord.”

“God doesn’t make mistakes,” Lewis said after registering a team-high 14 tackles. “There was no way He was going to bring us back here twice to feel the same feeling. He had a real plan for us the whole year.

“That’s one thing I really congratulate my team by. We stuck to the course no matter what happened throughout the year. It was always, ‘Next man up.’ It’s contagious in our locker room with a respect we have for each other, coaches, all the way down to trainers. It’s a great environment to be around.”

Ayanbadejo is an exception on a roster with so many devout and outspoken Christians. His support of gay marriage rights continues to trigger extensive locker-room debate. But just because Ayanbadejo has a different belief system doesn’t mean he feels any less affection or appreciation toward his teammates.

“Football is a fierce, physical, brutal game,” said Ayanbadejo, who joined the Ravens the same season as Harbaugh in 2008. “But if you don’t love the man next to you, you’re not going to play as hard as you can play. If you play with passion for each other, nobody can stop you. It’s an amazing story.”

The final chapter hasn’t been written yet either. That comes Feb. 3 in Super Bowl XLVII against the San Francisco 49ers in New Orleans.

Flacco silencing critics, establishing legacy before our eyes

By Clark Judge
CBSSports.com
January 21, 2013

People in Baltimore tell me Super Bowl XLVII is all about the end of Ray Lewis' storied career, but I'm not so sure. I think it's more about the beginning of Joe Flacco's.

Because where we once wondered when Flacco would go from an ordinary Joe to an upper echelon quarterback, now we know. That time is now, with Flacco making it to the Super Bowl in his fifth season, thanks to a 28-13 upset of New England in the AFC Championship Game.

Credit the victory to a Ravens defense that shut out Tom Brady and the Patriots for one half, or credit it to Baltimore's resilience, with the Ravens rebounding from a halftime deficit for the second straight week. But I credit it to Flacco, who not only outplayed Brady for a third straight time but silenced his critics -- hopefully, once and for all.

"He's a great quarterback," said receiver Anquan Boldin. "I don't know why people keep dogging him. The bigger the situation, the bigger he plays."

So we're reminded ... again.

With the victory, Flacco ran his playoff record to a glittering 8-4. Moreover, in just five seasons he's been to three conference championship games and has more road victories (six) than any quarterback in playoff history. Plus, he just knocked off Brady one week after he overcame Peyton Manning and two weeks after he bested Andrew Luck.

But that's not all. In three playoff games he has eight touchdown passes and no interceptions. In fact, he hasn't thrown an interception since the first half of a Dec. 16 loss to Denver, and that tells you something about the guy. It tells you he's something special.

"Luck's a pretty good quarterback, and Manning's a pretty good quarterback and Brady is a great quarterback," said coach John Harbaugh. "All of those guys are great players, but Joe's a great quarterback. And Joe has proven that. He's not just proving it this year; he's proven it for five years. But to do it on this stage and to have the success he's had ..."

He didn't need to finish.

All I know is that the Ravens didn't make a move on New England until the second half -- or, until they took the handcuffs off Flacco and cut him loose. Where he threw 12 passes in the first half, he threw 24 in the second. Where he threw for no touchdowns in the first half, he threw for three in the second. Where he trailed in the first half, he put away mighty New England in the second.

"He was," as Harbaugh put it, "Brady-like. Brady gets it to the right guy in coverage where the ball should go. And Joe did a great job of that."

Essentially, the Ravens decided to go as far as Flacco would take them, and he took them for touchdowns on three successive drives of the second half. Granted, New England was missing its best cornerback, Aqib Talib, who bowed out in the first quarter with a thigh injury, but it wasn't replacement Kyle Arrington whom Baltimore targeted. The Ravens simply decided to unshackle Flacco and see what happened.

"We realized we needed to put some pressure on them," said Flacco. "We didn't come all the way here to play it safe and hope to win." That's one way of putting it. Harbaugh had another.

"It became apparent we had to go after them a little more and loosen up a little bit," he said. "I feel like Joe is capable of taking over a game, and it just felt like with the offense we were going against we had to do that."

So they turned the ball over to Flacco, just as they turned it over to him a week ago in Denver when he led the Ravens to an upset of the top-seeded Broncos. That game was supposed to be an anomaly, a victory made possible by the improbable play of Denver's secondary -- er,Rahim Moore in particular.

But it wasn't. It was Flacco rescuing a team that has come to rely more and more on the guy, and it's apparent why. Because he's a damned good quarterback.

"We won," said wide receiver Torrey Smith, "and we won because of him. He was driving us down the field and he made some plays -- some big-time throws. I always say people should get off him, but I think he's gotten some respect, especially today."

He should. Until Flacco arrived, Baltimore had a revolving cast of quarterbacks, some more successful than others. But the Ravens were always looking for someone to stabilize the position, and that included the year after they won Super Bowl XXXV. That was the year they jettisoned Trent Dilfer for free-agent Elvis Grbac, a move that backfired when they bowed out of the playoffs after one victory and Grbac abruptly retired.

That Ravens team was dominated by defense. This Ravens team is dominated by Ray Rice, Flacco and a defense that improved so remarkably the past month with the return of injured players that it limited Brady and Manning to four touchdowns in nine quarters (14 of Denver's points were by returns).

But the defense doesn't get to protect leads until or unless Flacco is on his game, and he hasn't been off for weeks.

Green Bay's Aaron Rodgers once said that the playoffs were all about legacies, especially with quarterbacks, and Joe Flacco finally is making a name for himself. It was on this field a year ago that he outplayed Brady and came this close to beating New England, only to succumb when Lee Evans muffed a touchdown pass and Billy Cundiff blew a game-tying field goal. That wasn't going to happen again because Joe Flacco wouldn't allow it.

"I think he's writing his legacy as we speak," said tight end Dennis Pitta. "He's a great quarterback, and he's getting to prove that right now. These are big ballgames and huge, critical situations that he's delivered in. That just adds to his legacy and the great player he's been. We have a ton of confidence in Joe."

They should. The guy wins.

Ravens headed to Super Bowl after beating Patriots in AFC title game

By Jeff Zrebiec
The Baltimore Sun
January 21, 2013

They wanted the New England Patriots, told the world that they would beat them and then went into their stadium and dominated the second half as no visiting team had ever done.

It didn't seem possible when they limped into the postseason losers of four of five, or when they trailed the Denver Broncos last week by a touchdown with under a minute to go, or during Sunday night's first half, when they were having trouble getting quarterback Tom Brady off the field.

But it's reality now: The Ravens are going to the Super Bowl. Avenging last year's bitter loss to the Patriots in the AFC championship game, the Ravens took apart New England in the second half, punching their ticket to New Orleans with a thorough 28-13 victory in front of an announced 68,756 at stunned Gillette Stadium.

“We know what it felt like walking off that field losers” last season, Ravens safety Bernard Pollard said. “They beat us, and we said we weren't going to walk off again like that.”

Instead, the Ravens bounced off, one by one, celebrating with their fans who had come down to the first couple of rows at Gillette Stadium. Safety Ed Reed, who will play in his first Super Bowl and do it in his home state, sang, “We got two tickets to paradise.”

Outside linebacker Terrell Suggs yelled, “We came, we saw and we conquered.” Defensive end Arthur Jones held up a sign that read, “AFC champions,” and shouted, “Hallelujah, Hallelujah” to no one in particular.

In the Super Bowl for the second time in team history and the first time in 12 years, the Ravens will play the San Francisco 49ers, 28-24 winners over the Atlanta Falcons in the NFC championship game, Feb. 3 at the Mercedes-Benz Superdome. The game will pit Ravens coach John Harbaugh against his younger brother, Jim, the coach of the 49ers.

“I don't know if we had a dream this big,” John Harbaugh said. “We had a few dreams, we had a few fights, we had a few arguments. We'll try to stay out of that business. We'll let the two teams duke it out.”

John Harbaugh's team was at its best when it absolutely had to be, steamrollering Bill Belichick's Patriots — who led 13-7 at halftime — over the final 30 minutes. Belichick had been 72-1 when leading at halftime at Gillette Stadium, including 67-0 with Brady at the helm.

But they had no answers for quarterback Joe Flacco or for a Ravens defense that not only forced three turnovers in the second half, but forced several Patriots to the sidelines.

“We felt like the most physical team was going to win,” said Ravens wide receiver Anquan Boldin. “I don't know if they know it or not, but the Ravens are a physical team. That's just the way we play, like it or not, offensively or defensively. If you think you're going to come in here and knock us around, you have another thing coming.”

A week after outshining the Denver Broncos' Peyton Manning and two weeks after getting the better of Indianapolis Colts phenom Andrew Luck, Flacco outplayed Brady, completing 15 of 24 passes in the second half for 159 yards and three touchdowns after the coaching staff decided in the second half to put the game on the fifth-year quarterback's shoulders.

“We realized we needed to put some pressure on them,” said Flacco, who has now thrown eight touchdowns and no interceptions in three playoff games. “We didn't come all the way here to play it safe.”

With his team still trailing by six points about midway through the third quarter, Flacco hit tight end Dennis Pitta for a 5-yard touchdown that gave the Ravens a 14-13 lead that they never relinquished. On the first play of the fourth quarter, he found Anquan Boldin for a 3-yard score, and a little more than three minutes later, the pair connected for an 11-yard touchdown. Boldin had said during the week that the Ravens would win, and his two touchdowns made sure of that.

“For us, it wasn't a secret what we were trying to accomplish,” Boldin said. “We came here last year and we left with a bitter taste in our mouths. We felt like this team took something away from us. We wanted to come back and make that right. It would have been great to do it in front of our fans in Baltimore at M&T Bank Stadium, but we thought the proper way was to come back here and to win at Foxborough, and we were able to do that.”

Leading 28-13 with 11:13 to play, the Ravens stopped the Patriots on fourth down to get the ball back, then got interceptions on New England's final two possessions. Brady finished 29-for-54 for 320 yards, one touchdown and two interceptions.

“It's our time, it's our time,” said Ravens inside linebacker Ray Lewis, whose retirement tour will go right down to the season's final day in New Orleans. “Every man out there sacrificed this year for each other. And we did it, we did it, we did it. We're on our way to the Super Bowl. That's awesome.”

Lewis, who announced a couple of days before the playoff opener that this would be his “final ride,” dropped to his knees on the field after the clock hit zero. Individual celebrations popped up everywhere while Flacco held the ball aloft. It was a scene that would few would have expected about a month ago.

“It's who we are,” said Ravens wide receiver Torrey Smith (Maryland), who caught four passes for 69 yards. “That's what our city is, a tough city. You get knocked down, you've got to get back up. That's how life is. You just can't lay down and roll over. You've got to continue to fight.”

Trailing 13-7 in the third quarter, the Ravens caught a break when Wes Welker dropped an easy pass from Brady that would, at the very least, have put New England in field-goal position to take a two-possession lead. The Patriots punted instead and would never score again, nor would they stop Flacco when they needed to.

Taking over at his own 13, Flacco put together his sharpest drive of the game. He hit Pitta to get the ball to midfield. Ray Rice then turned a dump-off into a 15-yard gain. An 8-yard run by rookie Bernard Pierce picked up another first down, and then Flacco hit Boldin for 12 yards. On the next play, after Pitta was drilled by Jerod Mayo following a 5-yard completion, the tight end shook free from safety Steve Gregory for a 5-yard touchdown catch.

On the drive, which covered 87 plays on 10 plays, Flacco, who completed just six of 12 passes for 81 yards in the first half, was 6-for-9 for 64 yards — and he was just getting warmed up.

After the defense gave the Ravens the ball right back, Flacco hit Torrey Smith for 23 yards. Pierce had two runs for 17 yards to get the Ravens inside the Patriots' 20. From there, Flacco hit Pitta for 6 yards and Boldin for 8. Then on second-and-goal from the 3, Flacco lofted a pass up to Boldin, who outleaped Devin McCourty for a touchdown. That gave the Ravens a 21-13 lead with under five minutes to go in the third.

On the Patriots' next possession, a thunderous hit by Pollard on Stevan Ridley, which Harbaugh called the play of the game, caused a fumble and knocked the Patriots running back from the game. Jones recovered, and the Ravens needed just four plays to get back in the end zone.

Flacco hit Smith for 16 yards, ran for 14 yards, connected with Jacoby Jones for 6 yards and then threw a beautiful pass over the top of a defender to Boldin for an 11-yard touchdown. The score gave the Ravens a 28-13 lead with 11:13 to play and left Gillette Stadium shocked .

“The guys came out in the second half and made plays,” Flacco said. “We were able to go up and down the field a handful of consecutive times and score points, and that's what we needed to do against this football team. We needed to put pressure on them like that, and it worked pretty well.”

The last couple of minutes essentially morphed into a conference coronation for the Ravens. Flacco playfully shoved Harbaugh a couple of times before the coach finally pushed him back. Owner Steve Bisciotti came down to the sidelines and embraced Lewis. Flacco initially asked his teammates to settle down on the sidelines because there was still time on the clock and Brady was on the other sideline.

But there was no stopping the Ravens on this night. It seemed improbable not too long ago, but there was little doubt in the second half last night. Next stop: New Orleans.

“I have no words, man,” Reed said. “I'm just grateful for our coaches. For everything we've been through since Coach Harbaugh got here, he had a vision of working us a certain way and taking us through something to build and to create this moment. We believed it, but it was just something we had to go through as men and understand each other and understand the process together.”

Longshot Ravens knock off top seed Broncos in improbable fashion

By Clark Judge

Stop looking for this year's Super Bowl dark horse. We just found it.

I'm talking about the Baltimore Ravens, a long shot that somehow beat the odds, Peyton Manning and the top-seeded Denver Broncos all at the same time with an improbable 38-35 victory in double overtime that ranks as one of the most memorable in modern playoff history.

It's not only that the Ravens won a game they weren't supposed to. It's how they won.

There was a 70-yard touchdown pass with almost no time left in regulation -- a play that never, ever, ever should have happened. There was a Peyton Manning interception in overtime on a throw that never, ever, ever should have happened. And there was a pulsating, come-from-behind, you-gotta-see-it-to-believe-it defeat of an opponent that hadn't lost in 11 straight games.

Yet deserved to lose.

That's why you have to wonder what's next for Baltimore. With the victory, the Ravens graduate to the AFC title game for the second straight year and the third time in coach John Harbaugh's five seasons. The expectation is that they'll face New England again, and how appropriate. The Ravens lost last year's conference championship contest to the Patriots when Lee Evans dropped a winning touchdown pass before Billy Cundiff blew a tying field goal.

So maybe there's a score to settle with ... well, with someone, including themselves. The Ravens believed they were the AFC's best in 2011, and they believe it again. Only now they have an unexpected opportunity to correct last year's mistake.

"We fought hard to get to this point," quarterback Joe Flacco said. "We are definitely proud of being here, and we feel like it is going to take a lot for someone to come and kick us off that field come the AFC championship game. We are going to give it our all. We know what it felt like last year. We walked off that field without that win."

That should've happened again Saturday, only it didn't ... and it didn't because of Denver safety Rahim Moore. Or maybe it was Manning. Take your pick. All I know is that Moore blew the play that allowed Baltimore back in this game, and Manning threw the interception that led to the winning field goal.

"A very disappointing finish" is how Manning described it. Horrendous is more like it. Because Denver blew this one -- flat-out blew it -- and you can start with Moore's blunder. OK, give Baltimore's Jacoby Jones and Flacco credit for making the improbable happen, with the two hooking up for a tying 70-yard score with 31 seconds left in the fourth quarter and the Ravens out of timeouts.

But tell me: How does that happen? I mean, all Denver had to do was not let anyone get behind its secondary ... which, of course, is just what happened, and blame Moore. He's the deep safety who blew the angle on Jones and blew the coverage.

"It was my fault," he later said. "If they wouldn't have scored on us on the last play [of the fourth quarter] we'd be in here rejoicing. So if people don't like me after that, I'm sorry. That is my fault, and I am going to take full responsibility for it."

Well, he should. He committed a fatal mistake, and the Broncos are out of the playoffs because of it.

"He just misjudged the ball," Baltimore safety Ed Reed said. "Like I told him after the game: 'Not one play loses the game.' It might've tied it, and thank God for that. [I'm] just grateful, man."

His teammates are, too, because they just caught a huge break. But that's what I'm talking about with this team. They should've lost -- but they didn't. They should've wilted after Trindon Holliday hit them with kickoff and punt returns for touchdowns -- but they didn't. They should've collapsed after Flacco's fourth-down pass to tight end Dennis Pitta fell incomplete with just over three minutes left -- but they didn't. And they should've fallen victim to another Manning comeback victory -- but they didn't.

Instead, they held fast, intercepted Manning in overtime and ended a nine-game Manning winning streak against them that dated back to 2002.

"There is something here that's bigger than we are," said Harbaugh, "and I can't really describe it for you right now because we haven't done it. But there's a certain faith and trust that we have right now. I've never been on a team that has it like this. It's hard to describe, and some people will mock that. But it's real."

You gotta believe.

After the Ravens lost their third straight this season, a Dec. 16 blowout by Denver, I questioned if they'd win again. Then they walloped the New York Giants, the defending Super Bowl champions. Still, they limped into the playoffs losing four of their last five, yet somehow, some way, are one victory from the Super Bowl.

"The story is still being written," Reed said. "We're just one of those teams that wants to keep going right now. We knew we were a special team, regardless of what happened. We've been through so many ups and downs, adversity, people losing family members -- it's been tough. But since coach Harbaugh has been here we've been through a lot of things, and it's things that are so much bigger than this game."

That's another way of saying these Ravens believe in themselves, and maybe it's time we join them. I just watched them win a game I never imagined they would. But they did and in the most unlikely way.

OK, I'll buy that. I'll buy into this team, too. I don't care whether it faces New England or Houston -- I'm sold. And Saturday's victory convinced me that maybe, just maybe, we're looking at the 2010 Green Bay Packers or 2011 New York Giants all over again.

"There was only one way to cap last week," said Lewis, referring to an emotional defeat of Indianapolis, "and that was to win this week. And that's what we, as a team, spoke about. We said: 'What if we do the impossible?'

"Man says it's not possible, and God says, 'I do the impossible.' For us to come in here and win as 9- to 10-point underdogs, that's the beautiful part about sports. If I'll miss anything about my career it will be to listen to what people say you can't do ... then to go and to it. This is what life is all about."

So we were just reminded.

Ravens proving to be team of destiny

By Jamison Hensley

As the Baltimore Ravens celebrated winning one of the best playoff games in NFL history, the players came off the field yelling, "No one thought we would win."

The Ravens made a convincing statement in Saturday's AFC divisional playoff game, riding big plays from Joe Flacco and a wave of emotion surrounding outgoing leader Ray Lewis. Their 38-35 double-overtime victory over the top-seeded Broncos was epic and thrilling. But it's not the fact that the long-shot Ravens won. It's how they won. What makes you believe in the Ravens more than ever is how unbelievable the triumph was.

How does a team that lost four of its last five regular-season games (the Ravens) beat a team that had won 11 straight (the Broncos)? How does Corey Graham, a Pro Bowl special-teams player last season, intercept Peyton Manning twice, including in overtime to set up the winning score? And how does Jacoby Jones get behind two Denver defenders to catch a soaring, 70-yard touchdown from Flacco to tie the game with 31 seconds remaining in regulation?

By the time Justin Tucker's 47-yard field goal sliced inside the right upright to end the fourth-longest game in NFL history, there was a sense that this was more than a special victory. This is a special team.

There always seems to be a team that gets hot late and makes an improbable championship run. The hot team this season is the one that emerged victorious after braving 4 hours, 11 minutes in minus-1 wind chill temperatures. It's a Ravens team that is headed to its third AFC Championship Game in five seasons but never before in such improbable fashion.

"We could be a team of destiny," running back Ray Rice said. "But I think we're a team of believers."

It's hard not to believe in the Ravens after witnessing the final minute of the fourth quarter. The Ravens trailed 35-28 with 41 seconds remaining and no timeouts. They stood 70 yards from the end zone on third down.

The Ravens' hopes didn't look much brighter when Flacco dropped back and immediately felt pressure coming from both sides. Then, right as he saw a receiver getting behind the defense, Flacco stepped up and heaved the ball 54 yards in the air. Jones, who described the pass as a pretty spiral punt that landed in his hands, caught the ball at the 20-yard line before outrunning cornerback Tony Carter and safety Rahim Moore to the end zone.

If Nashville can have the Music City Miracle, the Ravens can have the Mile-High Miracle.

"You have to get a little bit lucky. It worked out," said Flacco, who averaged 18.3 yards per completion. "We're able to take a shot, and everybody came through when that one opportunity kind of arose."

How much were the odds stacked against the Ravens at that point? According to ESPN Stats & Information's win probability model, Denver had a 97.2 percent chance of winning the game before the Jones touchdown. In other words, Flacco might have had a better shot at winning the lottery than this game.

"It was one of those miraculous plays," said Graham, who watched the play from the sidelines. "I don't think it will ever be forgotten."

Before this game, Ravens safety Ed Reed watched a piece on television about how the Immaculate Reception occurred in the 1972 season and The Comeback (the Bills rallying from a 32-point deficit) happened in the 1992 season. Now, Flacco's desperation pass will be added to NFL lore.

"I was just watching that not knowing today would be one of those special moments in time," Reed said.

So, does Reed get the feeling the Ravens are one of those special teams?

"We knew it was a special team regardless of what happened at the end of this," he said.

Reed is right. The Ravens have bonded this season over adversity, from the passing of owner Art Modell just before the start of the season to the death of Torrey Smith's younger brother in Week 3. They have been able to overcome injuries to linebackers Lewis and Terrell Suggs, and watched both return to the team when many initially thought both would be lost for the season. And don't forget about the Ravens' other miracle this season -- Rice converting fourth-and-29 in San Diego.

Still, the Ravens looked like the least likely of the AFC teams to make a Super Bowl run. They backed into the playoffs with a disastrous December, which included losing four out of five games and the firing of offensive coordinator Cam Cameron. The turning point came four days before Baltimore's first playoff game, when Lewis announced this was going to be his "last ride."

"We're dealing with something where everything is 'a last' for us. It's the last game or last drive for Ray Lewis," Rice said. "Peyton is coming back next year. [Colts coach Chuck] Pagano is coming back to coach next year. We love them guys, but it's the last for our guy."

Lewis and the Ravens have embraced the underdog role, and few gave the Ravens much of a chance in the divisional playoff game. Baltimore was a nine-point underdog, and for good reason. The Ravens had lost nine straight to Manning. They had lost to the Broncos by 17 points just four weeks ago. And the Ravens were traveling across two time zones on a short week of rest.

None of that mattered as the Ravens battled back in a game in which they trailed by seven points four times. The Ravens battled back after giving up a 90-yard touchdown on the game's first punt and a 104-yard touchdown on the opening kickoff of the second half. It was the ultimate test in postseason resiliency.

"If I miss anything about my career, it will be to listen to what people say you can't do and then go do it," Lewis said. "There was only one way to cap last week, and that was to win this week. And that's what we, as a team, spoke about. We said: 'What if we do the impossible?'"

The Ravens await the winner of Sunday's AFC divisional playoff game between the New England Patriots and the Houston Texans.

Baltimore players said they didn't care whom they faced, and you tend to believe them. This playoff run is about the Ravens and a personal mission that began last season when Lee Evans failed to catch that pass in the AFC Championship Game.

"We feel like it's going to take a lot for someone to kick us off that field come the AFC Championship Game," Flacco said. "We know what it felt like last year when we walked off that field without that win. We know what we've put in to get back to this point."

Ravens offense wakes up in second half of 24-9 win over Colts

By Jeff Zrebiec

Ray Lewis ran on the field one more time and the man who has written the Ravens' defensive record book had another career first left in him. As quarterback Joe Flacco prepared to kneel down, Lewis jogged about 10 yards behind him and took his place in victory formation.

Once Flacco took the final snap and handed the ball to referee Mike Carey, Lewis did his trademark dance. This was indeed Lewis' day. After a 17-year run with on franchise, he earned that much in the final home game of his career.

But when it was over, the Ravens rushed onto the field to celebrate the continuation of not just Lewis' Hall of Fame worthy career, but their season. A 24-9 victory over the Indianapolis Colts in front of an announced 71,379 at M&TBank Stadium sends the Ravens into the second round of the playoffs, where they will meet a Denver Broncos' team that embarrassed them by 17 points at home three weeks ago.

The Ravens and Broncos will play at Mile High Stadium at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, and a win would get the Ravens back into the AFC championship game for a second straight season. As it is, the Ravens have now won a playoff game five straight seasons. John Harbaugh is the first coach since the 1970 NFL merger to accomplish that in his first five seasons at the helm.

"I think we're all appreciative, grateful for the opportunity to be here and to witness this historic moment in sports," said Harbaugh who is now 6-4 in the postseason, including 4-0 in wild-card games. "It wasn't just about one guy. Nobody understands it more than the one guy we're talking about. It was about a team. It was about a city, a fan base, about a great sport, about a great career. I'm just humbled to be part of it."

Lewis, who announced Wednesday that this playoff run would be his "last ride," took a victory lap around M&T Bank Stadium, reminiscent of former Oriole Cal Ripken Jr. at Camden Yards after he broke Lou Gehrig's consecutive games streak. In his first game since he tore his right triceps on Oct. 14, Lewis was credited with a game-high 13 tackles.

"It probably won't sink in," said Lewis when asked about never getting an opportunity to play at M&T Bank Stadium again. "You know what, the reason is because the next thing on my mind is, as a team, we are poised to go do something. As men, we made a commitment to each other and that is to head next week to Denver to get a win."

Flacco and the Ravens' defense which gave up plenty of yards but kept the Colts out of the end zone turned a tenuous four-point halftime lead into a relatively comfortable victory, allowing the Ravens to pay tribute to Lewis in the game's final couple of minutes.

Shrugging off a sluggish start, Flacco threw second-half touchdowns to tight end Dennis Pitta and wide receiver Anquan Boldin to pull away from the Colts, who had rebounded from a two-win 2011 season to become one of the surprises of the NFL.

Held without a catch in the first half, Boldin set a playoff team record with 145 receiving yards on five catches. His 18-yard touchdown over Darius Butler with 9:14 to play gave the Ravens the 24-9 lead, and cornerback Cary Williams all but sealed the victory with an interception of rookie Andrew Luck on the Colts' next possession. The Ravens' 441 yards of offense, which included 103 rushing yards from rookie Bernard Pierce, was a franchise playoff record.

"The bottom line is we haven't won it all, and that's been our goal, and that's our goal this year," Flacco said. "Right now, we're just focused on going up to Denver and we'll have to move on from this one quickly and get another step closer to our goal."

After the game, Boldin acknowledged that he wanted to play Denver again and when asked why Saturday will be different, the wide receiver said, "We'll make it different."

The AFC North-champion Ravens entered the playoffs having lost four of five games, but they showed some significant progress in some areas while continuing to look vulnerable in others.

A re-tooled offensive line, which featured Bryant McKinnie at left tackle, Michael Oher at right tackle and Kelechi Osemele at left guard, allowed Flacco to be sacked only once and gave him the time to take several shots down the field. Flacco was 12-of-23 for 282 yards, two touchdowns and no turnovers in a game where the Ravens averaged 7.9 yards per play and had eight plays of 20 yards or more.

The Ravens also rushed for 170 yards but the ground game was marred by two Ray Rice fumbles, his first two turnovers of the season.

“I’m going to address it. I’m not a fumbler, you guys know that, and that’ll be the last time I address me fumbling,” said Rice who lost both fumbles in Colts’ territory. “It won’t happen again.”

On defense, the Ravens allowed the Colts to amass 419 yards and to control the ball for 37:32, yet they forced two turnovers and sacked Luck three times. Luck completed 28-of-54 passes for 288 yards, but he turned the ball over twice in Ravens’ territory.

By the time pre-game introductions began, there wasn’t an open seat to be found. Following the announcement of safety Ed Reed who also may have played his last home game as a Raven, Lewis came out and did his trademark dance as the Ravens rushed toward him. Flacco joked that he tried to convince his wife, Dana, to bring in a video camera to capture the moment. Harbaugh also inched forward to get a good view.

With all the emotion on both sides — Colts head coach and former Ravens defensive coordinator Chuck Pagano was on the sidelines for the second straight week as he battles leukemia — neither team got off to a particularly good start. The Ravens finally found the end zone on fullback Vonta Leach’s 2-yard run 50 seconds before halftime, a score that was set up by a 47-yard screen pass to Rice.

That appeared to get Flacco going. He was 3-for-4 for 76 yards on the Ravens’ second drive of the third quarter, which ended with a 20-yard touchdown to Pitta. Following kicker Adam Vinatieri’s 40-yard miss early in the fourth, Flacco needed just five plays to get the Ravens in the end zone as he hit Boldin for 18 yards.

About an hour after the game and his victory lap, Lewis said he would allow his teammates to enjoy the victory for no more than 12 hours. Lewis had already turned in his iPad so it could be loaded with game film of Peyton Manning and the Broncos. Ravens fans may never forget Lewis’ final home game, but the 37-year-old linebacker had already moved on.

“At the end of the day, it’s not about me and Peyton. It’s about their team against our team,” Lewis said. “I just like our team. I love our team right now and I’m really looking forward to going out there and playing them next week.”

Ray Lewis: Greatest defensive player ever

By Jamison Hensley
ESPN.com

Ravens linebacker Ray Lewis, who announced that he will retire at the end of the season, will leave this game with a lot of titles.

Twelve-time Pro Bowl player. Seven-time All-Pro. Two-time NFL Defensive Player of the Year. Super Bowl MVP.

Here's another one that should be added to the list: greatest defensive player in NFL history.

Some will argue for Lawrence Taylor, Dick Butkus, Reggie White or Ronnie Lott. What makes Lewis stand above all of them is how he dominated in every facet. While Taylor changed the game in the 1980s, Lewis did the same in this generation with his range, strength, speed and intelligence.

“Everything that starts has an end. It’s just life," Lewis told reporters Wednesday. "And for me, today I told my team that this will be my last ride. I told them I just felt so much peace at where I am with my decision because of everything I’ve done in this league. I’ve done it, man.”

When it came to the running game, Lewis was fast enough to chase down running backs and physical enough to make them pay when he did. In Lewis' first 16 seasons, Baltimore never allowed more than 3.9 yards per carry.

When it came to the passing game, he was explosive enough to rush the passer and athletic enough to cover running backs and tight ends. He's the only player in NFL history to amass 40 sacks and 30 interceptions.

Lewis isn't simply the best defensive player because of his play. What made Lewis special was how he elevated those around him and consistently made the Ravens the most feared defense. Since 1999, in the 11 seasons in which Lewis has played at least 12 games, the Ravens' defense ranked in the top 10 every year, including eight times in the top three. Teams have signed Lewis' teammates to big contracts (Duane Starks, Ed Hartwell, Sam Adams, Bart Scott) in trying to build their defenses, but few have ever played as they did beside him.

It's more than stats that make Lewis the best ever. It's the jaw-dropping memories.

In 1999, Lewis ran down San Diego slot receiver Eric Metcalf from behind from the far side of the field after Metcalf caught a 20-yard pass over the middle in full stride. In the 2000 playoffs, Lewis grabbed a bobbled pass to Eddie George, ripped his leg away from the Titans running back and ran in the interception for the score. In 2008, Lewis ran to the hole and hit Rashard Mendenhall so hard that he fractured the shoulder of the Steelers running back. In 2009, Lewis closed out a win in San Diego with a spectacular fourth-down tackle in which he ran through the line and hit Darren Sproles as soon as he took the handoff.

Lewis beat teams because he was stronger than them. He beat teams because he was faster. And, by the time he reached 30, he beat them by using his head, studying film to the point where he called out the offense's play before the ball was snapped.

Lewis' impact on the game stretches beyond the field. He's been the main reason that four of his defensive coordinators went on to become head coaches: Marvin Lewis, Mike Nolan, Rex Ryan and Chuck Pagano.

What makes Lewis' career reach an epic level is its duration. Mike Singletary retired after 12 seasons with the Bears, before his play declined. The Steelers' Jack Lambert walked away after 11 years because of a severe toe injury. The Bears' Butkus stopped after nine seasons because of knee injuries.

Lewis has been shedding blocks from 300-pound linemen and chasing down 20-something running backs for 17 seasons and 228 games. He's made more tackles (2,050) than many have played snaps for a career. Sure, Lewis wasn't the same linebacker this year that he was five or 10 years ago. But the Ravens wouldn't want anyone else manning the middle of their defense.

"I can't picture Baltimore without him," running back Ray Rice said. "Baltimore is Ray Lewis."

The Ravens should just put Lewis in the Ring of Honor on Sunday, which is likely his final game in Baltimore. They need to make his No. 52 the first one the franchise will retire. They need to build a statue of Lewis right next to Johnny Unitas' statue outside M&T Bank Stadium.

Lewis' influence goes beyond the Baltimore Inner Harbor. For nearly two decades, defense in the NFL has been synonymous with Lewis. Relentless in the NFL has also been defined by Lewis.

He is coming back 11 weeks removed from a torn triceps, an injury that many believed would end his season. Lewis, though, is coming back for the playoffs and going out on his own terms.

Lewis came into the league as the 26th overall pick in 1996, sliding down the first round because he was considered undersized. Seventeen years later, he leaves the game with a legacy that is larger than life.

Jacoby Jones, Ed Reed, Haloti Ngata, Ray Rice, Vonta Leach, Marshal Yanda named to Pro Bowl squad

The Baltimore Sun
December 26, 2012

It was at some point after his 105-yard sprint for a touchdown against the Oakland Raiders in mid-November when Jacoby Jones realized that his first season with the Ravens most likely would end in Honolulu.

Jones, who has three return touchdowns this season and leads the NFL in kickoff return average, was named to the Pro Bowl team for the first time in his career. Selected as a return specialist for the AFC, Jones said he'll bring his mother and his lead blocker, Anthony Allen, on the trip.

"This means a lot," said Jones who signed a two-year deal with the Ravens in May after he was cut by the Houston Texans. "It says you are in the elite of the elite, which is tough to do, and that takes a lot of consistency and hard work. But again, a lot of praise goes to the guys blocking in front of me."

Jones should have plenty of company in Hawaii as six Ravens were selected for the game, which will be played Jan. 27 at Aloha Stadium, the week prior to the Super Bowl.

Joining Jones as starters are fullback Vonta Leach, offensive guard Marshal Yanda and safety Ed Reed. Running back Ray Rice and defensive tackle Haloti Ngata made the team as reserves. Safety Bernard Pollard was selected as a first alternate, meaning he'd make the team if a player ahead of him can't participate.

Jones was the only first-time selection in the group.

"I had a chance to come here, and it's been a breath of fresh air," said Jones who is the first Raven to have multiple kickoff return touchdowns in either a season or a career. "As soon as I walked through the door, they told me to be myself and that they'd give me an opportunity. They told me to make plays when they call my number, and that's what I've tried to do."

Reed has now made the Pro Bowl nine times in his 11-year career. Ngata is a four-time Pro Bowl selection, while Rice and Leach both made it for a third time. Yanda also is a two-time Pro Bowl starter.

The Ravens have had at least five players named to the Pro Bowl in each of the past five seasons.

"It really is a great thing," coach John Harbaugh said. "That's something that you really feel so good for those guys, especially a number of guys have made it a number of years in a row. You look at a guy like Ed Reed, who has made it all these years in a row. It almost becomes expected, but then what an accomplishment that really is. … I think most of us look at it like it's a team thing. Vicariously, we all take pride in that. When a guy makes it on offense, all the guys on offense feel like they were part of that. It's a big deal."

The rosters for the AFC and NFC were selected based on the votes of players, coaches and fans, with each group counting for one third of the vote. Pollard and Ravens left tackle Michael Oher both won the fan ballot at their position, but they were not immediately selected for the game.

Reed's selection generated some outside criticism because the safety has struggled at times this season, making 58 tackles, four interceptions and totaling 15 passes defended. Several football pundits voiced the opinion that San Diego Chargers safety Eric Weddle should have been on the team.

"I wouldn't expect anything different from Ed Reed," Ravens cornerback Corey Graham said. "He's Ed Reed. It's great to see him make it this year. He's a Hall of Famer for a reason."

Ngata, who will back up interior defensive linemen Vince Wilfork of the New England Patriots and Geno Atkins of the Cincinnati Bengals, also has had a relatively quiet year by his standards. Dealing with knee and shoulder injuries, Ngata has 51 tackles and five sacks in 14 games.

Rice is sixth in the NFL and second in the AFC in yards from scrimmage per game (107.7). He also has 10 total touchdowns and ranks first among AFC running backs in receptions (61). He'll play behind starters Arian Foster of the Texans and Jamaal Charles of the Kansas City Chiefs.

"Honestly, the ultimate goal is the Super Bowl. I always put that out there but to have that amount of respect around the league is something you never take for granted," Rice said.

Leach, who has made the Pro Bowl in both of his seasons as Rice's lead blocker, agreed with Rice, acknowledging that while it's nice to get recognized by his peers, it's far more important to reach the Super Bowl which will be held Feb. 3 at the Mercedes-Benz Superdome. Players participating in the Super Bowl do not play in the Pro Bowl the week before.

"I just want to win. I don't play this game for individual awards," Leach said. "I'd rather be in New Orleans than go to the Pro Bowl."

Joe Flacco Lights Out In Victory

The Ravens quarterback had one of his best games this season following weeks of criticism.

By Garrett Downing
BaltimoreRavens.com

Joe Flacco smiled as he sat on the bench late in Sunday's game against the New York Giants.

He had just finished one of his best performances of the season, and he got to enjoy the final series from the sidelines as the Ravens put in backup quarterback Tyrod Taylor to finish off the Ravens' 33-14 victory.

Flacco was shown on the Ravens video boards, bringing big cheers from the crowd at M&T Bank Stadium. It was a far cry from the boos and criticism Flacco had endured following last week's loss to the Broncos.

With the pressure on him to perform, Flacco responded in a big way and led the Ravens to a critical late-season victory.

"I know he's been getting a lot of gripe the last couple of weeks, probably even from teammates," safety Ed Reed said. "It's a process. It's a process we are all in together. He had a great game."

Flacco finished the day with 25-of-36 passing for 309 yards and two touchdowns. He was sharp and effective throughout the day, and led the Ravens offense to a season-high 533 total yards.

He spread the ball around to seven receivers, was quick to release the ball in the pocket and also kept plays alive with his feet. Flacco had the Ravens offense clicking, and orchestrated the up-tempo approach to near perfection.

"Joe was lights out today," tight end Dennis Pitta said. "He threw for over 300 yards and was seeing the field great and delivering the ball right where it had to be. He made a ton of big plays and got our offense started fast and rolling from the beginning."

The performance from Flacco came after a rocky couple of weeks.

He had struggled recently, committing six turnovers during the three-game losing streak. His play and his impending free agency had become a popular topic among the local and national media, with some even questioning whether he was the long-term solution for the Ravens at quarterback.

Following the dismissal of Offensive Coordinator Cam Cameron after the Week 14 loss to Washington, Flacco admitted that more pressure would fall on him to lead the offense and play at a high level for the rest of the season.

The magnifying glass was then placed squarely on Flacco following last week's loss, where he had two critical turnovers, including an interception return for touchdown that ended up being the game-changing play.

"When you lose three straight, people look at the quarterback, that's part of the job," Flacco said. "I think a lot is made and sometimes it really isn't that much, and it's not my job to really listen to [the criticism], so I don't. … I believe in myself. I believe in this team."

The showing from Flacco Sunday displayed the resiliency of the fifth-year quarterback, who has now led the Ravens to AFC North titles in back-to-back seasons.

"I think it says that he's a very good quarterback, number one," Head Coach John Harbaugh said. "It also says that he has a lot of determination, a lot of pride, and he was able to handle that. That's probably the biggest thing. You have to have think skin, skin like an armadillo."

His teammates spoke highly of what Flacco was able to do with his back against the wall.

"I've always said that he's handled the pressure better than anybody I've ever seen," running back Ray Rice said. "He's done a great job handling it – and as I said, we go as Joe goes."

"I think Joe plays big every week," tight end Ed Dickson added. "When Joe is in the zone, he looks like one of the best quarterbacks out there. We told him as an offensive group that we have his back. … I think Joe stepped up big and he showed a little emotion today."

Flacco said that his confidence never wavered, and spoke adamantly after last week's loss to Denver that the Ravens would have to respond and find out what kind of team they are in the final weeks of the season.

There is still plenty of football left to be played, but Sunday's win over the Giants was a step in the right direction.

"I think that we showed ourselves and we showed people today that we are that kind of team," Flacco said. "We're here to stay and we just have to do all we can to get better, to play like this and even get better than this throughout the remaining weeks."

Byrne Identity: Ray Lewis Talks About Pain And Coming Back

Will Ray Lewis return this season? 'Oh yeah,' he confidently told Kevin Byrne.

By Kevin Byrne

December 21, 2012

The device sends electronic stimulation to the injured area. Depending on the voltage, the feeling ranges from unusual to painful. Add lifting some weights with the same arm while the electricity is being sent to the injured area. That really hurts.

That is not for the faint of heart. It makes you cringe to watch.

Beads of sweat formed on Ray Lewis' face as he regularly did exactly that exercise, pushing himself to a return to the field for the Ravens. "Pain exists, and I'm impatient. If pain is the thing, I'm committed to coming back. Don't tell me to stop because of pain. I'll be smart if you tell me I can be reinjured. I'll fight pain. I'll go beyond the norm."

He did, and he continues to do this.

When Ray was injured against the Cowboys on Oct. 14, doctors said it was season-ending. "The docs told me it would be four months, at best, before I could use my arm to play football again.

"I wasn't having that," Lewis told me yesterday morning.

"I called Ozzie (Newsome), and I told him that I could come back and help the team this season. I asked him not to put me on injured reserve. I told the same thing to 'Harbs.' I asked them to believe me. I knew I could do it. I know my body better than anyone."

After some discussions with our doctors and trainers, Oz decided to place Ray on injured reserve, but on a new list that allows a player to return to the roster, rather than be out for the season. Each team is allowed to use this designation once per season.

"Did I believe Ray could come back? Well, it is Ray, and if any player could do it, it would be him. I believed him. We trusted him," Newsome explained.

Will Ray Be Back This Season?

"Oh yeah, I wanted to play last Sunday against Denver (first game Ray was allowed to come off the reserve list). But, the docs said, 'No.' As soon as they open the door, I'm walking through it," Ray said.

How excited would he be to come out of the tunnel to be introduced to the M&T Bank Stadium crowd?

"I might pass out. My heart would be racing. Maybe some of the fans would pass out too," Lewis said chuckling.

(I told Ray we are introducing the defense this Sunday. "You know I'm trying to prove to them that I can go," he said.)

Don't Watch Ravens With Ray

"When I was first injured and had surgery, the docs and trainers wanted me to rest. I went to my home in Florida. I had to watch some of our games on TV," Lewis said.

How was that?

"Terrible. The first one I watched was the Houston game. I was yelling at everyone. I had to go to a room and watch by myself. I was the fan no one wanted to sit around. I was yelling at position groups, individuals. I was furious. When the game got out of hand, I was like, 'Just man up. Hit someone in the mouth. Let them know you're not giving up and that there will be a next time.'"

Any Good Part Of Being Sidelined?

"The best part was spending more time with my children. I got a taste of what's it going to be like when I stop playing in the NFL. It's special."

For example?

"Two of my sons play on the same high school team. My oldest – he's going to the 'U' – was having to deal with injuries too. They made the playoffs and made it to the last round, but, in the end, they had too many players hurt. Ray Jr. had messed up his wrist and was dealing with a groin injury. I had to talk to him and tell him that, 'Sometimes it's OK to sit out. They (injuries) happen for a reason, Junior.' He cried. I told him, 'This doesn't mean life is over.' So, I had to practice what I preached. He was dealing with it, and Junior helped me deal with my injury.'"

Ray Believes

"We need some momentum right now," Lewis said when talking about a Ravens' run to the Super Bowl. "Momentum is real in life and in football. Good things lead to good things. Bad can lead to more bad. We're giving effort, but it hasn't been rewarded over the last three games. Look what those young lions did on defense in the first half against Denver. Three-and-outs against Peyton Manning! That was real.

"But, you can't make mistakes. We can't give up big plays, and we can't give the other team the ball. We have young talent. We don't have maturity. Sometimes we play checkers when we should be playing chess. Like Coach (Harbaugh) says, 'More games are lost than won.' In checkers, you want to take a quick jump. In chess, there's more strategy. Sometimes the quick jump is not what you need. Sometimes you need to play chess: 'If they do this, we do that. If they do this, what does it mean for the next series?' We can swing this momentum.

"We just need to win this next game and start a run. I believe we can do this," Lewis concluded.

Are We Seeing The Final Games Of Ray Lewis?

I'm not sure. I believe Ray has made up his mind, and he'll share that when he believes it is appropriate. In the meantime, I know this. He's coming back this season. Whether it's this Sunday against the Giants or next week in Cincinnati, or in the playoffs, No. 52 is going to help this Ravens team complete the 2012 journey.

How cool would it be for him to run out of our home tunnel at least one more time? "At linebacker, No. 52, 13-time Pro Bowler and two-time NFL Defensive Player of the Year, Ray Lewis." My heart will pound. So will his. So will the hearts of many Ravens fans. Maybe it will happen this Sunday. I hope so.

Injuries have forced the Ravens to lean on a patchwork defense

Only four Ravens defensive players have started every game this season — and two of them are expected to miss Sunday's showdown with Denver

By Jeff Zrebiec
The Baltimore Sun
December 15, 2012

When Denver Broncos quarterback Peyton Manning goes under center Sunday, starts barking out calls and then takes one final glance across the line of scrimmage, what he sees will bear very little resemblance to any Ravens defense he has ever faced.

For the past decade as a member of the Indianapolis Colts, Manning took apart some of the Ravens' most dominant defenses. Sunday at M&T Bank Stadium, Manning and his 10-3 Broncos will oppose one of the Ravens' most vulnerable ones.

Injuries have forced the Ravens to rely on standout special teams players as defensive starters, thrust normally little-used players into big roles and given guys who were either at home or on the practice squad just weeks ago opportunities to aid in the playoff push.

"I don't think I've ever had so many [players] out for long periods of time and all at the same time," Ravens defensive coordinator Dean Pees said. "It's been interesting."

Pees, who has been forced to juggle his personnel throughout his first season as Ravens defensive coordinator, clearly hasn't lost his sense of humor even in the midst of preparing for Manning and Denver's explosive offense. Asked Thursday who will wear the headset in his helmet and relay the play calls to the rest of the defense, Pees grinned and said, "Next question," before breaking out into laughter. "No, Josh Bynes probably, or whoever will be in there at inside linebacker. I hate to say Josh, because it's only Thursday, so it's hard to tell."

Bynes, signed as an undrafted free agent last year, has never started a game in his NFL career and was on the practice squad just eight weeks ago. Yet Sunday, he could find himself matching wits with Manning, a colossal challenge for even the most experienced and accomplished player. Such is the state of the Ravens' linebacker corps, a group that has come to symbolize the team's recent injury woes and defensive struggles.

Inside linebacker Ray Lewis, the longtime face and voice of the Ravens defense, has been out since Week 6 with a torn right triceps and wasn't activated for Sunday's game. Lewis' replacement, Jameel McClain, has already been declared out with a neck injury.

Weak-side linebacker Dannell Ellerbe, who had elevated his play in Lewis' absence, is in danger of missing his third straight game with an ankle injury. Rush linebacker Terrell Suggs, whose season has been marred first by a torn Achilles and now by a torn biceps, is also a game-time decision.

"I've been here for four years and it's never been this bad," said linebacker Paul Kruger, who leads the Ravens with eight sacks despite missing one game with a bad back. "It's a tough thing to go through. We are a very talented team with a lot of potential, but to have those guys go down at any time of the year, especially this late in the season, it just really [stinks]."

The Ravens' defense ranks 24th in the NFL in yards allowed per game (375.9). It ranks 25th against the run (129.3 yards per game) and 23rd against the pass (246.6). Coach John Harbaugh and Pees have never used injuries as an excuse for the team's uncharacteristically poor defensive play, acknowledging that other factors have contributed.

There have been instances of poor tackling, lapses in communication and ill-timed breakdowns. The pass rush has been inconsistent and the coverage, at times, has been poor. But some of those issues might be partially explained by the number of Ravens defensive players in the training room during the week rather than on the practice field.

"It's been tough," Harbaugh said. "It's as many injuries as we've probably ever had on defense here in the last five years, and I'm really proud of the guys. The guys have stepped up."

Only four defensive players — McClain and defensive backs Cary Williams, Ed Reed and Bernard Pollard — have started all 13 games for the Ravens. That number will probably decrease by two as McClain is out today and Pollard likely won't play because of a chest injury.

"It's always tough when guys get hurt, but this is the NFL," said Reed, who has played much of the season with a labrum tear in his shoulder. "Guys get paid to be professionals, so you expect that guys will come in and do a good job. It's tough because your communication and everything has to change a little bit more. It puts more on guys like myself, which comes with the territory."

Longtime teammates Lewis and Suggs have each missed seven games this season and still have yet to be on the field at the same time. The Ravens' top cornerback, Lardarius Webb, was lost for the season in Week 6 with a serious left knee injury, and his replacement, Jimmy Smith, has missed five consecutive games with a sports hernia.

Defensive tackle Haloti Ngata has missed just one game, but shoulder and knee injuries have contributed to his looking ordinary at times. Second-year defensive end Pernell McPhee, who was second on the team last year with 6.5 sacks, has just a half-sack this year, and he has played just nine games because of injuries.

Given more opportunity, Kruger and defensive end Arthur Jones have played well, and cornerback Corey Graham, signed this past offseason primarily for his work on special teams, has solidified the secondary. However, the injuries have left the Ravens thin and vulnerable in other areas.

Two weeks ago, the Ravens let journeyman third-string quarterback Charlie Batch drive the Pittsburgh Steelers down the field for the game-winning field goal as time expired. Last week, Washington Redskins rookie backup Kirk Cousins took over for an injured Robert Griffin III and threw a touchdown pass and then ran in the 2-point conversion to tie the game with under a minute to play. The Redskins then won it in overtime, dealing the Ravens their second straight loss and putting even more importance on today's showdown with the Broncos, who have already clinched the AFC West.

On Cousins' 11-yard touchdown pass to Pierre Garcon, veteran cornerback Chris Johnson, who was out of football four weeks earlier until the secondary-needy Ravens called, was beaten.

"There's a lot of talk about the backup quarterback thing. It isn't so much those guys, it's us," Pees said.

"It had nothing to do with Batch or with Kirk Cousins. Any college quarterback could have thrown Kirk Cousins' touchdown pass. It's us executing the defense, and it was no rare defense. The injury factor had no bearing on that play. I know it may have been a new guy, but we still have to make that play. We can't use that as an excuse going forward."

Still, after watching Batch and Cousins deny them wins, it's fair to wonder how the Ravens will be able to slow Manning today, and then his younger brother, Eli, next weekend when the New York Giants visit M&T Bank Stadium.

The Broncos are second in the league in points per game (28.8) and Peyton Manning, after missing last season with a career-threatening neck injury, is second in the league in touchdown passes (30) and completion rate (68.3). His teams have beaten the Ravens in eight straight matchups dating to the 2002 season, but neither that — nor the rash of injuries the Ravens are dealing with — mean anything to the veteran quarterback.

"Every team deals with injuries. It's just the 'Next man up' mentality. I know Baltimore has that, and I know we've had that here," Manning said. "Ray Lewis is a guy that we all know is hard to replace, but you've seen it in Baltimore in years past. They have always had young talent and guys ready to step in. They are still very aggressive on defense no matter who's in there."

Jim Caldwell has built a reputation with up-tempo offenses

By Aaron Wilson
The Baltimore Sun
December 10, 2012

Jim Caldwell built his NFL reputation through a successful collaboration with Peyton Manning, reaching a Super Bowl as the Indianapolis Colts' head coach and winning another as the position coach for the star quarterback.

Since joining the Ravens as quarterbacks coach in February, Caldwell has worked quietly behind the scenes to help install a no-huddle offense that was used prominently at the start of the season only to be scrapped in recent weeks.

Now that Cam Cameron has been fired as offensive coordinator and Caldwell has replaced him, the veteran NFL assistant will put his stamp on the Ravens' offense.

And the look of that offense is expected to take on a hurry-up approach given Caldwell's background with the Colts' offense and his role working with quarterback Joe Flacco since his arrival in Baltimore.

"You saw they focused on the no-huddle a lot in the offseason, started out using it effectively and then waned a bit as the season progressed," NFL Films analyst Greg Cosell said. "I think it's something they would like to go back to with Jim. I think he's highly thought of. He's very good with the subtle details of quarterback play.

"I think the big issue is how much can you change this late in the season. I would expect to see an emphasis on a different part of the playbook with them making this change at this stage."

Known for his low-key demeanor, Caldwell, 57, didn't signal his arrival with bold statements or promises about energizing an offense that's averaging 344.4 yards to rank 18th in total offense and ninth in scoring with a 25.5 points a game.

Both Caldwell and Ravens coach John Harbaugh emphasized there won't be a major change in approach.

"It's not a system change," Caldwell said Monday at the Ravens' complex. "Obviously, the Ravens' offense is the Ravens' offense. It's not a philosophical change. John sets the philosophy here of this team, and we follow suit."

Although Caldwell has a lengthy resume with 35 years of coaching, including three years as the Colts' head coach and operating as Manning's quarterbacks coach for three of his four NFL Most Valuable Player awards, he has never been an offensive coordinator.

And the former Wake Forest head coach hasn't called plays in the NFL. During Caldwell's six years as Manning's position coach, Manning piled up an NFL-best 29,210 yards, 222 touchdowns, 66.5 completion percentage and a 100.5 quarterback rating.

"Jim is qualified," Harbaugh said. "Jim is a heck of a coach, and we have a heck of a staff. It's going to be the Ravens' offense. We're down the road with our offense, and we'll continue to build on what we've been doing.

"Jim has been a part of that the whole season along with the rest of the coaches. It's always a collaboration, and we'll do it together. We're looking forward to seeing how it plays out."

Flacco recently told The Baltimore Sun he didn't know why the Ravens had stopped using the no-huddle attack.

Running an up-tempo offense is something that Flacco has acknowledged he enjoys and feels like it plays to his strengths as a pocket passer.

"It seemed to work when they did run it this season, and I know Joe is a big proponent of the no-huddle because it keeps defenses on their heels and they can't switch and substitute," former Ravens wide receiver Derrick Mason said in a telephone interview. "Joe runs the two-minute offense really well. From what I've heard about Caldwell, he's a good guy.

"Hopefully, he's been in Baltimore long enough to know the pulse of this offense and build that rapport and relationship with Joe and can step into a leadership role where guys will believe in what he's saying. If he doesn't have that relationship, he's going to run into the same problems that Cam did."

This promotion marks a big change for Caldwell in terms of his role on the staff.

However, he's already left an impression on the offensive players.

"Everybody has respect for him," Ravens offensive tackle Bryant McKinnie said. "He gets along with everybody. He's been kind of quiet because he was the quarterbacks coach. I'm sure we'll see more of his personality now that he's the offensive coordinator."

After accepting the new responsibilities, Caldwell met with the offensive coaches, watching video of the Ravens' 31-28 overtime loss to the Washington Redskins that marked Cameron's final game as offensive coordinator. He also met with players.

"I had an opportunity to talk with them and really, in a nutshell, just try to make them understand really what we're trying to do is just to get about that much better," said Caldwell while holding his index finger and thumb a few inches apart. "And that's a difficult task obviously trying to get that done in this league, but that's what we're shooting for."

Harbaugh didn't say whether Caldwell will be the Ravens' permanent offensive coordinator, but did indicate that he would work in a dual capacity by remaining the quarterbacks coach. It's also unclear if Caldwell will shift to the field as offensive coordinator or remain in the coaches' booth as he did as quarterbacks coach.

When asked if this represented an audition for Caldwell, Harbaugh replied: "Long-term considerations are long-term considerations, and that's not in the forefront of our mind right now."

Jim Caldwell In, Cam Cameron Out

Jim Caldwell has not been a play caller yet during his coaching career.

By Ryan Mink

December 10, 2012

Cam Cameron has been removed as the Baltimore Ravens offensive coordinator and former Quarterbacks Coach Jim Caldwell has been promoted into his position.

The team officially announced the news Monday afternoon following a 31-28 loss to the Washington Redskins, handing the Ravens a second straight loss.

“My responsibility is to the whole team and what’s best for them right now. We need a change. Our plan and our goals are to win games, win our division and get to the playoffs.”

Caldwell mentored quarterback Peyton Manning in Indianapolis and was the Colts’ head coach for three years. However, he has never been an offensive play caller during his 12 NFL seasons or in college.

Cameron had been the Ravens’ offensive coordinator since 2008, the start of the Harbaugh era.

During that time, the highest the Ravens offense has ranked in terms of yards per game is 13th in 2009, when Baltimore posted 351.2 yards per game.

Baltimore’s offense has added weapons over the past several years, but has not made much overall improvement. It currently ranks 18th in the league with 344.4 yards per game. The Ravens are in the top 10 in points per game this year.

Cameron has largely been in charge of overseeing quarterback Joe Flacco’s development. He was the offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach last year before Caldwell was brought in this season to work with Flacco.

But Flacco also hasn’t seen a dramatic improvement in his statistics during his five seasons, and is in the final year of his rookie contract with an extension expected.

The Ravens, pundits and fans had high expectations for Flacco entering the year after he looked strong in training camp and the preseason, and in Week 1 against Cincinnati.

After Sunday's 182-passing yard performance with three touchdowns, one interception and one fumble, Flacco is on pace for 3,963 yards, 22 touchdowns and 11 interceptions. That's a career high in passing yards, but short of his 2010 touchdowns (25) and about on pace in interceptions.

Flacco told The Baltimore Sun last week that he's "frustrated" with the offense's lack of improvement this year. Flacco said it "comes back to the quarterback," but he also said it's a little frustrating that the Ravens aren't using more no-huddle.

Cameron has been under fire in Baltimore for the past couple years, criticized by fans and media for not giving running back Ray Rice the ball enough and for his play calling.

Baltimore's front office doesn't generally have a track record of making major midseason shake-ups.

But it did fire Jim Fassel as offensive coordinator in mid-October of 2006. Then head coach Brian Billick took over play calling and the team went on to win its first AFC North title.

The Ravens made this year's move the day after the offense scored the most points it has all season on the road in Washington.

But it also stumbled in key situations with two turnovers, an interception deep in Redskins territory and a fumble for the second straight week.

The Ravens offense struggled on the road in Kansas City, Houston, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. Flacco and the unit have been plagued by inconsistency, particularly on third down this year and recently with turnovers.

Baltimore has three games remaining in the regular season and is once again on the cusp of a playoff berth.

Harbaugh brought up the team's motto of W.I.N. "What's Important Now" in talking about why he made the decision.

"My charge – our responsibility as a coaching staff – is to maximize the opportunities for our team to win, and we can still reach all of our goals for this season," Harbaugh said.

"With our coaches and players, the solution is in the building. We are going to make the most of our opportunities going forward, and this change gives us a better possibility to achieve our goals."

Caldwell's first game will be against his former quarterback and the Denver Broncos this Sunday at M&T Bank Stadium.

The laid-back Caldwell and Flacco seem to have built a good relationship during their time together in Baltimore, and the coach speaks highly of his quarterback.

"We're getting a feel for one another," Caldwell said in June. "We get along and those kinds of things. It's a great working relationship at this point."

Harbaugh said the decision to let go of Cameron is the "hardest thing I've ever had to do as a coach."

"There is a very human side to this," Harbaugh said. "Cam is my friend, he taught me a lot about coaching, and he is an outstanding coach.

"Cam has been a significant contributor to all of our successes over the past four, almost five, seasons. Deservedly, he is highly-regarded, and we owe thanks to him for what he did for the Ravens."

Ravens Off To Best Start Under John Harbaugh

Despite all their injuries and flaws, the Ravens are 8-2 for the first time.

By Ryan Mink
BaltimoreRavens.com
November 20, 2012

They've played more than half of one of the most difficult schedules in the NFL.

They're working through atypical difficulties, particularly with giving up big yardage on defense and with offensive inconsistency on the road.

Despite all that, the Ravens are off to their best start in five years under Head Coach John Harbaugh, and are tied for the finest start in franchise history.

The Ravens are 8-2, two games ahead of the Pittsburgh Steelers (6-4) in the AFC North. Their only other 8-2 start was in 2006 when they won the division.

"The world gets caught up in fantasy stats," running back Ray Rice said. "For us, the fantasy stat is 8-2."

The Ravens still have issues ahead that will test them.

Part of it is a difficult remaining schedule all against teams in the playoff hunt.

Up next is a game against the San Diego Chargers, who have lost five of their last six games but have a lot of talent and blew the Ravens out last year.

Seeing the Chargers' 4-6 record made safety Bernard Pollard especially appreciative of where the Ravens are in the standings.

"We're very fortunate to be in the position we're in sitting at 8-2," he said. "So many teams would love to be 8-2 right now. So many teams are sitting below .500 that are really good teams."

After the Chargers, there's a rematch with the Steelers, a game against Robert Griffin III in Washington, showdowns with both Manning brothers and a trip to Cincinnati to close out the year. Baltimore's remaining opponents have a collective record of 32-28.

"The feeling right now is we're exactly where we want to be but we haven't arrived yet," tight end Ed Dickson said. "We have a lot of stuff we can get better at, a lot of stuff to work on. We want to build from here. It's not how you begin the season; it's how you end the season that brings you a championship."

The Ravens are also still working through injuries, and more continue to be piled on. Tight end Dennis Pitta is recovering from the effects of a concussion, defensive tackle Terrence Cody has swelling in his elbow and cornerback Jimmy Smith (sports hernia) went down last week.

"We lost guys here and there but guys continue to step up," tackle Michael Oher said. "Guys continue to get better week in and week out and focus on the little things."

As with any team, there are issues to work out on both sides of the ball too. The Ravens offense ranks 21st in yards per game (338.7) and the defense is 25th in yards allowed per game (382.3).

But Head Coach John Harbaugh encouraged reporters to look at the points – which are what matter at the end of a game. Baltimore is tied for seventh in points scored per game (26.7) and ninth in points allowed per game (20.6).
And in his mind, the Ravens aren't close to being done growing.

"We can get so much better," Harbaugh said after Sunday's game. "The thing I love about this team is this team understands that. This team is ready to go to work. We're talking about tomorrow and how we're going to get better this week."

John Harbaugh goes biblical to describe Ravens

By Albert Breer
NFL.com
November 29, 2012

Sunday will mark the 12th time John Harbaugh has led the Baltimore Ravens into a showdown against the hated Pittsburgh Steelers. It'd be hard to argue that this 2012 group is the most talented of the bunch. Or even close to it.

These Ravens are too short-handed, thanks to a cyclone of injuries that has swept through the roster, to earn that distinction.

But they're also 9-2, good enough for the third-best record in football. They have a chance to clinch the AFC North this week and, with only three-quarters of the season left, the full admiration of their coach. Harbaugh knows how much the Ravens have endured and willed out of their own ability. When training camp opened four months ago, we sat in his office and he told me how he finally had the program where he wanted it. This season, as it turns out, has been a testament to that.

"You love every team you coach," he said over the phone Monday night. "But this team is different. I love the way they love each other, the way they treat each other. They compete, they have trust and faith in one another, and they're not afraid to get after one another. I love being around them. I can't wait to be in the meeting room, to laugh and talk ball with them. It's a great group, with great coaches and great leadership. It's the best staff I've been around, and the best leadership I've seen."

Those words are notable, given the news that came out this week, courtesy of a story by Yahoo! Sports columnist Mike Silver, about a time in late October when player frustration reportedly bubbled over at an emotionally charged team meeting.

As I spoke with Harbaugh on Monday, he asked if I knew about the biblical story of Nehemiah. I told him it'd been a while since I was in CCD, but that I'd look it up. And I did. In a nutshell, the story goes that Jerusalem, in 500 B.C., had its walls broken down, and Nehemiah had been charged by the King to travel there and rebuild them. Against the opposition of Judah's enemies, coming from all sides, he pulled it off in 52 days.

The story works for what Harbaugh and his staff have done in program-building since 2008, when they found a Baltimore club loaded with talent but lacking in discipline. It also works for this season in a vacuum, where the incident on Halloween -- with players upset that the coach was keeping his foot on the accelerator after a very tough month -- could've thrown the season into peril, but wound up only steeling the group's resolve.

Harbaugh refers to the Nehemiah story as a "metaphor for what we are doing."

"It's what they've all been through -- we don't have a lot of selfish agendas here," Harbaugh said. "We have guys who have opinions, guys who have tempers, guys that are funny. The mix of that, those are the things we encourage here. We want guys to be themselves. We want them to say what they think. And we got to the point where they're not afraid to do that. It's a good group."

The past two weeks might be the best example of that.

First, they went into Pittsburgh and outlasted their archrivals. Then, it was back to Baltimore, with the knowledge that a) they had a cross-country trip to San Diego to play a desperate Chargers team ahead and b) the rematch with the Steelers was waiting on the other side of it.

Fourth-and-29 was a pretty good indicator of how the banged-up and worn-out, yet prideful Ravens handled that classic trap situation. It is really just how they've handled the rest of the season.

"That intangible, I don't know how you measure that, it's hard to quantify it, but I know it when I see it," Harbaugh explained. "These guys love one another and they love football, and that's a real good combination to have. It's the shared experiences we've had, the success, the adversity. Everything you go through, it can divide a group. Instead, it's pushed us together."

With that, Harbaugh goes back again to what he calls "crazy leadership" in one breath and "great senior leadership" in the next. And he continues that "the best part is those seniors are training the juniors and the sophomores and the freshman. How they lift, how they practice, how they prepare -- they're showing them the way."

Seven months ago, these Ravens sustained the first body blow in a year that's left them battered, with reigning Defensive Player of the Year Terrell Suggs rupturing his Achilles tendon. Inexplicably, less than six months later, Suggs was back out there, eager to fill the void left by the man he calls the defense's "general": Ray Lewis.

So I asked Suggs if he felt like he needed to be Lewis in Lewis' absence. Suggs quickly responded that, "When he feels like it's time for the torch to be passed, he'll pass it. But until then, it's his. When Ray and Ed (Reed) decide to hang it up, it's mine."

And that seems to encapsulate what Harbaugh is saying, and what he wants: a program that's self-perpetuating, full of players who buy in. There are going to bumps, always. It's the way the group fights through things like the Halloween turning point that shows where that program stands.

At 9-2, this one happens to be in a pretty good place. Things won't get easier from here, not with the Washington Redskins, Denver Broncos, New York Giants and Cincinnati Bengals still on the schedule, the team's secondary still depleted and the offense still trying to find its way. But as far as what Harbaugh believes in -- maybe best described in his borrowing of Bo Schembechler's "The Team, The Team, The Team" battle cry -- there's very little he sees his players lacking.

"You try to put the best team you can out there, help guys be the best they can be," Harbaugh said. "We know we had good players go down, so try to find a way to get better with guys that are out there. I hope we can keep doing that. The thing about it is, you're talking about guys that have their own dreams now in those spots, and you're giving them opportunity. And they're looking at their dreams and the opportunity to fulfill them. Yeah, we don't wanna lose guys like Ray. But it's about being a team."

Harbaugh has one, something that's been proven out over the past few months. And beat up as they may be, he believes that will give the Ravens a heck of a chance as fall turns to winter.

Ray Rice leads the way for Ravens

By Jamison Hensley

November 28, 2012

Ray Rice's incredible fourth-down dash through the Chargers' defense Sunday has led to endless replays on highlight shows. It's stirred a debate whether this is the greatest play in Ravens history. It even inspired someone to print up T-shirts that read "Hey diddle diddle, Ray Rice up the middle."

The significance of this play won't be known for a few more weeks. If the Ravens go on to clinch a top seed in the AFC playoffs and eventually reach the Super Bowl, Rice's 28½-yard run-after-the-catch journey will be remembered as the springboard play that got them there.

What will resonate longer than this improbable play is the impact of Rice. He leads on the practice field. He leads in the locker room. And when the Ravens need a game-changing play, Rice leads the way to victory.

This happened three seasons ago in the playoffs in New England, where Rice set the tone with an 83-yard touchdown to open the game. It was the same way in last season's finale, when Rice ran for 191 yards and two touchdowns to clinch the AFC North title. On Sunday, when the Ravens play the division-rival Steelers, they can secure a playoff berth for the fifth straight season with a win, and everyone from the Monongahela River to the Chesapeake Bay knows whom they should lean on to get it done.

The Ravens have repeatedly tried to become a pass-first offense and make quarterback Joe Flacco the centerpiece of the attack. But Flacco is just too inconsistent from game to game and even quarter to quarter. The offensive rock in Baltimore is Rice, who leads the NFL in total yards from scrimmage since 2009. Rice has produced 7,083 yards over the past four seasons, a staggering number when you consider that only one other player (Tennessee's Chris Johnson) has eclipsed 6,000 yards during that same time.

This is a dangerous offense when the ball is in Rice's hands. The Ravens only help the opposing defense when they make him a decoy. This isn't just an opinion; history proves it. The Ravens are 32-10 when Rice gets 20 touches or more, a .761 winning percentage. They are 12-9 when he touches the ball fewer than 20 times, a .571 winning percentage.

The low point of the Ravens' season so far was a 43-13 loss at Houston. Not coincidentally, it was also the season low in carries for Rice with nine. Since then, Rice has received at least 20 carries in three of the team's past four games -- all wins.

There seems to be a timetable for when Rice becomes the focal point to the Ravens' offense. You can almost write it on your calendar. For the first half of the season, the Ravens want to throw the ball. By late November, Baltimore starts using the pages in the playbook for Rice.

In the first nine games of 2011, when the Ravens went 6-3, Rice averaged 20.4 touches. In the last seven, when Baltimore went 6-1, Rice's touches increased to 26.1 per game. The same trend occurred in 2010, when Rice averaged 24 touches in December.

Some might say the Ravens' run game heats up when the weather gets colder. My take is the Ravens pace Rice through the first couple of months of the season. When the games become more critical late in the season and it gets closer to the playoffs, Baltimore knows it's time to rev up Rice.

This has been a tougher season than previous ones for Rice. He's on pace to finish with 1,154 yards rushing, which would be his lowest total in four seasons as Baltimore's featured back. Some of that production is a result of poorer blocking this season. According to ESPN Stats & Information, he will finish 2012 with 96 fewer yards before contact than 2011.

Still, Rice is the biggest edge that the Ravens have against the Steelers. Pittsburgh has the NFL's top-ranked defense and has a two-time Super Bowl winner at quarterback (that is, when Ben Roethlisberger is healthy). But the Steelers have no one in their backfield even close to Rice.

On Sunday, Rice saved the Ravens on fourth-and-a mile, and the Steelers watched every running back on their roster fumble. Pittsburgh can generate the occasional 100-yard rushing game out of Jonathan Dwyer, Rashard Mendenhall or Isaac Redman. Rice, though, is nearly a lock to total 90 to 100 yards in a game. His 37 games with at least 100 yards from scrimmage is tops in the NFL since 2009, four more than Adrian Peterson and six more than Arian Foster.

"Ray Rice is special," Steelers coach Mike Tomlin said. "He is a guy for all situations, as I have said before, even on fourth-and-29."

The Ravens knew long before that play that they could count on Rice. In 2008, three months after being drafted in the second round by the Ravens (55th overall), Rice soon became the only healthy running back in training camp. It took a few days before the Ravens could bring in another back, so Rice took nearly every carry -- and every hit -- without complaining.

That was the first sign of Rice's toughness and character. His leadership has grown over the years. Rice spoke up at halftime during a regular-season game against the Texans when he wasn't pleased with his team's play. It wasn't a speech that will be remembered in Ravens lore. But it showed Rice becoming more and more assertive.

"He's been a leader for us from the first day of camp," coach John Harbaugh said at the time. "He talks to our guys all the time about execution. That's his thing. We're going to be physical, now let's make sure we execute. ... That means doing all the little things well and right."

There's been a feeling in the organization for the past couple of years that Ray Lewis has been grooming Rice to take over as team leader. Rice has certainly earned that role. So, even when Lewis decides to retire, the Ravens will still be Ray's team. It'll just be Little Ray, who has repeatedly stood tall when the Ravens have needed him the most.

Ravens' Terrell Suggs makes a statement in his return

The linebacker said he didn't feel like he rushed his return

By Aaron Wilson
The Baltimore Sun
October 21, 2012

Standing in the Houston Texans' backfield with his arms raised toward the sky, Ravens outside linebacker Terrell Suggs celebrated after slamming quarterback Matt Schaub to the ground.

It was the exclamation point of Suggs' surprisingly speedy return from a partially torn right Achilles tendon suffered in late April during the weekend of the NFL draft.

Although the reigning NFL Defensive Player of the Year wasn't happy with the Ravens' 43-13 debacle of a loss to the Texans on Sunday at Reliant Stadium, Suggs did serve notice that he has recovered from a serious injury initially expected to sideline him until much later in the season.

"It's not the start I wanted," said Suggs, who started and played more than half of the Ravens' 76 defensive snaps. "Of course, I wanted to come back for a win. I had to come back against a good team because we all know how important those games in November and December are, and I didn't want to be still knocking the rust off when it comes down the stretch to those big games.

"I had to go against a team that was going to challenge me the most, and that was Houston. When you step in the shower, you're going to get wet, and it rained. Down the stretch, there's no excuse. I don't want to hear none of that come November, December. I want to be all of Terrell Suggs for them."

Even after grappling with Texans offensive tackle Duane Brown off and on for four quarters on a surgically repaired tendon, Suggs emerged unscathed.

Besides bolting through a gap in the first quarter to sack Schaub for an 8-yard loss, Suggs contributed four tackles, two quarterback hits and a pass deflection in his first game of the year.

"He's a great player," cornerback Jimmy Smith said. "Him being out there trying to help us win meant a lot to the defense. We played with a lot of emotion."

Playing well over his usual playing weight of 260 pounds, Suggs' stamina wasn't his strong suit. However, he did display a burst of quickness and was able to physically set the edge when the Texans ran directly at him.

"Sometimes it seemed like it was holding up, sometimes it seemed like it just wasn't quite there yet on different plays," Suggs said. "We're just feeling it out. I walked on, I walked off. I know a lot of people's questions was whether or not I was rushing back. I don't think I rushed back."

Suggs played roughly 30 snaps in the first half while dividing playing time with Courtney Upshaw, Paul Kruger and Albert McClellan. He remained in the game after halftime but played more sparingly.

It was a bigger workload than even coach John Harbaugh had anticipated for the five-time Pro Bowl pass rusher considering that Suggs only returned to practice Wednesday and was activated Saturday from the reserve/non-football injury list.

"It looked to me like he played really well," Harbaugh said. "He was probably in surprisingly good football shape for as little football as he's played. He's going to be a plus for us, and he's only going to get better. I didn't think he'd play a full game.

"I don't know exactly what the numbers were, but we were on the field a lot on defense so it must have been a good number of plays. We weren't keeping track. The plan was not to give him a pitch count. The plan was to take it one series at a time, three to four plays at a time, and see how he held up."

Suggs underwent surgery on May 8 with Charlotte, N.C., specialist Dr. Robert Anderson performing the procedure.
The defensive standout's presence did catch some of his teammates off guard.

"Pretty surprised," quarterback Joe Flacco said. "Obviously, I'm not him, but I would have said, 'OK, we have a bye [next week]. Let's just sit him out for another one.' Pretty impressive obviously that he was able to get back that quick. I didn't think there was any way it was possibly going to happen."

Yet it did, and it wasn't a sluggish performance.

"I have to tip my hat off to him," said Brown, one of the top left tackles in the game. "It's amazing to see a guy bounce back from an injury like that so quickly. He looked like he didn't miss a beat. He's still quick, strong, fast and still very instinctive. That was a heck of an effort to get back from an injury like that."

Hours before kickoff, Suggs jogged around the field and did agility drills under the watchful eyes of Harbaugh, defensive coordinator Dean Pees and head athletic trainer Mark Smith. He was able to convince them that it was safe for him to get back on the field.

Outspoken with a colorful personality, Suggs' swaggering return immediately raised the decibel level around the defending AFC North champions.

"First way you know he's here is when you hear him in the locker room," wide receiver Torrey Smith said. "He's the loudest person everywhere he goes, so we're definitely happy to have him back and to see him make some plays even though he's still working back."

Ranked third in the NFL in total defense last season when Suggs registered a career-high 14 sacks and seven forced fumbles, the Ravens were 26th in total defense heading into Sunday.

They're also without middle linebacker Ray Lewis (torn triceps) and cornerback Lardarius Webb (torn anterior cruciate ligament) after both players had surgery last week.

"That guy is a force," free safety Ed Reed said of Suggs. "For us to lose Lardarius and Ray and have that guy come back is huge."

Now, the Ravens are banking on Suggs providing confidence and leadership for a reeling defense that allowed 420 yards and 27 first downs Sunday.

"I was happy for him, he was disrupting some things," cornerback Cary Williams said. "As the year progresses, he's going to get better and he'll get back into rare form. I don't think we lost any swagger on the field, but Suggs brings his own unique personality. It's great for the secondary to see him out there being productive. He's become a premier leader on the team."

Ravens becoming NFL's ultimate survivors

By Jamison Hensley

October 14, 2012

You can say the Ravens win ugly. You can even say they're lucky. You can rip apart Baltimore's defense for being a shell of its elite self. You can criticize a Ravens offense that has been inconsistent the past couple of games.

The Ravens aren't going to analyze -- and shouldn't have to -- the way they escaped with a 31-29 victory Sunday at M&T Bank Stadium. They watched how Dallas ran all over the Baltimore defense. They saw Cowboys receiver Dez Bryant drop the pass on the two-point conversion that would've tied the game in the final seconds. They sweated out Dallas kicker Dan Bailey's potential winning 51-yard field goal sail wide left.

"I don't know if we necessarily deserve to win this game, but we'll take it," said Ravens quarterback Joe Flacco, who completed 17 of 26 passes for 234 yards and one touchdown. "We'll get the hell out of here really quick and go home, fall asleep and wake up the next morning with a win."

These Ravens are far from a perfect team. They aren't a dominant team. No one on the Ravens would even suggest this.

So, what are the Ravens? They're winners, plain and simple. As New England loses at Seattle, Cincinnati falls at Cleveland and Pittsburgh gets upset at Tennessee, the Ravens shouldn't feel guilty in how they win by any means necessary.

The Ravens are clearly the best team in the AFC North. If they win at Houston in Week 7, the Ravens will have earned the right to be called the best team in the AFC. There's no style points in the NFL these days. With the unpredictability of this league, it's about survival and there's no better team at doing that than the Ravens.

The margin of victory in Baltimore's four-game winning streak is 3.2 points. Whether it's a winning field to beat the Patriots or praying that the Cowboys miss one, the Ravens find themselves as one of three teams in the mediocre AFC with a winning record. Baltimore (5-1) has a two-game lead over the Bengals (3-3) and a 2 1/2-game edge over the Steelers (2-3).

"Was it perfect? Was it pretty? No," coach John Harbaugh said. "And I'm sure that's all stuff that will get written about, and it's all fine. But a victory is still a victory. I'm proud of these guys for understanding and figuring out a way to win. We do have a bunch of fighters on this team."

The difference with how they edged out the Cowboys compared to their other close wins is the issues that have followed. Lardarius Webb, the Ravens' best cornerback, likely is out for the season with an ACL injury, and linebacker Ray Lewis could have a serious triceps injury. Defensive tackle Haloti Ngata is also nursing a knee injury.

That just adds more concern to a traditionally strong defense that is showing major cracks. After allowing 300 yards passing in three straight games, Baltimore has given up 200 yards rushing in back-to-back games for the first time in the franchise's 17-year existence.

The Ravens allowed a team-record 227 yards rushing to the Cowboys as fourth-string running back Lance Dunbar, a rookie out of North Texas, even broke out for an 11-yard gain.

"We're not happy with how we played defensively," safety Bernard Pollard said. "If we show we can't stop the run, they're going to run. It's not about being physical. We're a physical team. When we get guys wrapped up in the backfield, we can't let him go. When we got guys one-on-one on the edge, we have to make the tackle. I'm a little pissed off. We've got to get better."

What stands out about the Ravens is their resourcefulness. Cornerback Cary Williams, who hadn't had an interception in his first four seasons in the NFL, has picked off passes in three straight games. His interception of Tony Romo led to a 19-yard touchdown from Flacco to Torrey Smith to end the first half.

Jacoby Jones, who hadn't returned a kickoff all season, ran one back 108 yards for a touchdown, tying an NFL record. That staked Baltimore to a 24-13 lead in the third quarter.

And, after no first downs in its first two possessions in the second half, the Ravens' offense responded when Dallas closed to 24-23 in the fourth quarter. Ray Rice's 1-yard touchdown capped a 10-play, 73-yard drive that put Baltimore up 31-23.

"If winning in the NFL was easy, losers would do it," cornerback Jimmy Smith said. "It's hard to win in the NFL."

The Ravens' next challenge is playing at the Texans, one of the NFL's two undefeated teams before they played Sunday night. Baltimore has already knocked off two AFC playoff teams from last year in New England and Cincinnati.

But the Ravens know what a win over Houston would mean in terms of perception and potential tiebreakers when the postseason picture becomes clearer in a couple of months.

"I think it is the measuring stick right now," Rice said of the Texans. "We knew last year that team was going to be rolling. They just picked up where they left off last year."

The Ravens also realize they have to play better than Sunday. Baltimore was outgained, 481-316. The Ravens lost the time of possession battle, 40:03 to 19:57.

But the common theme in the Ravens' locker room was: the only stat that matters is wins. No one can blame the Ravens for celebrating a win Sunday that was the result of a dropped pass and a missed field goal. It was only nine months ago when the Ravens lost the AFC Championship Game that exact way.

"We've been on the other end of that obviously, so we know what that feels like," Rice said. "One thing our coaches preach to us is we just have to find a way to win by whatever means necessary."

Jacoby Jones Scratches The 'Itch'

Jacoby Jones tied an NFL record with a 108-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

By Ryan Mink

Jacoby Jones hadn't returned a kickoff since 2010.

So when he fielded one eight yards deep in the end zone Sunday, Jones had to bring it out.

"You just get that itch, and I wanted to scratch it," he said.

On his first kickoff return since taking over the duty, Jones raced for a record-setting, 108-yard touchdown that made a huge difference in the Ravens' 31-29 victory over Dallas.

It tied the record for the longest kickoff return in NFL history. Green Bay's Randall Cobb and New England's Ellis Hobbs had 108-yarders in 2011 and 2007, respectively.

Jones' touchdown return is the longest in Ravens franchise history, topping wide receiver David Reed's previous high of 103 yards against Houston in 2010.

Signed this offseason to help boost the Ravens' special teams returns, Jones was limited to just punt returns in the Ravens' first five games.

Rookie wide receiver Deonte Thompson averaged 25.9 yards per kick return (13th best in the NFL), but lost a fumble last week in Kansas City when it looked like he could break out a big gain. So Baltimore went with Jones this week and deactivated Thompson.

Jones said he didn't have a big reaction when he got the news in practice this week, responding with a simple, "alright." But Head Coach John Harbaugh indicated that Jones has voiced his desires.

"He's a guy that's got experience in there and that's probably the biggest thing [in the decision]," Harbaugh said. "I know one thing; he wants the ball in his hands. So that might be as big a part of it as any."

Jones said the touchdown return played out exactly as one he had this week in practice. He followed behind running back Anthony Allen and cornerback Corey Graham, who both sealed the edge. Allen hit one Cowboys defender and Jones was off to the races.

"That thing spread like the Red Sea," Jones said. "I was gassed. I think I kind of threw up a little bit on the sidelines, but I was ready to go again."

Jones had two more kick returns. He brought the next one back 25 yards before taking a big hit. Then he had a 26-yarder that started Baltimore's decisive fourth-quarter touchdown drive off on the right foot.

"We've been talking about getting a big play and breaking a play like that all year, and we have been close," Harbaugh said. "To set the National Football League record for a kickoff return, in what was the difference in the game, was pretty special."

Ravens rise to the top with resiliency

By Jamison Hensley
ESPN.com
September 28, 2012

No one is crowning the Baltimore Ravens as the team to beat in the NFL after gutting out a 23-16 victory over the winless Cleveland Browns on Thursday night. Where the Ravens stand above everyone else in the NFL is resiliency.

The Ravens have dealt with the death of their former owner. They've dealt with the death of Torrey Smith's younger brother. And they've dealt with four games in 17 days. The first four weeks of the regular hasn't been particularly pretty or easy, but Baltimore isn't complaining about the results. The Ravens are 3-1 and have put themselves in position for another Super Bowl run because they refuse to wear down physically and mentally.

Overcoming adversity has been the calling card for a team that spent an entire offseason facing questions about falling short in the AFC Championship Game. Perseverance was the reason why Baltimore came from behind to beat the Patriots on Sunday and held off the Browns on Thursday night.

Cary Williams, the cornerback who had been labeled the weak link of the defense, returned the first interception of his career 63 yards for a touchdown late in the third quarter, which proved to be the difference in the game. Joe Flacco shook off his first red-zone interception in three years to throw a touchdown and run for one. And a team which had played 92 hours earlier held tough through the final seconds, surviving two potential game-tying passes to the end zone.

"Adversity does one of two things: it either drives a team together or drives a team apart," Ravens coach John Harbaugh said. "In this case, because of the people that we have, it's driving us together. We're a close group."

To put in perspective what Baltimore has gone through, Thursday night was the first home game in which the Ravens didn't have a moment of silence for someone they lost.

Art Modell, the former majority owner, died four days before the season opener. The players wore T-shirts listing his accomplishments under their uniform for their Week 1 win over the Bengals.

Then, on Sunday, Smith's younger brother, Tevin, was killed in a motorcycle accident. Smith helped rally the Ravens to a one-point win over the Patriots with two touchdown catches and scored his third in five days on Thursday.

"It's a true family," Smith said. "That's the greatest thing about this game. It brings a lot of men together that comes from a lot of different circumstances and they create a brotherhood. That's the Ravens culture. The only thing that separates us is blood."

There were doubts about the Ravens' mental toughness last season. That's the impression made when a team follows big wins in 2011 with deflating losses at Jacksonville and Seattle. Judging how this team has performed in the first quarter of this season, the Ravens are not going to let such letdowns happen again.

It looked like Baltimore was primed for an upset a couple of times until someone stepped up to respond. After throwing a first-quarter interception in the end zone, which ended his streak of 125 red-zone passes without a pick, Flacco came back on the next drive to complete all four of his passes for 87 yards, including an 18-yard touchdown to Smith. Flacco then scored early in the third quarter on third-and-goal, when he faked out Browns linebacker Scott Fujita before running for a one-yard touchdown (Flacco's celebratory spike does need some work, though).

"You have to shake [that mistake] off," Flacco said of the interception. "There was a lot of time left in the game. You can't let it affect you too much."

Football can test you mentally as much as physically, especially at the cornerback position. Williams, who has seemed to wear a bull's-eye on his jersey instead of No. 29 this season, gave up a 43-yard catch to Browns wide receiver Greg Little on the Browns' only touchdown drive of the game.

One quarter later, Williams jumped a Brandon Weeden pass and ran back his first career interception for the game-deciding touchdown. Williams, who was criticized heavily this week for getting picked on by Tom Brady, went from media punching bag to the one delivering the crucial blow.

"I'm proud of that kid to fight through what he has fought through," safety Ed Reed said. "He's more deserving of an interception touchdown than any other person on this team."

This early-season grind has taken its toll on the Ravens. Flacco bruised his ribs a couple of weeks ago in Philadelphia and he was walking gingerly in the locker room. Reed needed around-the-clock treatment for a sprained knee in order to play Thursday.

This pain, however, doesn't compare to what this team has had to deal with emotionally.

"When you have things that makes times tough and makes times tough for individual, it kind of helps us through those times because everybody has a great relationship," Flacco said. "We're able to rally around those guys."

The Ravens have done all of this under the national microscope. They've had prime-time games on Monday night, Sunday night and Thursday night. The reward is some well-deserved rest.

The players will report to team headquarters Friday for a meeting before getting the weekend off. They will get to recuperate physically, but not emotionally. Some of the team will attend the funeral of Smith's brother on Saturday.

The Ravens needed a strong start in order to position themselves for a fifth consecutive playoff berth. They play two of their next three games on the road, which includes a showdown at undefeated Houston, before their bye. Baltimore has a second-half stretch in which it faces the Steelers twice in three weeks with a cross-country trip in between. Then, there's back-to-back games against the Manning brothers in December.

If these first four weeks have told us anything about the Ravens, it's that this team is ready to fight when faced with challenges.

Ravens rally around emotional Torrey Smith

By Jamison Hensley
ESPN.com
September 24, 2012

There was no boasting in the Baltimore Ravens locker room about getting redemption for a loss in the AFC Championship Game. There was no line of Baltimore players griping about the questionable calls of the replacement officials like the previous Sunday.

The Ravens' come-from-behind 31-30 victory over the New England Patriots was about wide receiver Torrey Smith putting his heart into a game when it was hurting the most. It was a testament to Smith's perseverance in the wake of tragedy.

Hours -- not days -- after losing his younger brother Tevin in a motorcycle accident, Smith was there for his football family after the players were there for him all during the day. He finished with 127 yards and two touchdowns on six catches in a game that was defined more by moments than statistics.

The prime-time game began with a moment of silence for Tevin and ended with coach John Harbaugh handing the game ball to Smith in the locker room. According to one observer, Smith walked to the middle of the huddle to take the ball and started crying before telling everyone how much they meant to him.

"I have my family, and I have you as my family," Smith told them. "I couldn't have done it without you guys."

The Ravens couldn't have rallied to beat the Patriots without Smith. Trailing 13-0 after the first quarter, Smith's 25-yard touchdown catch got the Ravens on the scoreboard. Trailing by six points in the third quarter, Smith helped the Ravens get their first lead with two big plays -- a third-down conversion and a 32-yard grab -- to set up a Ray Rice touchdown. And trailing by nine points in the fourth quarter, Smith's five-yard touchdown pulled Baltimore to within 30-28.

After each of his touchdowns, the sellout crowd of 71,269 at M&T Bank Stadium chanted "Torrey, Torrey, Torrey." Smith, though, took a private moment after his first score to kneel in the end zone and say a prayer.

"Obviously, you play with a heavy heart," Smith said. "You want to play for that person."

When Smith learned about the news regarding his 19-year-old brother, he left the team hotel shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday morning to be with his family in northeast Virginia. He told Harbaugh before he left that he wanted to play, but he didn't make the decision until hours before the game.

Smith returned to his team and could only get an hour sleep. He spent the day talking to teammates and was part of an emotional church service with the team.

When he got to the stadium around 4 p.m., about four hours before kickoff, Smith texted his mother that he was thinking of playing. Her response: his brother would want him to play.

"What it came down to was, being a receiver, you've got to have your mind clear," Smith said. "You can't have anything weighing on you [because] that's going to cause you to drop the ball or have mistakes. I didn't want to hurt my team. I came here, and the more I was running, the more comfortable I began to feel. I'm glad I came back here. I think it helped me out a lot."

The Ravens take pride in being a family, and their ties have been strengthened through tragedy. It was in January 2011 when the Ravens dedicated a 30-7 playoff win at Kansas City to safety Ed Reed after his brother drowned only days before.

"It's just something about having two families," Reed said. "When I went through losing my brother, being around these guys, it really helped me get through. To play and have the game he had, that's when we all have to sit back and know that God is working."

Emotions have been high since the opening kickoff of the season.

Former majority owner Art Modell died three days before the Ravens' 44-13 win over the Bengals. The Ravens are wearing decals honoring Modell on their helmet and have "Art" written along the sideline at the stadium.

"We're facing a different fight with everything that's been going on the past few weeks with Art Modell," Rice said. "We've all been playing with a chip on our shoulder. Torrey Smith is one of the hardest working guys on our team. So, he would have had to be broken not to play."

Smith played a major role in leading the comeback, although he didn't have a catch in the winning 70-yard drive in the final two minutes of the game. The Ravens, however, say Smith had an impact because he was always on their minds.

It didn't matter that the Ravens fell behind by 13 points in the first quarter or nine points in the fourth. It didn't matter that they were penalized 14 times for 135 yards. Those challenges paled in comparison to what Smith faced all game.

"Understand that there is something way bigger than why we're here today, and that's what the whole message was," linebacker Ray Lewis said. "It was a whole different vibe on the sideline. Sometimes you get mad when things go wrong. Tonight there was a calmness."

His teammates talked about how the game was a temporary escape for Smith. But reality was starting to set in for Smith following the game.

He talked about how his brother's birthday was Oct. 6. Tevin was going to come up to Baltimore on Thursday to watch the Ravens play the Browns and "raid my house all week," according to Smith.

Losing a loved one is extremely difficult. For Smith, his relationship with Tevin extended beyond that of a sibling. With his mother working and going to school, Smith took care of his six younger siblings and became a father figure to them. Smith tweeted early Sunday that the death of his brother is "the hardest thing ever."

"He had a great heart," Smith said of his brother. "A lot of people say that all the time when people pass, but he truly was that person. When you see him mad, you'd always laugh because it didn't look right. To be around him, his big smile and his laugh, which was one of the most annoying laughs ever, I'm definitely going to miss him. It's a tough loss for us."

Joe Flacco rings in season of change

The Ravens have won with defense for years -- now it's the offense's turn to shine

Change isn't easy. It takes time and patience and resilience. In the National Football League, change can take years. Long years. Tough years.

But in Baltimore, change has occurred.

Want to know how you know? Joe Flacco had just lofted a very Tom Brady-like 10-yard pass to Dennis Pitta for a touchdown to give Baltimore a 24-13 lead over a pesky Cincinnati team. Ray Lewis, a Raven since 1996, turned to Ed Reed, a Raven since 2002, on the sideline and said, "Our offense is doing what they're supposed to do. It's time for us to do what we're supposed to do."

Suffice it to say that sideline conversation between Baltimore's defensive leaders had never occurred quite like that. The offense leading the team? The Ravens? You bet. It is happening now.

It is only one week and one game. Teams' fates tend to get written after Week 1, the storyline prematurely and often inaccurately spun. Look at the teams who won in Week 1 last season. The Jaguars beat the Titans. The Cardinals beat the Panthers. The Redskins beat the Giants. How did that work out?

But it is an inescapable truth after the Ravens clobbered the Bengals 44-13, scoring the final 27 points of the game -- Baltimore looks like it will be a handful on offense this season. Flacco was sharp. He ran the no-huddle and called plays, constantly keeping the pressure on a Bengals defense that struggled in the secondary. He spread the ball around, completing passes to four receivers, two tight ends, a running back and a fullback. And despite what he called a few communication issues, Flacco was more often than not on the money, completing 21 of 29 passes for 299 yards, two touchdowns and zero interceptions.

Flacco was particularly proficient throwing the deep ball. Flacco was 7-of-10 for 194 yards and one touchdown on throws traveling 15 or more yards, according to ESPN Stats & Information.

Perhaps even more impressive was his overall completion percentage of 72.4. John Harbaugh said weeks ago that he wanted Flacco, who completed 57.6 percent of his passes last season, to be in the 70s this year. It sounded preposterous, but Harbaugh was insistent.

Flacco is that good, and the Ravens have surrounded him with the pieces he needs, including a proven quarterbacks coach in Jim Caldwell, a speedy receiver in Torrey Smith, a happy running back in the newly re-signed Ray Rice and a fortified offensive line.

In the past, Flacco admitted recently, the offense eased off the gas in games after getting a lead, relying instead on the defense to win the game for them. They didn't do that on Monday night. Not even close.

"That's probably what we expected," Harbaugh said after the game. "I'd like to find another way to say it and not sound like we were right all along, or whatever, but I did expect to see that. That's what we looked like in practice. That's what we thought we could be in games. I'm just glad to see the whole offense take the practice reps to the game. But it is just one game."

It was just one game. Sunday at Philadelphia will be another. Then there will be another, and another and another.

But it is difficult to defend a quarterback who throws a 52-yard strike to Smith on the first play of the game. That set the tone. That got the Bengals' attention. So did Flacco's first touchdown throw to Anquan Boldin, which gave the Ravens a 17-3 lead. Flacco dropped back, pump faked, and then under duress launched a 34-yard bullet off his back foot that cleared Cincinnati safety Taylor Mays and hit Boldin in stride.

"He was on fire," Bengals linebacker Rey Maualuga said.

Cincinnati scored on its last possession of the second quarter and first possession of the third quarter to cut the Baltimore lead to 17-13. Flacco didn't flinch. Backed up on the Ravens' 6-yard line, Flacco drove the Ravens downfield, completing a 23-yard pass to Pitta, an 18-yard pass to Rice and a 19-yard pass to Ed Dickson before finding Pitta in the end zone.

"He just keeps pressure on the defense," Harbaugh said.

"When we put those points on the board," Flacco said, "it puts pressure on other teams' offenses to do things that they might not normally do. Against our defense, that might not work out too well. So I think that's why we have to keep that pressure on, because we're going to get some turnovers here and there, and games will turn in our favor."

After the Ravens extended their lead "that let us basically get out there and hunt after Andy Dalton," Baltimore defensive tackle Haloti Ngata said. "And that's what we did."

Speedy receiver Torrey Smith will help stretch the field for Flacco, whom the Ravens firmly support.

Now, in another example of how things have changed in Baltimore, Reed said that the defense needs to guard against getting complacent. It can't let up, like the offense did for so many years. It can't use a potent offense as a crutch.

"We've got to not get in that same mode, because our offense is so good," Reed said.

The Ravens have big expectations. They haven't lost a season opener since Harbaugh and Flacco arrived in 2008. They now have won 19 of their past 20 home games, including all eight last regular season. They swept the division in 2011 and made their second AFC title game appearance.

Now they want more.

"It's a team now," Reed said. "It's a full team. It's a very good team with a great offense and a great defense and great special teams. We just have to put it all together. It's something this organization has been building toward for a long time."

Lewis was asked if this is the offense he's been waiting for all these years. He laughed. "I've been here a long time," he said. "You can finish that off for me."

Yes. The answer is yes. Imagine all of the Super Bowls the Ravens might have won had their devastating defense been paired with a prolific offense.

But change doesn't come quickly.

When it was over, Harbaugh strolled through the locker room. The next game in Philadelphia, where he worked for a decade, will be an emotional one. The Ravens will have a short week to prepare for a team that has its own array of offensive weapons.

"I'll tell you," Harbaugh said, "it's fun to win. It's fun to win."

It was only one game, but it was one game down in a season of change. Fifteen more to go.

Ravens' defense is younger than most people think

While Lewis and Reed are nearing the end of their careers, team has a host of younger players filling key roles

By Matt Vensel
The Baltimore Sun
July 27, 2012

While talking over each other on the Sunday pregame shows, national analysts often make passing comments about the increasing age of the Ravens' defense, as if the team's Gatorade jugs were filled with prune juice and 11 senior citizens were trying to trip up ball-carriers with their walkers.

John Harbaugh cringes, too, when he hears those talking heads calling his defense old.

"I get mad as heck. It doesn't make me happy," the Ravens coach said. "[But] it's great to be underestimated. That's a big advantage in life. So hey, spread the word, tell everyone that we're old and over the hill, the window's closed, and all those great clichés they want to use."

As linebacker Ray Lewis and safety Ed Reed play deeper into the twilight of their careers, the Ravens have actually gotten much younger on defense in the past two years. Teams have to, Harbaugh says, because even though legends last forever, their playing careers do not. Now, after infusing young talent into their starting ranks in recent drafts, the Ravens believe their defense will still be one of the NFL's stingiest — not just this season, but for several to come.

"We have crazy talent at every position," 27-year-old strong safety Bernard Pollard boasted.

During Friday's practice, Jimmy Smith, a 2011 first-round draft pick, out-muscled Anquan Boldin to break up a quick hit then batted down a deep pass a moment later. Rookie outside linebacker Courtney Upshaw harassed offensive tackle Addison Lawrence. Later, starting inside linebacker Jameel McClain blitzed quarterback Tyrod Taylor and corralled him inside the pocket for a sack.

This youth movement accelerated two years ago, after the Ravens fielded the NFL's third-oldest defense in 2010 with an average age of 29.6, according to Football Outsiders.

The following offseason, the Ravens cut then-34-year-old nose tackle Kelly Gregg, opening up a starting spot for 2010 draft pick Terrence Cody, who was 23 at the time. Veteran cornerbacks Chris Carr and Fabian Washington, who combined to start 24 regular season games in 2010, were replaced in the starting lineup by younger players in Lardarius Webb and Cary Williams.

The team shaved the average age of its defensive starters to 28.6 and had the eighth-oldest defense coming out of training camp, according to ESPN. In that 2011 season, the Ravens ranked in the top five in many major categories, including scoring defense, total defense, and sacks.

This offseason, the Ravens let starters Jarret Johnson, 30, and Cory Redding, 31, walk in free agency; they could be replaced in the lineup by Upshaw — a second-round draft pick in April — and third-year player Arthur Jones, respectively. Smith, a 24-year-old cornerback, will push Williams for a starting spot. And though the lineup change was not by design, Paul Kruger is four years younger than Terrell Suggs, who is expected to miss at least a large chunk of the season as he rehabs the surgically-repaired Achilles tendon he shredded in late April.

Should Upshaw and Jones start in the front seven this season and if Smith overtakes Williams in their training camp competition, the starting defense will have an average age of 27.3 for the season opener. Only two starters, Lewis and Reed, would be above the age of 28. Remove those two greybeards from the equation and the average age of the rest would be 25.6.

"People want to talk about this 'aging defense,' but I just don't see it," Harbaugh said during offseason workouts. "We've got a lot of good young players rolling in there. ... I think we have some star players — two guys, basically — who are older guys who can still play at a high level."

And that's likely why some outsiders say this is an aging defense: they are only looking at its core. Lewis, Reed, Suggs and defensive tackle Haloti Ngata were recently voted by their peers as four of the top 20 players in the NFL today. Lewis is 37 and Reed turns 34 in September. Ngata and Suggs are in their prime, but both Pro Bowlers are closing in on their 30th birthdays.

"I think if we are [aging], all of the great defenses are still watching us in the playoffs, which is the ultimate," Lewis said of the old-age perception. "I don't even think we think about it that way, because being playmakers and winning is much greater than all that other stuff people are talking about. It's who we are. We kind of don't want to be liked. We like to be respected."

For nearly two decades, Lewis has been the snarling, eye-blacked face of the hard-hitting Ravens defense — and maybe the face of defense across the entire sport, as well. He and Reed are widely considered to be among the best to ever play their respective positions, and they are expected to give Hall-of-Fame speeches in Canton, Ohio, a few years after retiring.

Both were named to the Pro Bowl in 2011 and continue to play a key role in the team's success. That's because, as Pollard put it, Lewis and Reed "have wisdom out the wazoo." But eventually — whether it is this season or one in the near future — Father Time will finally sack both of them.

By then, though, the Ravens are hoping they will have groomed more future stars on defense.

"We have leadership within this team — phenomenal leadership," McClain, 27, said. "A lot of teams wish they had the guys that we have. But, the great thing about our leadership is they teach the younger people how to become where they are, how to get there. And it's a progression and everything, so everybody knows when it's their time to step up."

Ravens' Rice tired of making the playoffs, wants the bar raised

By Don Banks

August 17, 2012

New long-term contract and accompanying career security in hand, Ray Rice is not satisfied. He wants more. He wants it now. He wants it all.

"Getting there is not good enough any more," said the Baltimore Ravens stud running back, laying flat on his back at his locker between recent training camp practices. "I've played in two AFC Championship Games since I've been here, and been in the playoffs every year. The playoffs are the norm now. It's not just about the feeling of making the playoffs any more. It's about taking care of business again and this time actually getting the job done. Do we have the pieces? Yes, but it's going to take every man on board."

In Baltimore, it's an easy argument to make that any Super Bowl push the Ravens might make starts with Rice being on board. He may not even be the most decorated Ray on his team's roster, but he is the most valuable. Baltimore's MVR, if you will. The Ravens are not only the lone NFL team to make the playoffs in each of the past four seasons -- or since Rice arrived in 2008's second round -- but also they've won at least one game in the Super Bowl tournament four years in a row, the first team to manage that since New England notched at least one playoff win five years running, beginning in 2003.

But getting close is getting annoying in Baltimore. The Ravens' agonizing 23-20, last-minute loss at the Patriots in last January's AFC title game represents the closest Rice and Co. have come to the Super Bowl, and it must have felt a little like orbiting the moon without being able to land on it.

"We've been close all four years I've been here," Rice said. "Last year at this time, we were talking about getting over that hump against Pittsburgh, and we did that. Now it's a case of getting back to the AFC Championship first, and being able to put ourselves back in that situation. At the end of the day, it's going to be about the players and our mentality."

Rice's mentality this summer seems as rock-solid as his tightly-packed, 5-foot-8, 212-pound frame. The day I talked to him at camp, he was only two weeks or so removed from signing that new five-year, $40 million contract with the Ravens, the one that will pay him $17 million this season and $8 million in 2013, far better than the $7.7 million he was slated to earn in 2012 as the team's designated franchise player.

Rice and Baltimore took their negotiation down to the wire on deadline day for the franchise tag, but in the end, the Ravens more than rewarded the runner who led the league in yards from scrimmage last season (2,068), with his career-best 1,364 yards rushing, franchise-record 15 touchdowns and team-high 76 catches for 704 yards nicely stating his case.

"It definitely feels like a load off your shoulders, because you want to be taken care of, but you also don't want to be missing much time when it comes to playing football," said Rice, who stayed away from the team's voluntary offseason workouts and may have staged a camp holdout without a long-term deal. "The best thing about me being here on time is I'm getting my timing back with my offensive line. I believe I was given a fair deal. I got taken care of in the first two years, and then I just have to play the rest of my deal out."

With almost two-thirds of the contract's value front-loaded into its first two seasons, Rice will indeed get compensated for the great bargain he has been in his first four seasons in Baltimore, with two Pro Bowl trips to his credit in that span and three consecutive years of at least 1,775 yards from scrimmage. Rice is thankful he didn't have to make the decision on a holdout, but he admits the franchise-player label was starting to wear on him this offseason.

"The franchise tag was making me uneasy," he said. "I knew it would buy time to negotiate a contract, but I didn't necessarily feel like it should have gone on that long. I know it's part of the growing pains of the business, and it's not personal. So I never let it get personal. The only way it would have gotten personal is if I had to play under the tag this season, and been guaranteed only one year."

Pushing the rock back up the hill has begun in Baltimore, but Rice has learned this much about the hard work it takes to position a team for a deep playoff run: the fewer games, and road games, you play in the postseason, the better. After Baltimore had to take to the road for all seven of its playoff games in 2008-2010 (going 4-3), the Ravens finally got past the Steelers to earn the AFC North crown, a first-round bye, and a divisional round home game last season. They put it to good use by beating visiting Houston 20-13 to advance to the AFC title game in Foxboro. Taking that next step to a No. 1 seed and two playoff games at home seems the logical challenge in 2012 in Baltimore.

"It helps, having that one playoff game here really helped," Rice said. "Having that first-round bye helps, too. We're a great road team, and we've won in the playoffs on the road, but we've got to be able to put ourselves back in that situation, playing at home in the playoffs. That's the goal, and now we have to go back to work and reinvent ourselves again."

The way the Ravens' season died last year was the cruelest near-miss of all in the John Harbaugh coaching era. That Lee Evans drop/strip job in the end zone. The 32-yard Billy Cundiff shank job on the game-tying, overtime-producing field goal attempt. The TV cameras captured the look of utter disbelief on Rice's face in the seconds after Baltimore's season went awry, and it's the kind of memory that could haunt a guy if he lets it.

"I'll be honest with you, I think we're over it," Rice said. "In the sense that we're back to playing football. Enough time has gone by. But it won't actually be over until we see another opponent [in the regular season]. It's still the last game we played, and we still remember it."

Naturally there's a lot of talk in Baltimore about how long this particular window of Super Bowl opportunity will stay open for the Ravens. The ageless Ray Lewis is in fact 37. Ed Reed turns 34 next month. Anquan Boldin, Matt Birk and five other Ravens have at least 10 years of NFL experience as of this season. Rice is somehow only 25 and in his fifth pro season, but there is a sense of urgency in Baltimore, and the likely season-ending loss of reigning NFL Defensive Player of the Year Terrell Suggs to an offseason Achilles' tear makes this year's task all the more difficult.

"You can't replace a Sizzle [Suggs' nickname]," Rice said. "We need multiple guys to step up to fill that void. But things happen, situations happen you can't control in football, and that's one of them. We know what he brings to the team, and no more motivation is needed. But without Ray Lewis here, I think our team would be in disarray. He has that ability to bring guys together for one goal.

"That window might be closing, but the core of our team is here. Ray definitely drives it. Ed [Reed] drives it. Suggs has been around. And then there are young guys like me, Michael Oher and Joe Flacco, and we're just piggybacking off these guys, riding on something that's already been built here since '96, when Ray first came to Baltimore."

Many would beg to differ on the question of which Ray the Ravens are really riding at this point. Rice's value in Baltimore is undeniable, as his new contract conveys. If the Ravens do indeed climb another step and reach the Super Bowl this season, I put my money on it being the ultra-productive Rice leading the way.

John Harbaugh gets the Ravens ready for a season that may be their toughest yet

By Jeff Zrebiec
The Baltimore Sun
September 9, 2012

A football coach to the core, John Harbaugh loves motivational quotes and uplifting slogans.

He has some printed on T-shirts and others are framed and strategically placed in his office or around the Ravens' training facility.

One of his favorites, however, still resides in his phone. Seated at a table in his office recently, Harbaugh scrolls down and finds a message from a friend. He then reads the words of Chinese philosopher Lao Tzu. He pauses a couple of times and lets the words sink in. He then reads them again.

"A leader is best when people barely know he exists, when his work is done, his aim fulfilled, they will say: we did it ourselves."

To the football populace, the Ravens will always be Ray Lewis' team until the day the indomitable middle linebacker calls it quits on his Hall of Fame career. John Harbaugh? He's a good coach who has had many great players, they say.

How good?

Harbaugh is 49-24 since replacing Brian Billick, and he's the only coach since the 1970 NFL merger to guide a team to a playoff victory in each of his four seasons. He's won with a rookie quarterback and youth at other key positions. His teams have survived injuries, offensive inconsistency and a revolving door of defensive coordinators. They have exceeded modest expectations, and held up reasonably well to enormous ones.

He may not come across as charismatic as Pittsburgh Steelers coach Mike Tomlin or as quotable as New York Jets coach Rex Ryan and he receives nowhere near the attention or the credit that his younger brother, Jim, does as the head coach of the San Francisco 49ers. However, Harbaugh's influence is all over everything the Ravens do.

Under the fifth-year head coach, the Ravens have won consistently with an ever changing roster that now features just six players who were with the organization prior to Harbaugh's arrival. They've done it while playing a physical yet disciplined style, and embracing the concepts and principles that their head coach always preaches.

"In the end, the team belongs to the team," Harbaugh said. "Yeah, I'm part of that but so is every player and every coach and every person involved. It's our team. It's not the coach's way. It's the Ravens' way. It's how our team operates. It's having a shared ownership of everything we do. It's never been my way or the highway here. But the principles, they are rock solid. Like we say to our team, principles are written in stone, methods are not. We will not back down from our principles."

Starting Monday, when the Ravens host the Cincinnati Bengals and begin another run at that elusive Super Bowl, Harbaugh could face his biggest challenge yet. The Ravens will play eight of their 16 games against teams that made the playoffs last year. They are scheduled to face quarterbacks Tom Brady, Philip Rivers, Tony Romo, Michael Vick, Ben Roethlisberger and both Peyton Manning and Eli Manning.

The Ravens won't have reigning NFL Defensive Player of the Year Terrell Suggs for most, if not all, of the season, and several other key pieces from last year's 12-4 team, including Pro Bowl guard Ben Grubbs, linebacker Jarret Johnson and defensive coordinator Chuck Pagano, are gone.

"I feel as good about this team as any team we've had," Harbaugh said. "That's not a predictor about our record or anything like that, but I really, really love this team. I love the work ethic, their outlook, their attitude. I just like the way they approach things. We have a confidence that whatever we do, it will be our best. Obviously, I feel we're talented and have a chance to be very good."

Almost there

Following nearly every practice of training camp, long after his players had gotten out of the hot sun, Harbaugh ran a series of sprints that left him breathing hard and drenched in sweat. Sometimes, he ran with team security personnel. By camp's end, Harbaugh was often a solitary figure, sprinting up and down the far field at the Under Armour Performance Center.

Fit and as competitive as ever, Harbaugh will turn 50 on Sept. 23, the same day the Ravens will play the New England Patriots in a rematch of the AFC championship game. In the Ravens' 23-20 defeat to the Patriots back in January, Lee Evans failed to secure a potential game-winning touchdown pass and Billy Cundiff missed a 32-yard game-tying field-goal.

Still, as he walked back to the visiting locker room at Gillette Stadium just seconds away from a Super Bowl berth, Harbaugh was overcome by a sense of calmness.

"We had done everything that we could do to be the very best that we could be, and it went down the way it went down," he said. "Everybody did their best. I didn't feel any animosity toward anybody. I was disappointed for all of us especially the guys that had the tough plays at the end."

In the long offseason that followed, there was no need for soul searching or second guessing. Harbaugh understood the importance of constantly evolving with the game and continuing to work on his connection with his players. But as it was, the Ravens were as close to the team that he envisioned when he took over than ever before.

"He's always had core values and principles that he believes in," said his father, Jack Harbaugh, a coach for 41 years. "In those situations, it's a matter of staying true to who you are and to those principles. I know he doesn't get caught up in all of those things that are spinning around on the periphery. The one thing that I respect in watching John over his entire coaching career is his consistency."

Taking over

Harbaugh inherited a handful of Pro Bowl players and locker room leaders with Lewis and safety Ed Reed. The Ravens had a stable ownership situation with Steve Bisciotti and a front office, headed by general manager Ozzie Newsome, heralded as one of the league's best.

But there were plenty of issues for him to confront, the least of which was an underachieving team that sandwiched a 13-win season in 2006 around six and five-win campaigns under Billick. Bisciotti wanted his new head coach to cultivate a change in the team's less than sterling image and reputation, tarnished over several seasons of trash talk and on-field antics, like Bart Scott's flag-throwing tantrum in front of a Monday Night Football audience in 2007.

Immediately, there was a palpable divide among Harbaugh and some of the players who had gotten used to Billick's more relaxed ways, and wanted Ryan, their defensive coordinator, as their head coach.

Instead, Ryan stayed on as Harbaugh's defensive coordinator, while many of the players were slow to embrace the new head coach's style. They didn't understand why they had to have their shirts tucked and their chin straps buckled during walk-throughs. They didn't like having to stand in a certain place during drills or dress in a certain way.

"The things that we did as far as the methods have been proven to be good. I'm proud of that," Harbaugh said. "It's what I would consider a good, fundamental approach to building a program, to building a team – how you practice, how you meet, how you carry yourself in a game, the mind set of team first and raising each other up. People will ask why is that important? To me, it's a vision. It creates an organized, methodical mind set. I think it reflects in the play. It's more disciplined, more orderly."

Finding comfort

With some of the tumultuous days behind him, Harbaugh acknowledged that he is more at ease than ever, and he feels like everything is more "accurately aligned than it's ever been." Jack Harbaugh has sensed his son's comfort level during their regular phone conversations.

"I sense the feeling that John has now is because the process has played itself out and there is trust with your coaching staff, administrative staff, individuals in the building and most important, your football team, those who you deal with not on a daily basis, but an hourly basis," Jack Harbaugh said.

When Harbaugh stood in front of the room back in July and addressed his full team for the first time at the start of training camp, he congratulated running back Ray Rice on his recent contract extension, and then read aloud several published quotes from his players about the upcoming season.

"The shared experiences add up over time and because of that, communication is a lot better," he said. "We all understand each other better and that's a good thing. When I walk in front of the team, I feel a stronger connection than ever. I feel like the team now really understands why we do things, how we do things and what the benefit is."

During training camp, Harbaugh frequently consulted his players about the practice and meeting schedule. He gave players some down time when a group of Ravens' leaders suggested that the team was tired, and he canceled meetings one night after linemen Michael Oher and Terrence Cody were able to cleanly field Sam Koch's punts.

"There's definitely a better relationship there," quarterback Joe Flacco said. "He feels more comfortable in his own skin to get our input. He's allowing himself to trust us a little more."

Said second-year wide receiver Torrey Smith: "There's a lot of respect there. If there is something he believes in, he stands by it. That's what you want in any leader."

Lewis said that Harbaugh has done a good job of "understanding his players," and Reed acknowledged that his head coach has gotten better "building relationships." The Pro Bowl safety also said something that will certainly please Harbaugh, and offer more proof that the coach has left his imprint on the team.

"He put his stamp on it, but it's our team," Reed said. "It's not one man's team. And if it starts to be that way, then we got problems. It has to be our team. Is Coach Harbaugh the head coach of this team? Yes, he is. Is he the leader among men? Yes, he is."

Ravens show they're primed for Super Bowl run

By Jarrett Bell
USA Today
September 10, 2012

First place was on the line Monday night near the Inner Harbor, and while this season is so young with at least 15 games still to play it is never too early for the Baltimore Ravens to consider the stakes.

This is a Super Bowl-or-bust mission for the Ravens, maybe the last run for graybeards like Ray Lewis and Ed Reed. And another try for the likes of Joe Flacco and Ray Rice.

Hello Cincinnati Bengals, the pesky cousins in the A-North coached by former Ravens D-coordinator Marvin Lewis.

These are usually close, punch-'em-in-the-face jobs. Kind of like the matchups against the Pittsburgh Steelers, but without as much venom. It was a fitting way to start this grueling campaign. And when the Bengals made it a four-point game, 17-13 in the third quarter, it was really time to get busy.

Done.

The Ravens routed the Bengals, 44-13, to demonstrate that yes, the nail-biting loss to the New England Patriots in the AFC title game is in the rear view mirror.

"It's the first game," said all-pro safety Ed Reed, one of the heroes of the night with a 34-yard TD off an interception return that broke open the game in the third quarter. "We're just getting started on this journey."

As he met the media, sporting a T-shirt bearing the face of Art Modell, the former Ravens owner who passed last week, Reed grumbled about things to fix, such as communication between the defenders.

"It's good to get the first one under your belt," he said, "without it costing us with those big communication errors."

The smash-up included a defining third-quarter sequence that demonstrated why the Ravens are in the conversation as perhaps the most complete team in the NFL.

Flacco jump-started an 89-yard drive with a 23-yard completion to Dennis Pitta off a play-action bootleg waggle, then finished it with a floating, alley-oop lob to the 6-4 tight end for a 10-yard touchdown.

After a three-and-out, Flacco found Pitta for 25 yards off a waggle, then located Anquan Boldin with a rope throw, low and inside, for 10 yards on a sideline comeback route. Rhythm was in the works, leading to a 40-yard field goal by Justin Tucker.

Tucker, the rookie free agent from Texas, replaced Pro Bowl kicker Billy Cundiff, a surprising training camp cut who missed a chip-shot field goal that could have sent the AFC title game into overtime.

More tests await, but so far, so good. Tucker hit all three of his field goal tries.

Flacco, by the way, was pulled midway through the fourth quarter with a rollicking 128.4 passer rating. He completed 21-of-29 passes for 299 yards, with two TDs and no picks and was razor sharp operating out of the no-huddle offense that provides Baltimore with a new dimension to its emerging offense.

On Monday night, Flacco sure resembled the "elite" quarterback he has proclaimed himself to be.

"Sure he is," said his coach, John Harbaugh. "But the main thing is that he's our quarterback, and that's good enough for us."

Another pressing question involves the tradition-laden Ravens defense.

How in the world will they survive without T-Sizzle, reigning NFL Defensive Player of the Year Terrell Suggs?

Well, so far, so good. Baltimore sacked Andy Dalton four times, and Reed entered the NFL record book with his theft-turned-touchdown. Reed surpassed Rod Woodson's NFL mark for most career interception return yards, now at 1,497 and counting.

Suggs will be out of the mix for several more weeks as he aims for a second-half return from a torn Achilles tendon, but as he watched from the sidelines the heat-seeking linebacker had to be assured that his defense is capable of holding down the fort.

"Can you replace a Terrell Suggs? Absolutely not," said Lewis, who had a game-high 14 tackles. "But can you get a young Paul Kruger playing better? Can you get a younger (Courtney) Upshaw to start playing up to his level of play? That's what we did tonight."

Of course, it's still early. But with each of the other AFC North teams losing in Week 1, the Ravens have sole possession of first place.

They are indeed the team to chase.

For the third consecutive season, the Ravens opened the season with a big victory against an expected AFC playoff contender.

Yet Harbaugh doesn't want to hear that, with a short week to prepare for Sunday's trip to Philadelphia.

No wonder Lewis was in the locker room right after the game ended, talking about the 24-hour rule. For a team pondering the ultimate stakes, perspective is essential.

"When we watch that tape," Harbaugh said. "There's going to be a lot of things that we don't like."

At the same time, the game tape will reveal so much that is worth repeating.

John Harbaugh reflects on Baltimore Ravens' image makeover

Baltimore Ravens coach John Harbaugh stood up, then sat down. He moved from his desk to a conference table in his second-floor office at Baltimore's stately facility. And then Harbaugh gazed out the window at a field about to be filled by the 90 players who would report to camp the next day.

This is his place now.

Like the other 31 head coaches in the NFL, Harbaugh doesn't know what the next six months have in store for his team. But on this Wednesday afternoon, he did know exactly what he'd be looking at four hours later, when he'd address his Ravens before kicking off training camp. He'd see straight backs. He'd see eyes forward. He'd see feet on the ground. He'd see a singular focus.

Know this: It wasn't always this way for Harbaugh in Baltimore.

"Somehow, last year, and now, this year, more so than ever, I feel in my element as the head coach," he said, leaning back in his desk chair. "It looks the way I always wanted it to look. I remember I told the team in some of the tough moments back then, 'I know what it's going to look like, the picture is as clear as can be in my mind, and we're not even close to being there yet. But we will be, no matter how long it takes, we will get there, I promise you that.' And right now, it looks as close as it's ever looked."

For Harbaugh, "back then" represents his first year or two in Baltimore. "Tough moments" is also a relative term, considering he's the first coach in NFL history to win a playoff game in each of his first four seasons. So it's even more interesting that, the way he sees it, his efforts to recast an already successful franchise are just now nearing completion.

The job Harbaugh inherited in Baltimore could have been simultaneously viewed as the best and toughest in the league. Under the direction of owner Steve Bisciotti and general manager Ozzie Newsome, talent and resources were never going to be a problem. But the standard for success was high – the Ravens weren't undergoing a rebuilding project, in which a 7-9 record would be acceptable.

And while the players Harbaugh was to lead were gifted, they had also become entitled and inconsistent, and would be a challenge to reach.

The real system failure of the old way might have come on a Monday night in December of 2007, with a 4-7 Ravens team going toe-to-toe with the 11-0 New England Patriots. Baltimore outplayed New England for most of that game and carried the lead through most of the fourth quarter. An epic meltdown followed, punctuated with Bart Scott firing a penalty flag across the field in frustration in the waning moments. Even faced with an undefeated behemoth, talent wasn't the issue that night. Being the bad guys had finally caught up with the Ravens, leading to bad football. Baltimore, wearing black head-to-toe that night, went on to finish 5-11.

Those uniforms had been mothballed when Harbaugh took the job in the offseason that followed. For his part, Harbaugh thought the Ravens had just been "playing into everyone's stereotypical thinking."

"Individuality and personality are really important," he explained. "That's what America's built on -- rugged individualism. But we're not talking about selfishness. We're not talking about selfishness, we're not talking about self-promotion or self-glorification. That's the difference between the black hat and the white hat. The black hat is self-centered, self-oriented."

That might explain why, after winning the Super Bowl in 2000, the supremely gifted Ravens were so up-and-down. From 2001 to 2007, they compiled records of 10-6, 7-9, 10-6, 9-7, 6-10, 13-3 and 5-11. The foundation, as originally laid by Newsome, was always there. But there were cracks in the armor. Given how headstrong the players on the roster were, reforming and refining the group's collective, trademark swagger wasn't going to be easy for Harbaugh.

He had to pass, in his words, "the credibility test and the trust test" with a team of accomplished professional athletes. Harbaugh now feels fortunate that there was enough talent in the locker room to make it possible for the Ravens to keep winning while he implemented his changes. But it wasn't an easy process.

Asked what would make him feel good when he looked at his players later that day, he said it would be the way they look back at him. No slouching, no distant eyes, no one dozing off, no one thinking they're too good -- or too famous -- for the guy next to him.

"That's exactly what I'm most proud of, is the connection I'll feel in that room between coach and team," Harbaugh said. "When I first stood in front of that team, the rift was palpable, shockingly so. And now the connection is intense. The relationships are so strong, and they continue to need to be built and worked on. But that's what I'm most proud of."

Interestingly, the turnaround came to life most vividly for Harbaugh in another loss to the Patriots by the thinnest of margins. This time, it was on the road, a devastating defeat headlined by a Lee Evans drop and a Billy Cundiff shank that left the Ravens just shy of Super Bowl XLVI six months ago.

"You walk off the field after a championship game you probably should've won, and you lost it. Where does a man stand at that moment?" Harbaugh asked rhetorically. Where his team stood after that loss -- together and accountable -- told him all he needed to know.

Harbaugh admits now that the loss hurt, "maybe even more so" than the previous three playoff defeats. But the way the Ravens responded reaffirmed his belief that this team, his team, wasn't far from the top of the mountain.

"To me, the whole thing is, become better, become so much better that it's not even an issue," Harbaugh said. "Let's make our team so good, there's no question. Because there's going to be that moment, 10 minutes before the victory celebration ... In acquiring coaches, acquiring players, putting the schemes together, the way we practice, the way we meet, the way we train, all that is going to come into play 10 minutes before the victory celebration. And we're going to do everything we can to be as good as we can be in that moment. And then you've got to let the chips fall."

The team he'll go forward with now is similar in talent and construction to the "Big Bad Ravens" of last decade, but the makeup inside the locker room is much different. Now, the visions of Bisciotti, Newsome and Harbaugh have melded.

Asked again about shaping the Ravens, Harbaugh turned his chair and pointed to a flat-screen television affixed to his office wall.

"I talk about it, what's on that screen, that's your team's work of art, that's your Picasso," he said. "You're the artist, as a coach, of your team. You're the artist, as a player, of what you look like. And now the beautiful thing, that picture, that vision, I feel like it's, to one degree or another, in everybody's eye. Everybody sees it more close than ever to the way I see it, and therefore it's becoming more reality. That's really exciting. So I walk out there and I'm happier, because I know that it looks (how) it's supposed to look."

Harbaugh dusted off the all-black uniforms for a game against the New Orleans Saints in December 2010. He broke them out again last October against the New York Jets.

"Yeah, we got out of (using those uniforms) for a couple years, until we'd clearly established the style of football we were going to play," Harbaugh said, cracking another smile. "And then it was just a uniform choice."

And that speaks volumes about where this coach is now and how his team has grown around him.
